Productive Prospects Which Might Prove Very Obnoxious.

ANOTHER DEAL ALMOST COMPLETED

Dan O'Day, the great Standard Oil man, was in the city yesterday representing the big corporation in a very delicate mission. He went home again last night, and, as he sat in the Union depot restaurant, and a rethe mysterious errand that had brought him here, the big man simply frowned, closed his eyes, pressed his lips together, and then he shook his head like a lion that has caught a lamb in his grasp and defies the

than a little producer himslf, was better inclined to talk on the affairs of the great ambassador of the only "Standard," and, in a "confidential" chat, imparted this informs-

"The developments in the newly-discovered Crafton field have proved to be fraught with the most susprising prospect of a grand new boom in the production of oil. Only a few oil wells have been drilled; but they are all of such caliber that the territory is sought after by all the oil men in the business. Joe Craig is a large owner, and there are several other prominent producers who would like to be. All the pipe lines in Pittsburg and the vicinity have been around hunting for the producers. "This business was also a part of Mr.

O'Day's mission. The great oil company, which is known as the richest corporation in the world, could never think of allowing anybody to control the oil production of the Crafton field, to be piped into Pittsburg by any other concern but the Standard Oil

Standard Gil Company this time. "But it is not only the product which the Standard is after; they want to control the whole field. The wells which have been drilled so far are all pretty good wells, averaging from 100 to 150 barrels of oil per day. The field is very large, in fact, on account of the little drilling which has been done as yet, its extent cannot now be properly real-

He Arrived Last Night, but He Could Not be Induced to Talk Business. As usual, the limited was again late last night. But as the news had come to Pittsburg that Mr. Andrew Carnegie was expected to arrive in town on that train the reporters did not mind waiting 35 minutes. When the Pittsburg steel king jumped off the car, however, accompanied by Mrs. Carnegie, he did not feel disposed to allow himself to be interviewed, and the following chat was all that could be obtained

"Is it true, Mr. Carnegie, that you have a part interest in some of the Southern iron and steel works?"

"No; my interests are all centered in Pittsburg, and Southern furnaces are not owned by me in any shape or form."
"When are you going to speak before

Mitchel, Esq., of the death of John Jennings, Esq., of Dubuque, Ia. The family is well known among the elder residents of this city. In 1852 they, in common with many other Western Pennsylvanians, went to Dubuque. John, the eldest son, practiced law. He was a member of the Iowa State Senate once, and was nominated for the United States Senate; but, as Iowa doesn't send Democrats to the United States Senate, of course Mr. Jennings did not make the riffic, although, had the contest depended on popularity, he might have made it.

Henrietta Black Satines—our great specialty Another year will see a worderful rush fo this beautiful fabric—glossiest of black, fast t the last, no matter what the test, while th dainty white printings are in the simplest an most pleasing patterns. American Fancy Satines—hard to distinguish from the French, so fine are they and in such striking and excellent designs. Prices lowest here for reliable and best makes.

Ginghams—No end of them; the stock is larger than a month azo, in spite of the cease-less trade. Never goods coming in right along. Scotch and Yankee. The best that each can turn out, nip and tuck as to who's in the lead of this wonderful Gingham procession. Twould take a convention of women from all over the United States to decide. These Ginghams have already gotten to Nebraska, California and other far away places; they know Good Ginghams out there, and buy 'em on sight. Samples are a great institution for the far off friends of this Gingham part of the store. The hubbub and apparent confusion at Kleber Bros.' piano room is altogether indescribable. Half a dozen pianos go out to purchasers and half a dozen others come in by fast railroad delivery every day. Every-body seems to want to buy at Klebers', 506 Wood street, because they know that the choice of pianos and organs is tound only at Klebers', and that the honest and reliable dealings of that house are a guarantee they Klebers', and that the honest and reliable dealings of that house are a guarantee they will get their money's worth and will be safe under all circumstances. "Did he not get several half pint flasks of liquor in your place on the evening before election day?"
"I don't know."
Mrs. Theresa Heyl, 113 Juniata street, was a good-looking young widow who keeps a saloon and restaurant. She has a good record, and the only objection made was that she was near the Sixth ward schoolhouse.

Charles G. Krancher, 250 Beaver avenue, is a German. He is badly crippled and approached the table slowly, leaning heavily on his crutches. He did not apply last year as he started a restaurant. His wife is a good-looking lady, and answered the questions. They have been in the restaurant business 12 years. The Court said that she should have applied for a license, as he is so badly crippled that he could not personally supervise the saloon. The Court said the would take the case under consideration.

George Schaffint 282 Franklin street cours Court said he would take the case under consideration.

George Schaffint, 282 Franklin street, owns six houses. The Court remarked that he would not give a man a license when so many poor men and "widow women" are applying.

John E. Windle, 397 Beaver avenue, was the last one heard at the afternoon session. He has a saloon. He has been working at the locomotive works during the year.

Allegheny city will be completed to-day by all means. The first three days of next week will be taken in considering the applications. When the decisions will be made the Court did not announce. The boroughs and townships will be taken up next Wednesday. The number of men who wanted to look after foreigners in the morning was large. There were men who wanted to start hotels for Bohemians, for Swiss, for French, for English, and for about every nationality under the sun but the residents about the North Pole.
