day and week day gatherings is simply wonderful.

The Pennsylvania Dutch. It is singular that for a county usually classed in the Dutch agricultural region there should be such an overwhelming Republican majority.

Here is the reason. The old-time Dutch and their descendants here are divided into three religious sects, the Menonites, the Amish and the Dunkards, or Trunkers.

They are Republicans as distinguished from the newer race of Germans, the Lutherans, Reformed church and Catholics, who are largely Democratic.

A Menonite Interviewed. This county has the honor of having for one of its citizens the oldest living Menonite minister in this country—Mr. A. J. ...

Mr. Martin is marvelously well preserved. He has been using tobacco for many years, but he has no doubt accounts for his personal liberty opinion of the amendment.

Perhaps the briefest interview I have yet had upon the attitude of the two great political parties on this question fell to the lot of my pencil this evening in the ...

Understand that this is my estimate at this time. No one can tell what the campaign may bring forth. It will be a party question, ...

Personally Opposed to It. I myself do not expect to vote for the prohibitory amendment. My personal feelings are opposed to that sort of legislation.

Republicans to whom I talked all predicted a heavier majority in Lancaster against the amendment than Mr. Hensel did.
