Army Needs High School Graduates

High school graduates by the thousands are vitally needed in our fast-growing Army, according to T/Set, William S. Nagle of the local recruiting station. "The Army offers many of these young men a chance to continue their educations at some of the finest technical schools in the world." he said.

ed now more than ever before," Sgt. Nagle continued, "because operating a modern army requires highly technical skills and the high school education it takes to learn these skills rapidly.'

After basic training, he said, many high school graduates will find themselves studying such interesting subjects as communications, radar operation and maintenance. photography, electronics, transportation, and hundreds of others. Emphasizing that Army technical schools are run by excellent instructors, he mentioned that the men who go through these schools will come out of the Army wellqualified for good jobs in business or industry. But Sgt. Nagle stressed the fact that many men will find life so attractive that they'll want to make it a permanent career. "The Army has room at Officer

Employment Service List Job Opportunities

Full industrial and construction employment in Centre County has resulted in a serious labor force shortage here. A steady increase in the number of persons placed in jobs since January is reported by the local office of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service.

April placements show a 60% increase over January figures, and a 40% increase over the same month of 1950.

Job openings filed in the local office have shown considerable increase in the last five months and opportunities cover a far greater field of work than at any time since World War II. Job listings are not limited to the Centre County area. but include State and nationwide jobs in industry as well as openings with the Army and Navy at home and overseas

Our enemies laughed at our World War II production goals. But American business topped the figures that seemed fantastic. And America's business-managed electric companies provided a record-breaking power supply to do the job.

Today, new production miracles are in the making. The electric companies have doubled the amount of electricity available before the last war. And they're still stepping up the pace.

That's why it seems strange to hear some people say "the government" could do a better job of running the electric light and power business. It seems stranger still when you realize that this idea leads straight to socialism.

The U.S. won't go socialistic so long as Americans recognize that government taking over a business or industry "for keeps" is socialism, no matter what reasons are given for it.
