

A VERY BLACK EYE

Given Street Railway Legislation at the State Capital.

THE DISLIKES OF POLITICIANS

Push the Necessities of the Case to One Side for a Quarrel.

ORDERS STRAIGHT FROM M. S. QUAY

Against Mage and Appointment and for Closing the Session.

Quay's orders against street railway legislation makes an opening for Mage. Two Alleghenians aid the effort. The National Chairman settles the appointment matter in favor of Delamater and will crack the whip to force an adjournment. Senator Grady tells why it is necessary, and the chances of some candidates are discussed in connection with the Lieutenant Governorship.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

HARRISBURG, March 16.—Mr. Quay's implacable enmity to Mr. Mage or anything even remotely connected with him is held by those on the inside to be fully shown in the action of the Street Railways Committee of the House in sending to that body with a negative recommendation all street railway bills. Mr. Mage, it is stated without reservation, wants legislation of that kind, and has sent bills there. Mr. Mage, however, is not alone in his desire. A considerable number of the third-class cities are with him, and it will be difficult to convince them all that they should suffer just because the Chairman of the National Republican Committee doesn't like the Republican leader of Pittsburg.

As is well known the State is without any law under which street railways may be incorporated, the Supreme Court having decided the act of 1878 unconstitutional. It is generally admitted that something to take its place is needed. A bill was introduced, beginning with the somewhat noted one which contained a section forbidding a new street railway to parallel the line of an existing street railway within 1,000 feet. Other bills wholly unobjectionable were introduced, among them one from Philadelphia and another from Washington. But neither Stanley Quay's orders have gone forth, and he intends that they shall be obeyed.

ALLEGHENY MEN AT WORK

The Street Railways Committee met on Thursday evening. Persons on the inside had pointed before the meeting that an order had been received to kill the bills that had just come over from the Senate, one of which was particularly acceptable. It was presumed, to the Pittsburg leader. A gentleman who heard about the meeting from a friend on the committee received some information particularly interesting to people of this section. He says Representative Robinson, of Allegheny, went into the meeting expecting to hear arguments on the bills. No one appeared to talk for them and the sentiment of the committee seemed to be very much against them. The committee was about to go into executive session and Representative Robinson was on the point of retiring, but before going mentioned to the committee that he thought there were at least two gentlemen in the city who desired to be heard from in favor of the measure.

"Who are they?" inquired Chairman Keyser.

"They are Walter Lyon, Esq., and Arthur Kennedy, of Allegheny's Common Council," replied Mr. Robinson. "I would like to hear them in a short time if the committee will postpone action."

"I will hardly be necessary to go to that trouble," said Mr. Keyser.

"I have talked with both gentlemen, and the action we take will be perfectly satisfactory to them."

Before leaving for home that same night, Mr. Kennedy, in a very happy frame of mind, said to the inquiring DISPATCH correspondent that he had not discovered his business in Harrisburg.

"There is a splendid opening," said a gentleman commenting on the circumstances, "for Mr. Quay to strike a blow that Mr. Quay will remember. All Mr. Mage needs is a word from the House, well, to move on the floor of the House that some one of the street railway bills be placed on the calendar."

A POLITICAL PARADOX.

"It is not probable, of course, that this could be done, and in fact it is not a purpose it would be much better to have the motion defeated. Such a defeat might not be a victory, but it would be a long step in that direction. Mr. Quay, before the State, through his legislative majority, in the position of stranding necessary legislation to gratify private political animosity. The defeat of the street railway bill would be something which his friends could use to good advantage in future party contests to point a moral. But much of the advantage to be gained by the action of Mr. Quay will be lost unless some friend of the Pittsburg chief places the death struggle on exhibition."

Street railway legislation is not the only subject on which Mr. Quay has issued orders. His decree has gone forth against Senator appointment and in favor of an early adjournment. Early in the session Senator Rutzan placed an appointment bill in the hands of Mr. Pugh, of Somerset, Chairman of the House Appropriation Committee. That was the end of it. Mr. Pugh received a pointer from Senator Delamater that nothing of the kind was desired. Mr. Pugh received the pointer in a friendly spirit, and leaned strongly to the view that the time for the next United States census is near at hand that it is hardly worth the effort to apportion until that census furnishes the new basis of representation. "Because," he argued, "the work would all have to be done over again." It had been Senator Rutzan's intention to have the bill first pass the House as a mere matter of form, and to have that much of the work quickly out of the way. Mr. Pugh's failure to call his committee together disconcerted this plan, but the Allegheny Senator was not to be balked, and introduced his bill in the Senate. But Mr. Quay says no, and another point is scored in favor of the political leadership of Senator Delamater, so far as the Beaver statesman can fix it. But even he is not omnipotent. Ten Republican Senators declined to how to his will on Thursday when the motion to adjourn was rushed over from the House, Senators Steel and Upperman being among the number. Nine Democrats and the Lieutenant Governor helped them defeat the adjournment, but the party whip will be cracked, and it is not unlikely that it will make some of the gentlemen move back into the line.

THE REASON FOR ADJOURNMENT.

Senator Grady, the President pro tem, seemed to give away the animating motive of the adjournment resolution when he said in effect that thus far the Legislature had not "put its foot in it." This carried with it the inference that there was no telling what mistakes might be made and it was better to get the Legislature away before it got to rushing through measures as imperfect as Senator Grady and some others among most of the legislation of two years ago was. Mr. Quay desires no mistakes.

Senator Cooper these times is cheerful as a schoolboy, and doesn't care who knows how happy it makes him feel to be harmonious, with the rewards of harmony looming up not very far before him. During the most exciting part of the debate on adjournment he approached a little group of correspondents, told them a funny story and went away laughing. But he missed one of the points of the debate, and was ready at any moment to take advantage of any opening that showed itself to make a home thrust. He was for adjournment first, last and all the time.

The promise of the Collectors of the Port of Philadelphia has taken Mr. Cooper out of the Governorship race, leaving no formidable opponent of Senator Delamater in the East. Senator Mylin, of Lancaster, had been considered for some time as the possible successor of Lieutenant Governor Davies, but it has recently been intimated that he would be laid aside. This intimation is in a great measure confirmed by his vote against adjournment. Senator Watres, of Scranton, and Edward Martin, Esq., of Lancaster, are among those most prominently mentioned now. There is also a report that Lancaster county, whose politicians felt rather sore because of the retirement of Thomas Cochran from the Chief Clerkship of the Senate, may be mollified by his reelection to the place, in case Russell Errett should go back to the Pittsburg Pension Agency. There is no sure thing, though, about any such deal as this. SIMPSON.

Your Attention! Please.

Saturday was a very busy day at our store. We sold men's fine tailor-made suits and spring overcoats at $10 which could not be believed in advertising our business by means of popular sales. Give the public the benefit of our bargain. At our store on Monday you'll get an excellent selection of suits and spring overcoats at $10 and $12, some high grade ones at $15. Our latest men's suits is the Glenmore. Don't fail to see it.

The Rush for Carpets and Curtains

Begins with the idea of March, and there is a time when it is difficult to get what you want in our store at this season. We have outgrown that, and can attend to all that come. Clerks enough here to police a city like Pittsburg.
