

TIPS TO TRAVELERS.

Henry Haynie Tells Americans How to Live Comfortably in Paris AT A COST OF SIX FRANCS PER DAY.

The Sights of the Gay Capital and How Visitors May Enjoy Them WITHOUT PAYING A DOUBLE PRICE

(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH.)

PARIS, March 7. ROM England there are three routes to Paris—the Dover-Calais and the Folkestone-Line, either of which lands you in Gare du Nord, and the Newhaven and Dieppe, which puts you down in the Gare St. Lazare.

There is also a fourth route via Southampton to Havre by boat and thence by rail to Paris, which you may take and which also lands you in the Gare St. Lazare station.

These routes may be divided into as many categories—that is to say the quickest, the best and the cheapest. If you voyage by the Red Star Line—they have two or three steamers which are excellent and all the captains are staunch Americans, although the vessels sail under the Belgian flag.

Speaking of railway carriages, the lines in England are more comfortable than those in France, yet traveling in both countries is dearer than it is in the United States.

Looking for dynamite. From Southampton a special train leaves at once for London, as soon as your baggage has been examined—and rest assured that it will be searched—in hopes, I suppose, of discovering dynamite, since the English books on spirits, all of which are contraband to British inspectors.

There is much less of roidness and not so much richness in this city as you might wish for, but there is a neatness in the external aspect of things beyond your anticipation.

cheaper still, though you will have to pass five or six hours on the channel. This route lands you at Havre, and thence you can ride through Normandy—a much more picturesque country than you would come through if you entered Paris by the north-west line.

PARISIAN PECULIARITIES. Now you have entered into a beautiful city and at the same time may be in a world of worry, of vexation and of much personal distress if you are not careful.

There will be carriages with servants in splendid liveries; smoking habits with knoeked plugs in the shafts, and great carts drawn by powerful Normandy stallions, all along in single file, with large hazy collars that give them, at a distance, the look of buffaloes.

RIGHTS OF THE CITY. It is a lovely ride through Kent if you go by way of Folkestone, a quiet route with steep gabled houses of red or gray sandstone and shining slated roofs, and there you will find a splendid view of the sea across the terrible channel.

His Personal Experience. L. T. Harrington, ex-Sheriff of Chautauqua county, New York, writes: "I am glad to get from a long personal experience with ALLCOCK'S PAIN EXPELLERS, that it is an able to endorse all the good things that have ever been said about them, and supplement them by saying that I frankly believe in their use, and that I have used them with success in all cases where their use is indicated."

PEARSON invites all to his galleries, 96 Fifth Avenue or 45 Federal street, Allegheny. The best place for fine work.

Grand, Continental, Bristol, Meurice, Chatham, Windsor, Athlete, Binda, Rhin, Bade, Normandy, St. Petersburg, Loreve and Liverpool. As for boarding places and pensions, they stretch out all over the capital, and very few of them are bad places.

CHAMP LIVING. The cheapest I have yet discovered is about 6 francs per day, and no one ought to enter a cheaper one. The average price is from 10 francs per day each person.

RATIONAL ADVICE. If you take an apartment or lodgings in Paris, you must know how to choose your place, and in this way you can try all the cuisines of the many famous restaurants that surround the capital.

DISCRIMINATION NECESSARY. Not all newspapers are helpful, and not all people are helped by reading newspapers. If you read it all, you have no discrimination. If you spend too much time over it, you are idle.

TAKE HEED. I have spoken at this length about novels, because they are, as I said, of all books, the most frequently and eagerly read.

READ NEWSPAPERS. Is the Earnest Advice and Counsel of Rev. George Hodges, but DISCRIMINATION IS NECESSARY.

HOW TO SELECT BOOKS FOR CHILDREN. VERY Christian citizens ought to read the Bible and the newspaper every day. I spoke last Sunday about the reading of the Bible.

we like to read about them. Some may regret that metaphysics, or even theology, is not so popular as fiction, but it is a regret.

A FOOLISH CRY. It is foolish, then, to say "do not read novels." But this fact makes it all the more necessary to apply to novels, the motto of the motto: "take heed what you read."

Some Interesting Details of the Life of Rev. George M. Scott, MRS. HARRISON'S GRANDFATHER.

Carrying Guns to Defend the Congregation From Indians.

WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATCH.

HE Rev. George M. Scott, the grandfather of Mrs. President Harrison, was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, about 20 miles from Philadelphia, November 14, 1739.

During the summer of 1798 Rev. Mr. Scott came West and preached in the church of Mill Creek, located in the south end of Beaver county. The church was then under the care of the Presbytery of Ohio.
