A WILLING WITNESS.

Sensational Allegations Made Before the Parnell Commission.

AMERICA IS A HOT-BED FOR CRIME,

According to the Tale Unfolded by This Knowing Informer.

SULLIVAN DENIES HIS ASSERTIONS.

And Says There Was Nothing Planned Which is Not Open to the World.

The latest informer again testified before the Parnell Commission yesterday. He swore to revolutionary conversations with Sullivan, Egan and others, and connected Parnell with these views. He had a pat answer ready for every question asked by the Attorney General. He asserted that torpede boats were built in America for use against England. Davitt rebuked the witness for impertinence.

LONDON, February 6.-Witness Beech, alias Major Le Caron, was on the stand again to-day before the Parnell Commission, and gave some very sensational testimony. The witness, in his testimony, referred to the building of two torpedo boats. One, he Jersey side of the Hudson river for four months. It was never used against British ships. After describing the experiments with the torpedo boats in America, he said that Mr. John O'Connor, an agent emrepresentative of the Supreme Council of the Irish Republican Brotherhood.

Sir Richard Webster, the Times counsel, read a document showing that foreign news-papers were subsidized in behalf of the Irish uspirators. When Mr. Parnell entered the courtroom his appearance created a de-cided sensation. The witness looked stead-ily at Parnell for several moments. Con-Attorney General Webster-How did you Witness—By the underground telegraph. Attorney General Webster—What is that? Witness-Through associating with those in the confidence of the brotherhood. Everything I did not know I tried to get in any way I could. Of my own knowledge I know that Sullivan went to England.

SULLIVAN'S STATEMENT. reply to a question witness then said that Sullivan, upon returning from En-gland, made a statement to him. Sir Chas. Russell objected to the reception of this statement in evidence, and Chief Justice Hannen said that the question in its present form was inadmissible. The witness, on Sir Charles Russell's request, left the courtroom., While he was absent, Chief Justice Hannen said that if the question had been formed to elicit an answer to the effect that there was any arrangement come to regarding something to be done in the future, then it was obvious that a statement of what had occurred might legitimately form a part of the answer to such question. When the witness returned, Attorney General Webster

"Did you converse with Sullivan regard-ing plans for future warfare?" Witness—Yes. Attorney General Webster-Did Sullivan refer to what passed with any of the leaders in the United Kingdom?

witness, being questioned regarding what transpired about the future, said that Sullivan, referring to Gallagher's arrest, in-formed him that in future men would be chosen for the work who did not exceed their orders like Gallagher. Witness asked in what way, and Sullivan replied that Gal-lagher had neglected his instructions and had given himself away; that he had concerted with Rossa's men, who told Jim Me-Dermott, who informed the Government, Sullivan also said that they would continue to send men to England to carry on an

FUNDS FOR WAR.

Attorney-General Webster then read other circulars issued by the Brotherhood, which the witness said he had received and copied. In these circulars appeals were made for further exertions to enlarge the special fund and foster the movement. Reference was made to the men who carried their hands and whose destruction would follow a discovery of their plans. The witness remembered conversing in February, 1883, with Colonel Clingham, when something was said about Parnell coming to America. The Attorney-General asked what was said, and Sir Charles Russell objected to the question.

Chief Justice Hannen-Is it suggested that Mr. Parnell went to America. Attorney-General Webster-No. Mr. Parnell did not go. But I desire to elicit who did go. Chief Justice Hannen-If it is intended to show that a meeting was arranged at which Mr. Parnell was expected, then the question is admissible.

The witness stated that Parnell and Egan were expected at the meeting. Mr. Parnell did not go to America in 1883. Egan came and stayed a few days with Sullivan. 1883, witness received a circular of instruc-tions intended for the exclusive use of senior guardians. In this circular every branch of the organization was commanded to endeavor to perfect itself in some particular branch of warfare.

CALLED DOWN BY DAVITT. The open convention of the League met in Philadelphia on April 26, 1883. Before the convention witness was instructed to secure the largest possible attendance. Egan, Mooney and Bolan summoned the convention. Witness attended as the Clanna-Gael delegate of the Braidwood, Ill., Camp. He also represented the League. Ecan did not attend the secret meeting. Egan did not attend the secret meetings, but he requested the witness to inform him of all the details of the discussions, and declared that the programme was satisfactory to all nationalists. Mr. Davitt here asked if anyone he knew was present.
Witness-Yes, several. Every gentleman you know in Chicago was present at one time or another. Mr. Davitt-Don't be impertinent.

Witness—I beg pardon. I did not intend to be importment.

"Witness said he saw Egan constantly during the convention. After the convention the Land League became the National League, of which Sullivan was President. Attorney General Webster read an official report of the convention in which it was stated that the convention deeply regretted the absence of Mr. Parnell. Another por-tion of the report denounced Mr. Gladstone as a weak time server, and stated that the members of the convention hated England more intensely than did anyone in Ireland.
The convention hoped that Mr. Parnell would continue to work for the realization of national independence.

WHO WERE PRESENT. Witness stated that Thomas Brennan attended the secret meetings, which it would have been impossible for him to have attended unless he had been a member of the "I. B. B." or "M. B." Frank Byrne attended the open convention, but was not present at the secret meetings. Sheridan was not present at the secret meetings. Daly, of Castlebar, attended the secret meetings, but did not attend the open convention, which he denounced. Attorney General Webster here read some accounts, including items of $27,102 sent to Egan in Paris, and $12,903 sent to Parnell. He also read from the report of the conven-tion a speech by Brennan, in which the latter declared that he would continue his latter declared that he would continue his exertion until the last vestige of landlordism and foreign rule, "those twin jailers" of the Irish race," was swept from the country. The Attorney General also quoted from a cable dispatch sent by Parnell to Mooney on April 26, 1883.

In this dispatch Mr. Parnell asks Mooney to present his views to the convention, and advise the delegates to frame a platform advise the delegates to frame a platform that will enable the Nationalists to continue that will enable he Nationalist to confide to accept American assistance, while avoid-ing offering England a pretext for the entire suppression of the Nationalist movement, which, he says, is the only means for prewhich, he says, is the only means for pre-serving the unity of the Irish movement in Ireland and America. He expressed him-self as perfectly confident that the Irish cause will continue to advance by the ex-ercise of prudence, moderation and firmness. Another circular that was read advised the members of the organization to be patient, the cause having previously suffered through become involved in a war. In the mean-time a secret war would be carried on.

INFORMERS DOOMED.

All informers, the circular said, were foredoomed. The Attorney General here suggested that this referred to Carey. While in Milwaukee, witness continued, Sullivan said to him that the active operations were entirely in the hands of the revolutionary directory of their own organization, but said, was a failure; the other lay on the New Jersey side of the Hudson river for four shown, and the directory had found it impossible to get men from the home organiza-tion to do the work.

Sullivan said that in future every one chosen should be without family, and be an old and tried member. No new member ployed for carrying arms to Ireland, at-tended the "B. C." conference in 1881 as a Irish constables had arrived in America to try to join the organization and learn its secrets. Before departing on the expeditionevery man would be instructed in the use and management of explosives.

At the end of 1883 there was a split in the organization, the seceders retaining the old name, while the others, under Sullivan's leadership, founded a new secret organiza-tion entitled the "U. S." The Executive was reduced to three members, their badge tinuing his testimony, witness said that he sent copies of all documents of the brother-hood to the English Government at the time. Since then they had not been in his from Australia and traveled through the possession. Sullivan, he said, went to En-gland in 1882, and remained there two "U.S." attended the reception held in their honor. In August, 1884, a League convention was held in Boston. Between January and August witness did not see the Red-monds. The only difference between the two sections was the sign for the Executive.

> LE CARON'S MISREPRESENTATIONS. Alexander Sullivan Scatters His Evidence to the Four Winds.

CHICAGO, February 6.-Mr. Alexander Sullivan ex-President of the Irish National League in America, was interviewed by an Associated Press reporter to-day in regard to the statements made about him by Dr. Le Caron in the Times-Parnell trial in London, yesterday. Mr. Sullivan said that he knew the man who went here by the name of Dr. Le Caron, only as he knew hundreds of other men who attended League conventions, and professed great interest in the Irish cause. Le Caron represented himself to be a Frenchman who had been in the Union army, and later in the Fenian or-ganization. Le Caron said his wife was Irish and he was ready to die for Ireland and constantly declared his Irish sympathy. Mr. Sullivan said he had never conversed with Le Caron about Mr. Parnell or about any subject which was not perfectly open to the world. He believed there was not a par-Witness—Yes, later in the day.

Chief Justice Hannen said that that did not connect it with the statement. The witness, being questioned regarding what ment. The fact that Le Caron had to bolster ticle of foundation for his statement that up his statement with a photograph of Mr. Parnell, on which the Irish leader had inscribed his autograph, was evidence of its weakness. Almost anyone who is sufficiently persistent could get the autograph of any public man. Thousands of people, Mr. Sullivan said, have autographs of Messrs. Cleveland and Harrison, who have no intimate acquaintance with these gentlemen. The meeting Mr. Parnell addressed in Chicago was presided over by Governor, now United States Senator, Cullum. Clergymen of all denominations and citizens fro every walk in life were on the platform. Mr. Parnell had nothing to do with extending invitations to that meeting nor with any of its details. He arrived in the city barely in time to go from the train to the meeting. The whole story was another desperate effort to give some color of excuse for continuing the case against Mr. Parnell. In due time, Mr. Sullivan believed, Mr. Parnell would dispose of all this evidence to the world's satisfaction.
