

This paper having more than double the circulation of any other in the State outside of Philadelphia, its advantages as an advertising medium will be apparent.

TERMS OF THE DISPATCH.

POSTAGE FREE IN THE UNITED STATES.
DAILY DISPATCH, One Year, in Advance	$ 8.00
DAILY DISPATCH, Per Quarter	2.00
DAILY DISPATCH, One Month	.50
DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, one Year	10.00
DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Quarter	2.50
DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Month	.75
DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Week	.25
WEEKLY DISPATCH, One Year, in Advance	1.50
WEEKLY DISPATCH, Per Quarter	.40
WEEKLY DISPATCH, One Month	.10
WEEKLY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, one Year	1.75
WEEKLY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Quarter	.45
WEEKLY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Month	.15
WEEKLY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, per Week	.05

The Daily Dispatch is delivered by carriers at 10 cents per week, or including the Sunday edition, at 12 cents per week.

PITTSBURG, MONDAY, JAN. 14, 1889.

THE POPULAR MOVEMENT.

The proposition has been received with many expressions of approval to turn to the working classes and small business men for subscriptions to complete the Exposition. It has been plainly said that since the rich men of the city will not do their share, it will be well to leave them to themselves, and to make the enterprise an entirely popular one.

It is possible to think that a movement would stir up the wealthier elements. Although they do not always seem to realize it, the capitalists of Pittsburgh will, on reflection, perceive that it is worth their while to keep in line with measures that promote welfare. The popular goodwill is very valuable to them about the time of Presidential and Congressional elections; and when they see the people rallying to the support of a public enterprise like this, they will also see the policy of joining in the effort.

One thing is certain. Pittsburgh's Exposition must be made a success.

A DESERVED RE-ELECTION.

It is satisfactory to note the unanimous re-nomination, by the Republicans of the Illinois Legislature, of Senator Cullom to succeed himself in the United States Senate, under circumstances which make his re-election a certainty. Senator Cullom shares, with Judge Reagan, the main credit for the passage of the Interstate Commerce act, which, however, he may be by the railway interests, is a long step toward the rectification of the public account books. It is also an indication of his position that he has in the Senate a bill, which, if enacted and enforced, would abolish the oppression and injustice of trusts. Senator Cullom's career has been free from scandals and has been marked by ability and vigor. In contrast with the choice of so many corporate attorneys and corporate millionaires to high positions the re-election of Senator Cullom is a matter of congratulation no less to the public than himself.

BOOMS AND BUBBLES.

Benner's prophecies schedule an active and prosperous year in 1889, with an advance in prices for iron, railroad stocks and all manufacturing commodities. This is to increase in 1890 when "the advance will be wonderful" and a boom will be experienced in everything. By the beginning of 1891 pig iron will be $20 per ton, and the result of such inflation will be a panic, with "commercial and financial revolution and a long down sweep of prices."

This is a very attractive programme for the fellows who are smart enough to realize on the boom and get their business affairs ready for the storm, before 1891. But as it is impossible for everyone to realize, the obvious conclusion is that it is better to jog along soberly and conservatively on a sound basis of prices. It is practical to ignore Mr. Benner's prophecy to the extent that, if pig iron reaches $20 a ton, there will be a panic; and the revolution, as business revolutions generally are, will be a boom. Benner rather redundantly declares, "Commercial and financial revolution and a long down sweep of prices." It is very good to know that calamity will not be blown to any such degree of inflation as he predicts, and consequently will not result in the final explosion.

TABACCO VERSUS WIVES.

The report that Osman Digna is curing his followers of excessive indulgence in the tobacco habit by taking away their wives and other personal property, proves that the many-lived leader of the eastern Sudanese is either very clever in his crusade against tobacco, or else has a decided penchant for appropriating the property of his subordinates. Considering the universal love of the Mohammedans for tobacco, as exemplified by the visions of divans and hookahs which the mention of Mohammedan countries evokes, there is a probability that if Osman continues to surpass King James in his counterblast against the weed he will be obliged to take into his possession the wives and other chattels of the entire population of the Sudan. There may be some among them philosophical enough to find in tobacco a useful property—in the Sudan. If the policy of confiscation is kept up it is likely to result in a conclusion on the part of the Sudanese who they can take their wives and Osman Digna's head at the same time.

A NEW AMBITION.

A very novel theory of crime is presented by the New York Tribune in an editorial comment to the effect that as the man who stabbed his friend fifteen minutes after the New Year came in will be the first to test electricity as an executioner, "it would not be the strangest thing in the world if that thought had a place in his mind when he determined to become a murderer." Apart from the question of crime, there is a man who did the first killing in 1880, or the one whose execution comes first in that year, will have the proud distinction, the idea which represents that fame as a goal to be striven for, is startling and discouraging. If it is true that the adoption of a new method of executing criminals sets the community to rushing out and killing their friends in a mad rush to secure first place in the honor of being fatally struck by lightning, the task of protecting human life looks rather hopeless. The first thought would be that the only way to stop such a competition would be to abolish the death penalty altogether; but even then the idea might continue in operation. Indeed we think that a man would be more likely to kill his next friend in order to secure the notoriety of being the first who escapes execution under a new law, than to compete for the principal position in a novel sort of execution.

EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGES IN STREETS.

The explanation of the traction monopoly bill, just introduced in the Legislature which is offered by its party author in the belief that it will be passed, calls attention to the essential vice of the theory that exclusive ownership can be obtained by private corporations in rights of way through the highways dedicated to the use of the entire public for streets.

Then, it stated, certain street railway companies having been granted the privilege of laying their tracks along the streets, claim an exclusive ownership, and have by that means forbidden other passenger railways, traction and otherwise, from reaching the center of the city. This ownership of the public streets by street railway corporations, is disapproved by the authors of this bill. It is proposed to correct it by a measure which, at least, creates a suspicion that it will transfer the ownership of the streets, for the future, to the traction corporations. The bill is a plan for the plan of the bill, the fact that exclusive privileges in the public streets enable corporations to stand in the way of progress should show the necessity of the principle that corporations shall have exclusive privileges in the public highways. They must have, of course, ownership of the property they put down in the streets, namely, the railway track, with the right to charge tolls for its use. But the way to amend the present state of affairs is not to shift the exclusive privileges from one class of corporations to another.

If the bill provides that no corporations shall have the monopoly of any street, but that the tracks shall be open to the use of all, on equitable terms, suited to the nature of the enterprise, it will be in accordance with fundamental constitutional principles.

SHUTTING OFF BUSINESS.

An interesting illustration of the character of the bill before the Legislature, which, under the pretext of inspection for meat, requires the packing houses to shut off their shuttling out all beef dressed beyond the State lines, appears in the fact that it would shut out a legitimate business, which has been pursued in the cities of this State for many years, without the slightest complaint from anyone. The business of buying green meats in the West, and bringing them here to be cured and packed, has been an undisputed one for the last generation, and is pursued by a number of leading packing houses. Without knowing it, the people who drew up this piece of legislation put it into language which would prohibit their packing houses from curing and packing their own meats.

This is really a minor point behind the main issue of decreasing the supply of cheap meat for the working masses of Pennsylvania shall be cut off; but it affords a fair example of the stupidity which draws up legislation for excluding the products of other States. As to the main issue, that has been stated clearly enough already. It is veiled behind the gauzy pretext of securing healthy meat; but the purpose of making meat more costly is clear enough in the provisions, and is openly avowed by the supporters of the bill. No one asks for the bill except those who are interested in keeping up the prices of meat; and its provisions are exactly those which have been urged by the interested classes for their own benefit.

The DISPATCH position on this matter is plain enough and has been frequently stated. Let us have all the inspection, both in and out of the State, that is necessary to secure safety against diseased meat; but there must be no restriction on the food supply of the people.

A LETTER from California to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, which is largely devoted to booming M. M. Ester for a Cabinet position, concludes with the following prediction: "With Mr. Ester in the Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior he would inaugurate a policy that would give out no uncertain ring." "We should like to see Mr. Ester in the Cabinet, and we should like to see the most prominent thing around that institution would be a certain ring—the Central Pacific ring."

The announcement that Mrs. Potter has "undressed" New York by the revelations of her costume in "Cleopatra" is intended to give the play an immense boom. The public will be quick to leap to the conclusion that any costume which can scandalize New York must be a stunner.

The petition of the commercial drummers that they be allowed special privileges on the railroads, by an amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act, on the ground that they are "commercial evangelists," is typical of the noted characteristic of that class which numbers Sam'l o' Posen as the most retiring and modest man on the road. They will next be claiming halloo tickets by virtue of their clerical character as "evangelists."

It is instructive to observe that Voorhees and Turpie voted against the amendment proposed in the Senate, putting coal on the free list. The fact that Indiana is producing considerable coal nowadays gives the eminent Democrats considerable new light on the tariff question.

The Philadelphia Press notes that "an individual likely to be prominent in the Pennsylvania Legislature this year is a familiar name as 'Revenue Bill.'" But it omits to state that in the last Legislature, between the Governor and the President of the Senate, the same individual was reduced to a condition that can only be described by the title of "Horizontal Bill."

REPRESENTATIVE WEAVER has ceased to squabble the House, having got what he wants out of it. The next man who wishes something and can't get it will, we hope, squabble it until it perceives that self-protection can only be secured by abolishing all special jobs.

Governor HILL's official recommendation that Ex-Presidents be made life members of the United States Senate has not been received with especial enthusiasm. The suspicion that David Bennett Hill regards it as a possible provision for his

TO SAVE THE EARTH.

An Interesting Crank Who is Persuading Congressmen—How Dr. Cahill Would Accomplish His Work With Water—Waste Places to be Turned Into Gardens.

WASHINGTON, January 13.—Every member of the United States Senate and every member of the House of Representatives is being troubled with cranks. They are about the Capitol proper, and they even attack the public men there at long range, by telegraph and by mail. An interesting and rather amusing crank has been following the Committee on Commerce for some time. He is a philanthropist, and one who wants to save the earth from destruction and the inhabitants of the earth from eternal damnation. His means to accomplish this most desirable end has the merit of novelty. He finds that the salvation of the earth and its people is to be obtained only through the agency of water. He has experimented with water with much better results than have followed its use and abuse by the Prohibitionists. Some time ago the committee received a letter from Michael Cahill, M. D. The letter explained that the writer had been experimenting with sand in the belief that it could be a fertilizer and that the water which it contained should be used for several days.

One morning the explanation of its contents was received in a letter from San Francisco by Michael Cahill, M. D. The letter explained that the writer had been experimenting with sand in the belief that it could be a fertilizer and that the water which it contained should be used for several days.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Mrs. Susan Hale is giving readings for charity in Washington.

Francis Jackson Harrison now has $40,000 insurance on his life.

Prop. Freeman is hard at work at Palermo on his Sicilian history. His health is said to be greatly improved.

Thos. E. Outright, Southern, who died at Ashland, near Perth, Wales, the other day, was the last surviving son of the poet.

Young men are coming to the front in New York State. The Speaker of the House, only 22 and the Speaker pro tem, of the Senate 33. The oldest Statesman in the Legislature is only 51.

President Cleveland does not bother himself about the details of a state dinner. He leaves all the arrangements to his wife, who is a South Carolina social case of everything pertaining to the banquet.

"Mark Twain" lost his hat and coat at a recent ball in Connecticut, and was obliged to retrieve them from a Committee from the island of Spheeris in order to study the cyprian walk, about which he is preparing a report. In the excavations on the Athenian Acropolis, the bones of a man and a woman, of natural size, with the heads perfect, and of an archaic period; also two groups in Poros stone of heroic life. Of these, the one represents a Hercules killing the Triton, the other is composed of three monsters, of each of which the upper part has the body of a man and the lower that of a serpent. One of the wings. They belong to a very remote epoch.

TO TEST A GLUTTON.

One of the most remarkable eating contests on record outlined.

MEDIA, PA., Jan. 13.—A body in Media who heard of it are laughing over a wager that was made to-day between a well-known business man of the town and two other parties, who had bet that the latter could eat a large meal of iron and steel canisters. The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water through the planet's crust to explode and conflagrate her. Daniel, vii, 12. Peter iii, Holy Bible. The "recurring earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and other natural calamities" are all attributed to these causes and are said to be the result of the "accumulation of the elements of the earth." The contest was to be held on the physical destruction of the earth by the accumulation around the poles exerting pressure on the globe, and the water