tion was over-ornate. William Adams, who served his apprenticeship under Wedgewood, had better luck. His Jasper ware had about the same range of objects as the master potter and was so well done that the pottery marks are the chief means of telling an Adams piece from a Wedgewood. His mark was "W. Adams" either impressed or printed. The Wedgewood pieces have the impressed circular mark of "WEDGEWOOD AND BENTLEY" or simply "WEDGEWOOD" if done after 1781, the year Bentley died.

Today the small articles such as the cameo-like medallions for brooches, rings, small boxes, seals and other kinds of jewelry are in favor with collectors who often have them set in gold mountings.

Here's something Special in Spaciousness

A LOT of folks like the two-door idea, because they feel that tiny tots are safer in the back seat.

But that's no reason why back-seat headroom should be dimensioned for midgets only.

So Buick engineers have done something about it, in the Buick SPECIAL 2-door Sedan pictured here.

They've kept the compactness of overall length that's important in modern garages.

But they've arched that sturdy steel top to give you he-man headroom - headroom in back as well as headroom in front - that makes a six-footer feel at home.

And they've designed a trunk that has "room for tourists."

Don't ask us how they did it. Come see for yourself.

Slip into those spacious seats—and while you're there, find out why this compact honey is one of the hottest numbers we've seen in years.

Find out how that F-263 valve-in-head Fireball Engine pours out the power and stretches the miles per gallon.

Find out how Buick's exclusive combination of torque-tube drive and coil springs on all four wheels puts big-car steadiness and stability into this nimble performer.

Find out how Dynaflo Drive* takes the strain out of traffic driving—and brings you relaxed to the end of a long day's cross-country driving.

And above all find out how much comfort and luxury and convenience you get for the prices you see featured here. The sooner you see your Buick dealer—the better off you'll be.

Standard on ROADMASTER, optional on other Buick models. Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Penn. Loses

If one constituent is graduated from West Point and one from Annapolis this year, the representative will have two appointments to fill.

Any congressman will tell you that appointments to the service academies can be politically troublesome. Someone is always disappointed and that "someone" often has very sensitive relatives and friends. With fewer appointments available, the pressure is sure to be greater.

Requests for certain government publications are so numerous at times that congressional aides frantically trade around in an effort to meet the demand. A big-city congressman will trade farm literature to a rural congressman in exchange for a publication of interest to urban dwellers.

The demand for agricultural year books is always high. Each representative is allowed 400 a year. Therefore, there will be 1,200 fewer agricultural year books for Pennsylvanians—unless their Keystone State congressmen do some very fancy trading.

The same will be true of many other publications.

And then there is the matter of Capitol Hill jobs—pages, door keepers, policemen and so on. Each member of the majority party is permitted to fill a certain number of jobs, depending upon his seniority. A committee chairman who has been in Washington 25 years might have four jobs to fill. A newcomer might not have any.

With three fewer members, Pennsylvanians will have just that much less chance of getting Capitol jobs in the next and succeeding congresses.

The reduction in representation won't affect back-home jobs, however, such as postmaster. There will be the same number of such positions to be filled. But some representatives, because of enlarged districts, will have more recommendations to make—that is if the congressmen are of the same party as the man who will then be president.

Completes Inspection

Maj. Walker P. Fay, of Fort F. E. Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyo., on an inspection tour, expressed himself as favorably impressed with "local relations, public sentiment, morals, and the effectiveness of the training" provided airmen enrolled in the clerk-typist school established at Penn State by the Air Force.

Louisiana Bank Is Skeptical Of Pennsylvania Treasury

Horace E. Mohn, formerly a resident of Central Pennsylvania, has finally received his Pennsylvania veterans' bonus.

But he had a tough time getting it.

Among other things, he found that the claims of politicians to this state's prestige are not taken seriously at some places.

For after waiting for more than a year to get his bonus check—totaling $330—he couldn't cash it. Mohn now lives in Louisiana.

He took the official looking check, drawn on the State Treasury, to the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company in Alexandria, La. The people at the bank said no dice. For one thing they didn't know if Pennsylvania had any money in its treasury. On that point they were surprisingly near the truth, this being the end of the fiscal year with tax bills still struggling through the legislature.

The bank people at Alexandria pointed out to Horace Mohn that if the check had been drawn on another bank they would have risked it. But on the State Treasury of Pennsylvania—not a chance.

This shocking attitude by the southern bank set Mohn in motion but fast. He had waited over a year to get that check, now the solvency of the state was being questioned.

He returned to his country home at Forest Hill, Louisiana, threw a few things into an overnight bag and hit the road North—hitch-hiking. Some 1300 miles later, a tired and dusty veteran turned up at the VA office in Harrisburg for counsel.

He found a friend who endorsed his check. It was cashed at the Camp Curtin Trust Company where they didn't have the same doubts about Pennsylvania as the Alexandria bank, and another veteran had collected his state bonus.
