These ladies were called by Mrs. Whitney's reception, and the conversation turning on New Year's Day, its perfection, the reception at the White House, and Mrs. Cleveland's toilettes, one of the Cabinet ladies remarked: "Yes, and Mrs. Cleveland's portrait ought to be painted for the White House in that superior creation worth designed for her."

Anthony presiding, and making a short address. Miss Anthony was followed by Mr. Riddle and Senator Blair. The latter referred in words of high commendation to the work of the women in Boston in "rescuing our public schools," and thought that the Republican party should make the adoption of the measure an important plank in its platform. He urged the promoters of the movement to demand suffrage as a right, and predicted for the ultimate success.
