THE RESTORATION OF JERUSALEM

International Sunday School Lesson for June 3, 1951

Memory Selection: "They that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint."—Isaiah 40: 31.

Lesson Text: Ezra 1: 2-3; 6: 14-16; Nehemiah 4: 6; 8: 1-3

Three men had roles in the life of the Jews at this period of their history. They were Cyrus, King of Esra, the scribe.

So Nehemiah had a high platform built, just inside one of the gates and on it sat Esra, and the Levites and scholars and interpreters of the Scripture. Esra brought forth a copy of the Law, which he had preserved all during the Exile, and from early morning until noon, they read and interpreted God's word to the assembled people. Interpretation was necessary because Esra was reading a record written in ancient Hebrew, which was not familiar to the Jews of his day, who were familiar with Aramaic, which they had acquired during the Exile.

The effect of the reading was remarkable. The people wept—in shame at their forgetfulness of God. However, Nehemiah and Esra urged them to stop weeping and get to work, following God and obeying His Law! It is still true that no one can read or listen to the Bible being read, without being improved and having ideals for his life and conduct. Thomas Jefferson declared: "I have always said, I shall always say, that the studious perusal of the Bible will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands."

Daniel Clemson Featured in Saturday Evening Post Article on Carnegie Co.

The last issue of the Saturday Evening Post gives the wonderful story of "Carnegie's Young Partners", one of whom is D. M. Clemson, a Centre County boy, who sprang from the Scotia Hills and delved about the Scotia mines. Mr. Clemson got his start with the Scotia mines 17 years ago when he began as a timekeeper. Shortly thereafter, because of his aptitude he was placed in charge of a vast natural gas drilling enterprise the Carnegie Company undertook. He carried it to a conclusion with such success that he was given a partnership interest.

On Saturday, June 1, is the first event of the season at Hecla Park. It will be an all day fête under the auspices of the Hecla Baseball Club. In the afternoon there will be a baseball game between the Bellefonte Athletic Club, and the Hecla team. Following that there will be trap shooting, tub racing and dancing in the pavilion. The Zion band will be there to furnish the music. Ice cream will be served.

One who professes to know, informs us the colored population of Bellefonte is about 700—1 out of six. Is it so large?

George T. Bush left Friday afternoon for Philadelphia and Reading. While in the latter place he will attend the Knight Templar Conclave.

Ed Parsons, of Bellefonte, is the patentee of an iron enamel and tin roof paint, and a company has been organized in Shamokin to put the product on the market.

The Howard Hustler came out this week showing some improvements in the style of the paper. Since Howard has been booming, the Hustler has been keeping pace with the crowd.

John Van Pelt, a student at the Academy, while practicing baseball on the Glass Work's meadow Friday afternoon, was struck by a ball which split his nose, inflicting a very painful and ugly injury.

Trout by the yard—almost. One 17½ and another 15½ inches, combined linear length 33 inches, that's what Editor Harter hooked inside a hour, within the Boro limits, last Saturday. Both were Rainbow trout.

Mrs. Edward Shoemaker, and little grandson Philip, left Monday for Atlantic City. Mrs. Shoemaker has suffered greatly with neuralgia for several months, and hopes the change of climate will be beneficial.

Samuel Gettig, Esq., who had a severe spell of quinsy for several weeks, took his departure for Linden Hall last week to recuperate at the home of his mother. Good country air and a change of grub will bring him around a-smiling. Sam will be missed while he is gone.

Air Mail Plane Crashes In Flames Atop Nittany Mountain Sunday Eve

Trapped by an inferno of seething flames that enveloped his plane on a storm-beaten mountainside miles from any human habitation at the lonely hour of midnight—could human mind conjure a more horrible fate than that which befell James D. Cleveland, National Air Transport pilot flying the night mail from New York to Cleveland early Sunday morning. Cleveland crashed on the top of Nittany Mountain, in the vicinity of Green Valley, about 11:53 p.m. Sunday evening when he failed to attain sufficient altitude to top the trees and his plane was hurled to the ground. Just why he failed to attain proper altitude will never be known, but it is believed his plane became clogged with ice, due to a storm raging at the time, and with his heavy load of mail was unable to get high enough to cross the mountain. Of the 1150 pounds of mail he carried, only one letter was found. Among the losses were several shipments of uncut diamonds in all probability scattered over the mountainside.

The Rev. Clarence Arnold, pastor of the Bellefonte Lutheran Church will be the speaker at the Memorial Day services at Farmers Mills at 9:30 a.m.

Bellefonte has the meanest thief in Centre County. On Sunday night he stole the pocketbooks of four young ladies from the main auditorium of the Lutheran Church. Following the regular evening service at the church Sunday evening four members of the choir, Dorothy Coxey, Lila Jodon, Dorothy Lewis and Mabel Watson, hung their coats and pocketbooks over chairs in the church and went into the Sunday School room for their practice. During the short interval they were absent, some miscreant entered the building and stole their pocketbooks.

The hornets of the United States Army, nearly 200 of them, proved a magnificent spectacle to hundreds of Bellefonte residents last Friday, who flocked to every vantage point as the hum of the motors announced their arrival, about 10:45. Bombers and pursuit ships swooped in from the west and sailed majestically in a bee-line over the town until lost to view on the eastern horizon.

Joseph Capparella and Mary, of Coleville, are making extensive repairs at their home for the opening June 1, of a first-class eating parlor. They will serve Italian spaghetti dinners with meatballs and sandwiches, pop, cigars, cigarettes, etc. As a special inducement to go and see their place, they are offering to the first twenty people that come to their parlor, on Friday, June 1, a spaghetti dinner free. The service will be first class and the prices reasonable.

OPS Official Explains Rules Of Operation

About 40 businessmen of Centre County heard Office of Price Stabilization policies explained at a meeting in Hoag's Restaurant in Bellefonte, Monday noon. Wade Bloom, representative of the Erie official of OPS spoke and answered questions from the floor.

Mr. Bloom pointed out that price filing charts for business must be entered at the Erie office by May 30. The Erie office is headquarters for a 15-county district. Businesses with under $20,000 annual operations are not compelled to file the charts but no future manufacturer's increase may be passed on to the customer.

He said the present Price Regulation 7 covered food, clothing, jewelry, gift shop items, notions and some hardware items. Businessmen were invited from Bellefonte, Milesburg, State College, Pleasant Gap and other surrounding communities.

A number of merchants had individual conferences with Mr. Bloom at the Chamber of Commerce office Monday afternoon.

Test Flower Gardens Add Foreign Entries

Penn State's test flower gardens, largest in the nation, are attracting attention from all over the world, says Prof. Robert P. Meah as he outlines plans for the 1951 annuals. Nearly 200 entries from foreign countries, each getting a plot, will appear in this year's plantings.

While the annuals form only a part of Penn State's collection of flowers, this year's gardens of annuals will again set a new record for size and number. Last year when the gardens shifted to a new site, the scope of the experimental trials was expanded. This year with addition of foreign and other commercial entries including the All-America samples, approximately 846 different kinds of flowers will be on display, each tagged, labeled, and sources indicated.

Unsolicited entries from Denmark and Holland provide about 40 annuals which the foreign growers asked to have compared with similar flowers from U. S. seed houses. The horticulturists explained. In addition, flower seed from Japan, Germany and Holland last year will be repeated, allowing flower lovers the chance to make comparison of specific flowers on a global basis.

While most visitors during the summer months are attracted by the assortment of the flowers, the test gardens are actually maintained for experimental purposes. Careful records are maintained on each species, hybrid, and variety, and these data are tabulated and published for the benefit of seed producers and others interested in annuals.

Annuals will be moved outdoors the week in May, and while flowers will bloom throughout the season, will be at their peak in mid-August. Prof. Meahl indicated.
