How and Why the Denmark was Abandoned in Mid-Ocean—An Effort Made to Tow Her to Land—The Captain's Last to Leave His Ship.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The steamship Missouri, with 365 of the people from the wrecked steamer Denmark, arrived at the dock at 6 o'clock this evening.

All were well on board with the exception of three persons, who are ill, but doing well. All of the Denmark's passengers look hearty and bright, and showed no signs of the hardships which they must have necessarily endured.

"Mr. Darlington, the reporter began, 'it appears that Judge White has not granted your license, and THE DISPATCH would be pleased to print any statement you would like to make in regard to the Court's decision, have you anything to say?'

"I did not expect that the names would be made public so soon. From what I gathered in the afternoon papers I thought the decisions would not be made known until the day after to-morrow.

"As for myself, the suspense makes but very little difference to me. I know that I have lived up to the requirements of the law in every particular, and I feel that I am entitled to my license, and in that case I can only say that I am very glad for Judge White, as sure I can stand it.

"And what are his motives? Because I stood before him and have not maintained myself with respect as an American citizen; that is the only reason on which he refused what the law really would have granted me.

"I told him I never sold less than half a barrel of whisky, and he said that he would not sell to anybody who paid me for what he got I was not speaking against anybody. The law does not require a man to insure into the requirements set forth by the law that Judge White is. I have not seen the opinion of the Court, but he proved himself to be not only a judge, but also a thoroughly honest man.

"The judge had the right to put his own construction upon his decision, and as long as he has not made any personal remarks, I do not want to say anything. I mean to have the saloon business anyhow, and the refusal of my license lets me off easily.
