Newfoundland Fighermen Demand Protection Their Calling.

The great loan exhibition which opens in Vienna to-morrow contains such a vast amount of treasure that it appears a terrible temptation to the world's burglars to test their powers. English newspapers are bored with complaints from indignant Newfoundlanders, who demand that their fishing rights be protected. Parisians are daily becoming more excited over their coming Exposition

INY CABLE TO THE DISPATCE.] LONDON, April 20.-[Copyrighted.]-To a burglar with ambition and nerve, Vienna just now presents a unique opportunity. A Loan Exhibition of specimens of the gold-smith's art will open on Monday, in the palace of Prince Schwarzenberg, and people who have seen the superb collection cannot find adjectives expressive enough to convey an adequate idea of the show. Five large rooms are piled up with such things as emerald and diamond diadems, necklaces, coronets, tables of solid silver, big chairs set in silver, huge mirrors framed in silver, toilet services of solid gold, and golden tankards and cups by the hundred.

There is a necklace belonging to the Princess Metternich, in which are the biggest emeralds in the world, and the Princess Reuss shows a necklace made up of the largest opals known, some of them as big as peaches. The Duke of Nassau exhibits a small case, for the contents of which he has just refused a quarter of a million dollars. The case contains two golden tankards, surmounted with Roman heads in relief, and having ministure portraits of the German Emperors encircled by big diamonds inside the lids of both tankards. Among other trifies may be seen the grant Napoleon's golden traveling dressing case, and some without a rival in Europe. golden traveling dressing case, and some queer looking golden instruments with which he used to pick and clean his imperial teeth.

All these things and many more will be on view until the 15th of June, and until the exhibition is over the chiefs of the Vienna police will know no peace. Every precaution will be taken, but the temptation to the world's burglarious talent is produg-Scotland Yard has obligingly warded to Vienna the portraits of all the elever and daring burglars known to them, and Americans will be interested to learn that Billy Porter figures in the list, It is probable that Inspector Byrnes will be asked to forward his interesting collection of

LONDON, April 20 .- Unless France be at war or in the throes of a revolution the International Peace Congress will be held in Paris the 23d of June and four following days. The French Government has shown its confidence in the future by officially sanctioning the Congress, and has actually appointed an Organizing Committee of very appointed an Organizing Committee of very distinguished men and women. The pro-gramme includes international arbitration, neutralization of rivers, canals, channels, straits, territories and nations, and the Congress will especially consider the most practicable means of gradually substituting the rule of law for that of force. On the 20th and 20th of Jame them will be a De the rule of law for that of force. On the 29th and 30th of June there will be a Par-liamentary Congress, invitations to which have been or will be forwarded to represent-atives of the parliamentary bodies of all na-tions, at which also a comprehensive pro-gramme will be gone through. The British delegates ought to go to Paris in sackcloth and askes, for by the time they start Parliament will have voted £22,000,000 for the unpeaceful purpose of strengthening the army and navy. Prince Bismarck and his imperial master, who do not think much of peace congresses, have expressed great of peace congresses, have expressed great admiration at Lord Salisbury's bold ex-penditure, and are looking around for new sources of revenue, from whence may be ob-tained a few millions to spend upon the Garman new German navy.

REACHING FEVER HEAT.

Paris Becoming Daily More Excited Over Her Coming Show. [BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCE.]

LONDON, April 20 .- Paris is gradually but surely reaching fever heat over its exhibition. May 6 is to be made historical by orations, fireworks and music, and the French capital will be ablaze till well along in the following day. The city is crowded with Americans. The hotels have raised their rates from 30 to 200 per cent, shopkeepers have doubled their prices, and there is a general apparent and enthusiastic move ment to acquire all the foreign money that drifts into Paris. Amid all this interest about the exhibition, the Boulanger trial is forgotten. It lacks the sensational element, without which Paris is bound. It drags along behind which Paris is bosed. It orags along bening closed doors, and sullen surmises are all that it gives rise to. Meanwhile the General has a big house in Brussels, six servants, eight horses, including the famous black charger and a semi-royal court. Rochefort and Dillon are also settled there. The news from the Belgian Capital is still ment as and in Paris most eagerly read in Paris.

A private letter from a Roman Catholic priest of eminence in France tells me that Dillon is most assiduous in his approache to the elergy, and that Boulanger has prom ised the church a return to power in the state in the event of his success. Undoubtedly there is strong support among the clergy now, but how much pecuniary assist-

Indignant Newfoundlanders Demand That Their Rights be Upheld.

They threaten, if necessary, to take the law into their own hands. and express an intention to shed their blood in the maintenance of their rights. The majority of English newspapers, to judge from their funny editorials, have just heard of it for the first time. ## DVERTISING AND CIVILIZATION GO HAND IN HAND.

By the term "low-price clothing" we don't mean trash or shoddy garments (goods which we don't sell) but good, honest American Cassimere, Worsted and Cheviot Suits, that will do nicely for men who can't afford to pay much money for their clothes, and yet desire to be well dressed. While the materials are, of course, not as fine in these Suits, as in our higher price garments, they will wear satisfactorily nevertheless, and the make and fit are as good and perfect as in the finest. Workingmen, mechanics, clerks, bookkeepers, salesmen, and all men who are ready and anxious to save a few dollars, here is a chance for you to buy stylish, well-made and well-trimmed garments at prices that'll delight you. Just think! Only $5 for dark mixed Cassimere Suits; only $7 for strictly allwool Worsted Suits; only $9 for first-class American Cheviot Suits.

KAUFMANNS'

If people must live in a civilized State they must make an interchange called trade. To make it intelligently they must have something to go by. That "something to go by" is advertising.

We furnish it day by day, when we tell you of the things to be had, their value, their merit or demerit. For what is advertising-our advertising-but the drift of what is going on each day in the store? By means of this daily store news we are able to consult together, think together, act together. It readily follows, then, that the first element of it must be TRUTH. This wanting, it is a Samson, shorn of its strength. "I know for certain it's true," observed the traditional old woman, "because I read it in a newspaper. The good old dame would, we fancy, have been rather puzzled if she had happened to read the lucubrations of some of the Pittsburg advertisers. Strict truth is sacrificed to what is regarded as allowable advertising exaggeration. The temptation always is to value goods above their real worth, to see merit to the hiding of demerit. Right here, then, let it be said, while the dividing which marks the difference between exaggeration and fact is to many advertisers like the equator—imaginary—it is not so to us. We have always drawn the line strictly in this respect. And why shouldn't we? We can very well afford to tell the truth about our goods and prices. The more the people know about them, the better it is FOR US. This explains why we never resort to tricks or exaggeration in order to get your patronage.
