The author of "Don't" this week answers a number of questions from persons who wish to know what is the proper thing to do in embarrasing positions in which they ocessionally find themselves placed while mingling in the gay and giddy whirl of 1. Will you kindly tell me if white shoes should be worn with a light dress at an evening party? 2. What gloves should be worn with a black costume?

WEDDING RECEPTIONS. I attended a wedding reception, and upon entering was presented to the bride for the first time. After the most formal greetings I passed on through the room to an adjoining apartment; as there were many guests and the hostess much occupied, there seemed no opportunity to again speak with her. Should I have made an attempt to have done so, and was it right to go off without taking leave, or should she have made an effort to come to me?

England "Esq." must always be added to the name of the person addressed, if he is a gentleman. This rule is adopted by many persons here, but others disregard it. In passing an acquaintance on the street, going in the same direction as oneself, is it courtesy to turn and greet him or her? Certainly. It would be very rude to pass a person under the circumstances described without saluting him; it may be even questioned whether a person can pass another in this way without some exhibition of rudeness, even if the salute is given; but no doubt it is often necessary. Lord Chesterfield laid down some rigid rules for the promenade, declaring that a man sound in limbs should never pass a lame

Banquet and Ball. The coming Randall Club reception and banquet, set for Tuesday evening, the 23d instant, omises to be the social event of the Easter week festivities. As a social as well as a political organization the Randalis keep well to the front, organization the Randalls keep well to the front, and anything they undertake may be safely counted on to be a success beforehand. In the present case, the preparations exceed anything ever attempted by the club, and they have had some pretty-big affairs.

The entire accommodations of New Turner Hall and the gymnasium building adjoining have been engaged. The latter building will be used on this occasion as a banquet hall, and is capable of seating over 390 at one time. Kennedy and his attaches will have charge of the banquet, and the menu will be of the best. Tourgee and his orchestra will occupy the stage in the dancing hall. The Haydn Quartet will render a programme of their choicest vocal selections at intervals during the evening. Elliot will have charge of the decorations, to which the club will add their own flags and banners. Suitable music will be furnished for the banquet hall.

Full dress will be in order, but only obligatory on the very large floor committee. The usual white sain badges of the club and buttoniere will be worn by the members.

The Committee of Arrangements have been untiring in their efforts to make the occasion one of thorough enjoyment to all who may be present. It is the intention to have the banquet hall opened immediately after the grand march, which will take place about 10 b clock.

The Twenty-fifth Ward Debating Society held a largely attended meeting last Wednesday evening at the residence of John and George Henry. The question discussed, "Which is the Most Precious Animal Living?" aroused much interest. Next Friday evening the society will visit and entertain the Knights of the Golden Eagle Lodge. A special programme has been arranged.

One of the pleasant events of last week was a luncheon given Saturday afternoon from 3 to 7 by Miss Laura Idlewood Josenhaus, of Rebecca street, Allegheny. Those present were Misses Ettle and Ciara Weihl, Maggie Young, Lydia Cochran, May Glesencamp, Lillie Campbell and others. The afternoon was agreeably spent with the usual parlor games, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, dancing, and rambling on Monument Hill.

A pleasant surprise party was held at the residence of Mr. James Pettigrew, Norton avenue, Mt. Washington, Saturday, April 6, in honor of his wife's 54th birthday. Among the guests were 11 of their own family, five of whom are married, with their families, numbering 25 in all, also Mr. T. Elliott, of Ohio. After supper Mrs. Pettigrew was presented by the family with a handsome gold watch and chain, a pair of gold rimmed spectacles and several other articles. The evening was spent with vocal and instrumental master.

Campbell, took place at 6 o'clock at the bride's home, only the relatives and immediate friends being present. The bride, attired in a simple dress of white tulle, looked as chaste and beautiful as the Illies of the valley she carried. The house was tastefully decorated with Easter flowers, La France roses and smilar. The Gernert-Guenther otchestra, concealed behind a screen of tropical plants, gave pleasing selections all evening. After a delicious supper, the young couple left, amid the congratulations and good wishes of the guests, for a short trip to some of the Eastern cities, after which they go to their new home in St. Augustine, Fla.

THE First Regiment, after adopting numer ous resolutions and indulging in considerable talk, have concluded to go to New York just the same as their humble comrades in other commands decided to do several weeks ago. A good lively kick counts sometimes, but it went for naught in their case.

LIEUTENANT ROBBIN SMITH, or "Plain" Smith, as he is better known, formerly In-spector of Rifle Practice of the Tenth Regi-ment, has severed his connection with the Guard and retired to private life. Colonel Hawkins has appointed H. F. Burt, of Scotdale, as Inspector of Rifle Practice, and Senator Robbins, of the State Legislature, as Quartermaster. Several other changes have also been made in the staff of the Tenth since the re-election of Colonel Hawkins.

THE inspection of the Eighteenth Regiment has been set for the week after next, much to the joy of the company commanders. Major the joy of the company commanders. Major Patterson, Brigade Inspector, received a telegram from Adjutant General Hastings yesterday stating that Lieutenant Bean, of the United States army, would arrive in the city this week and would be present at all the company inspections of the Fourteenth Regiment. While quite a young officer he is said to have a record as a tactician, and will assist Major Patterson in passing judgment on the boys.

DURING the past week the Eighteenth Regiment secured a range for rifle practice at Highbridge station on the Castle Shannon Railroad. The grounds are elegantly adapted naturally for shooting purposes, and, although within a few steps of the station, are walled in by hills on three sides in such a manner as to be absolutely safe. Targets for practice at 100, 200, 500 and 600 yards will be placed in position during the next week, and by the time the season ones the Eighteenth may rest assured of hav-

From present indications there will be at least 50,000 militamen in the big parade next Tuesday week. This fact is certainly most significant as it shows that, if necessary, an army of almost 100,000 well armed and well drilled soldiers could be placed in any of our scaports on the Atlantic coast at a day's notice.

CAPTAIN W. E. THOMPSON, of Company I. Fourteenth Regiment, usues the following order: "The members of this company will assemble at the Central armory, Pitisburg, Saturday, April 27, at 4:30 P. The company will proceed to New York the same evening to attend the Centennial Celebration of Inauguration of Washington.
All equipments must be in best of order, and men will carry one day's cooked rations."

It is pleasant to be able to say that Mr. A. J. Shedden, of the Bijou management, is apparently on the mend, although he is still confined to the Allegheny Hospital. His spirits and general health are better, and it is thought that his recovery will proceed more rapidly now than any one dared to hope a week ago. His friends are not yet permitted to see him.

It will be observed that the Hanlons are once more at home at the Bijou Theater. The old difficulty, which involved a law suit, has been larger audiences at any other season of the

If Miss Lydia Thompson is going to play another season or two in this country, as her manager informs me she intends doing, it would be just as well for her to cut some of the essentially British vulgarity out of her burlesque. It is not possible to say that American audiences object to vulgarity of any sort, but they certainly do not appreciate the vulgarity which is altogether foreign in color. The low comedy of "Penelope" abounds in gags that are only intelligible to the cockney. But anyhow the libretto of a British burlesque is always its weakest part. Strings of cheap and elderly puns and the thinnest of nonsense make up the lines of "Penelope."

But the dancing of Miss Thompson's company is unusually good of its kind; even Lydia herself contriving to throw in a good deal of grace and novelty into her efforts in this line.

If Leon J. Long were not so efficient a Clerk of the Criminal Court, one would wish that he had turned to the stage professionally. In the Young Mrs. Blaine's career as an actress is now well along into the photographic stage. The thrilling announcement is also made that Clinton Stuart is adapting a French play for her, but the name of the play is not revealed.

When Mr. Crane was here with his partner,

Stuart Robson, in "The Henrietta," a great deal of curiosity was manifested as to his plans, but he would not reveal them. His manager now informs me that the campaign is settled, and Mr. Crane will not, as many thought he would, place his entire reliance on Fallstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Henry IV." He has long been destrous of shining as an exponent of American humor, as depicted by an American author, in an American play, with an American theme, and he firmly believes that he has found his opportunity in a play written expressly for him by Mr. David D. Lloyd, author of "For Congress" and "The Woman Hater." This play is in four acts, and is a brisk comedy of life in Washington. A long-standing but meritorious claim plays a considerable part in it. There are more such claims pending before Congress than is commonly supposed, especially where the claimants are poor and lack influential friends. Some of them have been drawn out longer than the famous chancery suit of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce, as described in "Bleak House." The claim which will be treated in the new comedy is an almost literal transcript of one that was passed by Congress a few years ago, after outlisting several generations of claimants who died without getting justice. The piece has a considerable undercurrent of pathos and dramatic interest, but it is for the most part straight comedy, with a strong flavor of satire. Almost every phase of official life will be represented, and there will be one character that is believed to be entirely novel. One of the timely episodes will be a satirical representation of a contest over a South American diplomatic appointment. Mr. Crane's part will be that of a young Senator, elected against his will from a "boomine" Western State. The part is full of young Senator, elected against his will from a "booming" Western State, The part is full of young Senator, elected against his will from a "booming" Western State, The part is full of character and humor.

Besides this play, Mr. Crane has secured another, with an American theme in a foreign scene. This is a four-act comedy, written especially for him by Messrs. Brander Matthews and George H. Jessop, the authors of "A Gold Mine." This play deals with the adventures and misadventures of a middle-agrd American who goes to Europe with his sister, his nicee and the girl he is engaged to marry. These tour are the only Americans in the play, which the authors describe as "A Cosmopolitan Comedy." The scene of the first act is laid in Paris; the other three take playe in Switzerland. For the first time the numerous incidents likely to occur during the usual Swiss trip of an American party will be shown on the stage. Mr. Crane believes that he has found in the central figure of this play a character exactly suited to his powers.

In addition to these comedies he will yet have a third which he has secured the American rights to through Samuel Freuch & Son. It is a highly fareical comedy called "The Balloon," which was first produced at the Strand Theter, in London, by Charles Wyndham, and is now running there and nightly pleasing crowded houses. By this it will be seen that Mr. Crane intends providing his patrons with as many novelties as possible. His season will begin at the Chicago Opera House, September 16, after which he will make a tour of the principal cities of the country until Monday, January 20, 1890, when he will begin an extended engagement at the Star Theater, in New York.

The company to support Mr. Crane will be fully competent, and judging by the names of the artists already engaged it will be one of the strongest in the country.

This Week's Attractions.

THE "Voyage En Suisse," which is given at the Bijou this week, has been entirely remodeled. The production formerly has been either entirely or part pantomime; this season it is a sparkling comedy, and a comedy of remarka-ble character, too. The business of the play has also been completely changed. New tricks, mystifying as any ever put on the stage, by the hundreds, new scenes by the score and other oddities. The changing of the play has made oddities. The changing of the play has made possible the introduction of a number of pleasing specialties in the last act, which are said to greatly channee the production. Musical members also form no small part of the general enjoyment now; the run of the piece has not been materially changed. The stage coach which upsets and spills its passengers out with peatness and dispatch; the failroad car which, when it evolution sures them a greater shaking. neatness and dispatch; the railroad car which, when it explodes, gives them a greater shaking up, and the hotel, where everybody is made the victim of the clown's pranks, but finally happy, are still there, though there are some new features in it all. The company used in the presentation this season comes very highly recommended and is said to be the best that has ever voiced the roles of the piece. Mr. Ed Haulon takes the part, as usual, of one of the most model servants. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday. This is probably the last time the "Voyage En Suisse" will be seen in Pittsburg. It certainly has been seen here before, many a time.

Mr. Kellar should not be compared with Herrmanne because his tricks are mainly of a mechanical sort and be does not resort at all to sleight of hand. The tricks are said to be wonderful, and include several of the latest contrivances known and require a carload of machinery. The stage will be furnished with Mr. Kellar's own silk plush curtains, Besides the great marician that remarkable body of musicians, the Spanish students, will furnish a very choice musical programme, and the Steens will ex.

Mrs. Potter wished to re-engage Mr. Edwards, but he was averse ta continuing on a greatly reduced salary. There was a mighty cut all around, by the way. The season has not been profitable for Mrs. J. ONE of the peculiarities of the production of "Featherbrain" by Minnie Maddern at the Madison Square Theater will consist of the fact that no scene or piece of property will be touched from the opening night of the comedy until the end of the run. This is made possible at the Madison Square because of the double stage, but it is the only time that it has been done in this theater and probably in the world. MISS LEWIS, the emotional actress, begins her New York season May 13. She knows all about Oklahoma, which she visited years ago. As a memento of her trip Miss Lewis carries a pair of tame wolves—lean, ugly, sneaking fellows—who slink behind her chair and watch the visitor with a hungry green light in their eyes. They have an aversion to poodle dogs and consider them joint prey, which makes it rather embarrassing for Miss Lewis when she leads them out to get a breathing spell.

THE name of Manager J. M. Hill's new speculation is Gladys Bird, but she will be known on the stage as Gladys Orme. She is a girl of 15, who has not yet outgrown short dresses. She is pretty and remarkably clever. For some She is pretty and remarkably clever. For some time past Gladys has been under the tuition of a female elocutionist of this city, who has taught her to read without robbing her, as yet, of her natural grace and charm. At an entertainment the other night in New York, Gladys appeared in some scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," with Frederick Paulding as the lovesick Montague. She showed rare aptitude and a delicate sensibility which delighted the spectators.

THE New York Mirror says: "The tempo. rary disability of Mr. Booth, occasioned by too liberal indulgence in tobacco, has called widespread attention to the evils as well as the delights of smoking. From boyhood Mr. Booth has been addicted to the habit, which has grown upon him so that his health is seriously jeopardized. For many years he had a partiality for the soothing many years he had a partiality for the soothing pipe. At home or in his dressing room he was seadom without it. His dresser used to keep a meerschaum ready filled with his favorite brand, "Fruits and Flowers," and whenever the tragedian left the stage, if it was only for a few moments, it was handed to him, and he would immediately begin to puff smoke like a locomotive. Then, for a short time, he took to cigarettes, and there were few of his waking hours passed without one of these slender coffin nails between his lips. Cigars have been the solace of his recent years. By his own admission he had come, before his recent illness, to consume a score of heavy perfected adily."

"THE Red Signal," a melodrama by Otis Skinner, of Daly's Theater, and his brother. Charles M. Skinner, dramatic editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, will have its premier on the 6th of May, in the Grand Opera House, Chicago. The scene is laid in Pittsburg and the labor and capital, a strike in a rolling mill being one of the incidents, but the severity of motive is softened by a love story and lightmotive is softened by a love story and lightened by a comedy element. Several mechanical effects—such as those introduced in the interior of the mill, and a moonlight view of Pittsburg with blue flames pouring from turnace chimners—are believed to be wholly original, and have been protected by patent. It is notable that a drama somewhat akin to this, in that it is evolved from the strained relations between capitalists and workingmen, should have been written by Sims and Pettit and produced in England recently. The American play, however, was not even suggested by the English melodrama, and is wholly dissimilar in motive and treatment. It was written and copyrighted months before even the name of the Sims and Pettit drama ("Master and Man") was published. Among the actors engaged for the Chicago production are Messrs. Skinner, Gilbert and Holland, of Daly's Company, George Sprague and Helen Bancroft.

The new halls of Encampment No. 1, at No. 77 Sixth avenue, are about completed, and will be thrown open to the public on the evening of April 30. They are beyond loubt among the handsomest in the State. No. 1 is furnished entirely in autique oak, the carpets are the finest body brussels, and the walls are handsomely frescoed. The window curtains are of French material and are entirely out of the usual order of such decorations. In each panel of the walls will be life sized portraits of Washington, Grant, Sheridan, Meade, Thomas, Hancock, McClellan, Warren, McPherson, Reynolds, Griffin, Farragut and other illustrations of officers of the late war. Hall No. 2 is fitted up with cherry furnitur fine body brussels carpets and rugs cover the floors. The walls are handsomely papered, and in fact everything necessary has been provided. The ante-rooms for both halls are large and

The ante-rooms for both halls are large and beautifully furnished. Below the halls is the library, intended especially for Encampment No. 1. It is a very large room elaborately furnished. A fine library will be part of its furnishment, and as it will be kept open day and night, the old veterans in this neighborhood will find it a great convenience.

On the night of the 30th it is expected that General Daniel Butterfield, of New York, Judges Collier, Slagle, Over and Harry White will deliver addresses. All old soldiers and their friends will be invited.

At the last meeting of No. 1 four recruits were mustered and 15 new applications received. The introduction of the "Inquisitive Veteran" by General Gallupe was a decided success, and caused great amusement. National Commander Pearson drew first prize, while his Adjutant General (Short) drew the last. The next production will be the "Army Mule," and judging from some of the rehearsals, there will be fun enough to gratify the greatest kicker in the Legion.

As is well known there is no rank in the Grand Army of the Republic. Generals and pfivates are unknown. All are comrades. The war over all became plain American citizens again. Therein was manifested, more than in any other manner, the strength of our republican institutions. In no other country could there be an exemplification of true democracy equal to that of recent occurrence when Major General Franz Sigel tendered his resignation as Pension Agent in New York, to Corporal James Tanner, Commissioner of Pensions. General Sigel has suffered in mind as well as in purse by the wrong-doing of some under him, but no taint attaches to his name. He was appointed Pension Agent by Mr. Cleveland four years ago. His administration has given general satisfaction and was gratifying to the old soldiers, many of whom were helped by him out of his private means, although the latter are limited. again. Their maneuvers and manual of arms were so perfect as to clicit the hearty approval of the "old hoys," who know from experience what is perfection in drill.

More than one-half, it is estimated, of those who are in the van to reach the new promised land of Oklahoma are Grand Army veterans. They are irrepressible and will get there if pluck is requisite.

COMBADES at Butler are forming a Union Veteran Legion. They already have about 68 names enrolled. Captain Ayers has charge of the list. Any veteran who enlisted prior to 1883 and served two years is eligible. FROM present indications Memorial Day will be more generally observed this year than for a number of years. This is especially true of the eastern part of Pennsylvania, where nearly every Post has decided upon some special fea-tures.

Post 3, of this city, is making special efforts to add to its membership, which will have the desired effect, judging by the past history of that live post. A full attendance of the comrades is earnestly desired at the regular meeting to-morrow night,

REV. J. W. PLANNETT, lately pastor of the Baptist Church at Hillsville, Pa., has accepted a call from another church near Philadelphia. Recently Mr. Plannett was a resident of Pittsburg and was one of the earnest comrades of that sterling post, 157.

THE Pioneer Corps of the Eighteenth Regi-ment, N. G. P., which created such a turore in Washington during the inauguration, is composed aimost entirely of veterans of the late war. This no doubt accounted for the fine appearance of the corps. GENERAL KILBURN KNOX WIll succeed

General Jacob Sharp as Governor of the National Soldiers' Home at Millwaukee, Wis. This Home will be one of the principal objects of interest to those who may attend the next National Encampment in August. SENATOR RUTAN, of the Allegheny district showed himself a true friend of the soldiers' interests when he introduced a bill providing for a special levy of one mill for the support of indigent soldiers, their widows and orphans, but the Senate refused to pass the bill.

ONE by one the veterans of 1861-65 are answering the silent roll call. What a grand army there is already in the great beyond, and how rapidly its number is increasing. From this time on the death rate will increase until the last one shall answer the final summons. SIXTY-NINE THOUSAND letters during a sin gie week! That constituted Corporal Tanner's mail recently during that time. The cost of the stationery and clerical help necessary to answer such as mass, if it should continue, would soon remove all doubts about a reduc-tion of the Treasury surplus.

The appointment of General James A. Sexton, Past Department Commander of Illinois, as Postmaster of Chicago, is a merited recognition of a galant, wounded soldier. He takes the place of General Walter C. Newberry, who was appointed by Mr. Cleveland less than a year ago. It was understood at the time that General Newberry's acceptance was only temporary, whatever the result of the election.

The next regular (quarterly) meeting of the Pennsylvania Commandery, Loyal Legion, wil be held in the Union League building, Philadelphia, on Wednesday evening, May 1. A number of the companions resident in Pittsburg and vicinity will go in a party. Officers are to be elected, and there is an unusually large number of applicants for membership to be voted on. Among the latter there are about 15 from this locality. "THE Board of Commissioners on Gettysburg Monuments" has issued a circular setting forth that the monuments erected on that battle-field under authority of the Commonwealth will be dedicated on the 21st and 22d days of May next, to be known as Pennsylvania Day. The co-operation of every veteran in the Com-monwealth is solicited by the Commissioners in order that the occasion be one of credit to this State. A FEATURE of the National Encampment to be held in Milwaukee in August will be the re union of regiments and batteries. Already Colonel C. K. Pier, the Secretary of the Committee of Arrangements, has received requests from over 400 different organizations for places to hold their reunious. Of these there are only 14 from Pennsylvania, while 91 are from Ohio. Other organizations intending to hold meetings should notify Colonel Pier as soon as possible.

WHEN Shamokin was selected as the place for the meeting of the next Department Eucampment, some doubts were expressed as to campment, some doubts were expressed as to the adequacy of the hotel accommodations. A committee of the comrades there have given assurance that all who may attend will be well cared for in every respect. The building in which the sessions of the encampment will be held its owned by Lincoln Poet No. 140, the wealthlest Post of the Grand Army in Pennsylvania and perhaps in the country. IT is clearly evident now to those intereste that the National Encampment is not desired here in 1890 by the business men of our locality. But one business man answered the call of the Mayors of the two cities to meet in Common Council Chamber yesterday. Other cities only secure the honor by the hardest kind of contest in the meetings of the National Encampment, and yet, when the honor is almost tendered the city, it is impossible to secure the interest of the business men in the undertaking.

DEPARTMENT COMMANDER THOMAS J. STEWART has sent out General Orders, No. 6, of the series of 1889. Considerable attention is present quarter. He has received gratifying reports from all over the State, but he urges renewed exertions on the part of each individual comrade. A little work and effort will be necessary, he says, but he is hopeful the comrades will not fail in contributing to keep Pennsylvania at the head as "the Banner Department."

RICHARD C. DRUM, at present Adjutant General of the army, will be eligible for retirement next month. It is understood he will return to his native place, Greensburg, Pa., turn to his native place, Greensburg, Pa., where, when a young man, December 16, 1846, he enlisted as a private in Company K, First Pennsylvania Infantry, then organzing for service in Mexico. He has been in the army continuously since that time, during the past nine years serving in his present position, with the rank of Brigadier General. It is not generally known that General Drum is not a graduate of West Point.

RECRUITING in the posts in Allegheny county is quite lively at present, and the in-dications are this will continue for some time. The offer of a comrade to present the post showing the highest percentage of increase during the second quarter of the year, over during the second quarter of the year, over the first quarter, with a flag, has added to the enthusiasm. The flag will be selected by As-sistant Adjutant General James McCormick, of the department, and by him sent direct to the post showing the highest percentage of gain, according to the official reports for the quarter ending June 30. This increase to be by muster, by transfer or from dropped or sus pended comrades restored to good standing.
