PLATE GLASS BRIDGE

A Project to Span the Allegheny River at Creighton Station,

AND CONNECT THE TWO COUNTIES.

The Necessity for a Bridge an Outgrowth of the Glass Industry.

ACCOMMODATIONS IT WOULD SUPPLY

Another bridge across the Allegheny river is projected. If built it will be a direct outgrowth of the plate glass industry. The prospects for building are said to be very encouraging. The bridge will connect Creighton and Tarentum on the Allegheny county side, with Valley Camp and Parnassus in Westmoreland county. Captain James Ford, the wealthy plate glass manufacturer, is interested in the enterprise. There is no foot bridge on the Allegheny between Sharpsburg and Parker's Landing, a distance of 50 miles. Just above Free port there is a railroad bridge. Tarentun has been a growing town for six years past. Its outskirts are Creighton on the south and Avenue on the north. Pittsburg. The result is that the ferrymen do a big business with their skiffs. On the | to keep quiet. other hand, many of the cottagers and vis-, iters of the Valley Camp resort who live in comfortable manner of crossing the river at C reighton.

The plate glass industry in this vicinity is not yet ten years old. Captain Ford built the two big factories at Creighton and Tarentum, which combined form the largest concern of its kind in the world. Hun-dreds of skilled workmen live around the factories. The captain has just recently completed his third plate glass factory up that valley. It is on the opposite side of the river at Kittanning. It, too, employs a very large number of hands. This has increased the traffic immensely between Creighton and Kittanning, in both passen-ger and freight business. This is necessari-ly over the Allegheny Valley Railroad, as the West Penn Railroad leaves the Allegheny river at the mouth of the Kiskiminetas, 15 miles this side of Kittanning. Many of the workmen at the Kittanning factory live at Creighton, and there is always more or less shipment of materials between the

This has made the building of a bridge necessary. It is believed the traffic will fully compensate for the expense. A line of hacks now connect Creighton, Tarentum and Avenue, so that frequent trips would make the bridge accessible to all three towns. The expense of transferring freight cars from the West Penn railroad bridge at Freeport to the Allegheny Valley railroad would be saved by loading the cars from wagons driven across the new bridge at Creighton, and the Valley Camp summer business is estimated at considerable

VERY CLEARLY EXPLAINED. sistant District Attorney Haymaker or

That Starr Indictment. Assistant District Attorney Haymaker vesterday explained the first ignoring of a presentment and finally the indictment of Superintendent A. B. Starr, of the Ft. Wayne Railway, for involuntary man-slaughter and criminal negligence in con-nection with the Federal street fatality, as follows:

Some years ago the tony residents of Stockton avenue complained to Mr. Starr that the blowing of whistles and the ringing of bells in the night time disturbed their slumbers, and they brought such an influence to bear that Superintendent Starr issued an order prohibiting the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles within the city limits, the conclusion that, as each crossing was provided with gates and with a gateman, the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles was wholly unnecessary as a asfeguard. These facts were presented to the last grand jury, and that body did not consider them sufficient upon which to return a true bill. The same facts were presented to the present grand jury, and it did consider them sufficient to warrant the returning of a true bill. I do not know that any influence was brought to bear the first time to have the bill ignored. It does not follow that because the grand jury ignores a bill, there does not exist sufficient grounds for a true bill. I do not think there was anything wrong in either proceeding.

THAT PAPER BAG TRUST.

It Advances Prices, and Each Maker Puts Up a $2,500 Ferfeit.

A paper dealer yesterday commenting on Much of the railroad travel from the secret meeting of the paper bag men at these three towns seeks the A. V. R. R. on the Monongahela House the day before the opposite side of the river for points said: "I saw some of the leading paper bag which the West Penn Railroad does not | makers in the city and talked with a few of touch, or for a direct route to the heart of | them, but they never mentioned the meeting. The clerks of the hotel were instructed

"THE DISPATCH, in its report of the meeting is about right. I understand that Allegheny City would like to travel on the West Penn in summer if there was any each manufacturer in the trust posted a forfeit of $2,500 to maintain prices. I do not approve of trust methods to force prices, but I must say that the bag makers have been losing money for some time. They have been losing money for some time. They have been cutting rates, and Nixon, at Dayton, has had to quit. The other manufacturers have kept their heads above water from the profits they made on other kinds of paper."

RULING THE CONTROLLER OUT. He Will Have Nothing More to Do With Expenses for Insane Indigents. R. C. Elliot, Chief of the Department of Charities, yesterday filed a petition in the Quarter Sessions Court, asking that an order be made authorizing settlements to be made in the future for the indigent insane of Pittsburg between the Superintendent of the hospital at Dixmont and the Department of Charities direct, instead of through the Country Controller, as heretofore; also that the Court, in committing indigent in-sane, should determine the place of settle-ment, and the proper district chargeable, and notify the Department of Charities. A decree was made granting the petition. CASH paid for old gold and silver at Hauch's, No. 295 Fifth ave. WFSu
