AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY.

Its Pleasures, and the Improvements Made in the Necessary Outfit.

Amateur photography has come into existence in the last eight or nine years. The introduction of the dry plate photography so cleanly, so pleasant and so simple that many people took up the art as an amusement.

The most difficult part of photography is the lighting. Even the most skillful professional, who has fine galleries and all the necessary apparatus, often make failures.

There are many prominent men who are amateur photographers. The Hon. S. W. Tilden, Assistant Secretary of State, is an expert.

AMATEUR SOCIETIES.

The Work Done by Them and Their Advantages to Beginners.

Amateur photographers societies are a great advantage to beginners. The first society formed in this country was the Photographic Society of the American Institute.

HINTS TO BEGINNERS.

The first thing for a beginner in amateur photography to do is to buy a good outfit. He should buy a good price and get a camera with all the modern improvements.

use different sized lenses. The camera should be light and the tripod steady, as it is important that the apparatus should stand as rigid as possible.

Beginners should not use a very rapid plate, as these require accurate timing to produce good pictures. Of course accurate timing is necessary with every plate to allow first-class work.

Printing is not so important for the beginner to attempt, as it is difficult to learn. The negative can be placed in the hands of a professional printer who is skilled in the character of the negative, can make a better print than the beginner.

to include in the pastime. Every amateur who takes it up and goes through the country taking views induces others to join the ranks.

The improvements in photography have enabled it to be applied to many uses to which it was formerly not available.

A WORLD-WIDE MARKET.

That is the Secret of One Specialty Manufacturer's Success—Only Specialists or Rich Men Make It.

Speaking of the depression in the iron trade, a prominent broker, who does much business with iron manufacturers and knows their condition almost as well as they themselves do, and better than almost any other outsider, says: "Most of the manufacturers who are out of debt and operate largely are making good money."
