The Real Point Which Lawyers Say is at Issue in the Edison Case.

INTERESTING ARGUMENTS MADE.

A Very Little Dog Which Cost Its Owner the 8um of $500.

GENERAL NEWS OF THE COURT HOUSE

The arguments in the great electric light suit were finished yesterday afternoon and the briefs submitted shortly after 5 o'clock. In the morning Mr. Amos Broadnax took up the argument for the Westinghouse side. He stoutly urged the claims of the Sawyer-Mann putents. The one new thing in all the lamps was the fibrous conductor, and that be held, was theirs. The Sawyer-Mann lamp was perfected, under the meaning of the patent laws, in March, 1878. He described the patent laws, in March, 1878. He described the Sawyer inventions and experiments from February, 1878, to October, 1878, when a continuous exhibition of the lamp was made. Referring to the Sawyer letters, Mr. Broadnax said they were written when Sawyer was on a prolonged spree, and are contradicted by his sworn testimony. Mr. Broadnax denied that Edison made use of a fibrous incandescent conductor priorito 1878. He quoted from Mr. Edison's testimony and held that it showed that Edison did not use the fibrous conductor until 1879. During his argument he used the testimony very freely.

Mr. Thurston made the closing argument for the Edison forces. Beginning with the statement that the world to-day would have no electric light were it not for Mr. Edison, Mr. Thurston gave a history of electricity and of Mr. Edison's connection with it. He said in November, 1879, Mr. Edison invented the hair-like fibrous conductor. He alone was the inventor of that peculiar kind of conductor; he alone discovered that bamboo would furnish the fibre so necessary. Because it is like all the vegetable kingdom fibrous the plaintiffs claim that they have a right to use that fibre because they have a patent covering vegetable because they have a patent covering vegetable fibrous textile conductors. The real contest, Mr. Thurston held, was whether the complainants have the exclusive use of all vegetable fibrous carbonized conductors.

POOR BUT INGENIOUS.

Mr. Edmund Wetmore, representing the plaintiffs, made the closing argument. He opened by stating that, owing to the great length of time consumed by the other attorneys, he would only deal with the facts in the bricetest possible way. The plaintiffs, he said, are here with a patent that hears with it the presumption the law allows it. A great deal had been said in landation of Mr. Edison as the inventor of the entire incandescent electric system, and it was not his intention to detract from this, but he would show that Mr. Edison was not entitled to the entire landation given him. Mr. Lowrey had spoken in light terms of the inventors of the Sawyer-Mann parent, which was not justice to them. Mr. Wetmore then detailed the character of Mr. Wetmore then detailed the character of Mr. Mann, who was a well-known member of the New York bar, and a man of eminent respectibility; not a mere rent collector, as he had been termed, but the executor of the immense Lorillard estate and other estates in New York, valued at millions of dollars, who in his spare time devoted himself to mechanical science. Mr. Sawyer was a man of inventive genius, but like inost men of genius had an unfortunate failing which should be looked on with pity rather than held up to scorn.

These men, he stated, had but moderate means—one was in absolute poverty—and they had but a small laboratory; they were not ength of time consumed by the other attor-

means—one was in absolute poverty—and they had but a small laboratory; they were not backed by the wealth of Wall street, and, while they used a bambo, they could not send to China or the dangerous jungles of Africa for it. The speaker continued that the electrical fiber, and from the day that their patent was first taken out no lamps sent out by any firm does not contain their idea of a fibrous and textile material as a conductor. The statement that bamboo is the thing almost wholly used is ot correct.

The statement was made that the lamp of Sawjer & Mann was not a commercial lamp, and did not go into commercial use, but it was not shown that the lamp was inoperative, not not shown that the ismp was inoperative, not practical and no good. The speaker continued that the statement that it would not burn long enough to compete with gas was without foundation, as they never tried it, and the statement was bestefore only guess work on their part. The Sawyer & Mann lamp had been actually tested, and was found to burn for 150 hours. It was not necessary that it should have a high vacuum, and if the textile fabric was a good conductor in those days it was was a good conductor in those days it was equally good now. In 1879 Edison had patented even different incandescent lamps, and not ingle one of them went into the commercia single one of them went into the commercial world, and the speaker wanted to know if the defendant's attorneys would consider those pat-ents void and no good because of that fact. He ents void and no good because of that fact. He said on the question of bamboo, that out of 25,000 lamps that would be lighted in this city last night not 500 of them would contain the bamboo conductor; and simply because the Edison Company think that bamboo is best suited for their lights, one would think that it was the only thing that could be used, whereas hundreds of thousands have been made and sent out with wood carbon, cotton thread and paper carbon conductors.

A number of different bulbs were exhibited, showing different materials which had been carbonized and by actual test made to burn. Both sides then submitted their briefs and the Judges retired with the case.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

Important Evidence Taken Yesterday in the Lawrenceville Case.

John Carter, colored, was placed on trial be-fore Judge Magee in the Criminal Court yesterday charged with the murder of Isaac Gross, at Clark's Solor Iron Works, March 4. District Attorney Porter represented the Com-

District Attorney Porter represented the Commonwealth, and Messrs. R. H. Johnston, George Elphinstone and R. S. Martin the defendant. Mr. Porter opened the case by claiming that Carter wilfully shot Gross, and should suffer the penalty of murder in the first degree.

Earnest More, a colored boy, 15 years old, testified that he, Willis Johnson, John Carter and Isaac Gross worked together at the Solar Iron Works, at the furnaces numbered 17. 18 and 18. The witness, on March 4, was busy cleaning the stand of his furnace, No. 17, and heard Carter call Gross names. Gross said, "Oh, go on with you," then the witness heard the pistol shot and saw Gross walk across the stand and fall down. The witness was read his testimony as given before the Coroner, but could not remember whether he made the statements attributed to him.

Dr. H. H. Clark, of Lawrenceville, testified that he was called to the Solor Iron Works, attended Gross and had him removed to the West Penn Hospital, The witness testified that the Lail had penetrated the fourth rib of the right side. Dr. Clark was present at the post mortem examination and said the wound was in a vital part of the body and necessarily fatal. The Shoemaker was at the hospital when Gross was brought in. His evidence corroborated that of Dr. Clark.

w. H. Bowen, an expert in the gun business, testified that the revolver taken from Carter was a British buildog pistol of 32 caliber.

Inspector McAleese was present when the dying deposition of Gross was taken. He testified that he asked Gross some questions when the declaration was being taken by Alderman McKenna. The witness was not allowed to state what was said however, on the ground that the declaration itself covered the statement of Gross and rambling conversation cosed not be put in evidence.

Miller Johnson, colored, was present at the removed to 706 Smithfield street, near Lib-erty. J. H. JOHNSTON. Miller Jonnson, colored, was present at the mill when the shooting occurred. He said: "I said to Carter: 'Are you going home, John?' He said: "I am waiting on your brother.' I said: "My house is near yours,' and he then called me a har. I said: 'You can't call my big partner that.' Carter then walked to Gross, my partner, and said, '—your big heart to —, nigger, here's your age lo say pocket.' Gross said: 'Oh, go 'long with you,' then Carter drew his revolver and fired. Gross walked a short way and felt to the ground, and Dr. Clark was called.' A long legal discussion ensued as to whether Johnson thought Carter was fooling when he addressed Gross. Mr. Porter would not permit the witness to answer. Judge Magee held that the counsel for the defendant could make the witness describe the actions of the

to the Judges.

The paper books of John Bobb, Esq., ap pealing from Judge White's decision in the bottlers' license cases, were handed to the Supreme Court Judges yesterday at Philadelphia. Mr. Robb, in his argument, claimed that the Brocks law does not repeal the act of 1872, classifying bottlers, which was passed for Allegheny county only. He contends that bothers are the statement of the tlers must obtain a license from the Court of Quarter Sessions, and pay a license fee there-

When anything is left to the discretion of the Court, he claimed, the action of the Judge should not be arbitrary, extra, judicial or wilful, but Mr. Robb thinks the Court erred in wiltil, but Mr. Robot thinks the Court erred in granting bottlers' license to eight brewers, thereby giving them a monopoly of the business. He holds this is something not comprehended in any known statute. He cites quotations from the act of 1872 and the Brooks law to sus-tain his position. A decision is expected next

While it is impossible to avoid attacks of illness and to finally conquer the great destroyer. Death, there is abundant evidence to prove that there are agencies within the reach of skill and science capable of correcting the tendencies of disease, and restoring enfeebled energies to their healthy functions. Life certainly cannot be made perpetual: but it can doubtless be prolonged by fudicious treatment, and misery and suffering can be prevented. The idea that disease will spend itself without the aid of medical skill is as abourd as to suppose that the laws of nature are without purpose and direction. It is the same in the animal as in the vegetable kingdom. When a tree shows signs of weakness or decay it is by care that its vitality is restored. Leave it alone and the process of decay will advance, and in a short time a dead trunk only will remain. But, attend to it, water its roots, protect it from blighting winds, etc., and it will again flourish as if it had never eiven evidence of feebleness. So it is with the human being; for if nothing be done to control colds, favers, lung, liver and kidney affections, and a chouland and one other diseases to which flesh is heir, they are certain to obtain headway, break down the most vigorous constitutions, and, after a longer or shorter time of wretchedness and suffering, end life. Thousands die every year from neglect resulting from carelessness, prejudice, or some other blameable cause. Families are depleted, fond ties severed, torturing anxieties produced, and endless miseries protracted from one generation to another by reason of overlooking the commencement of disease and delaying medical treatment. Fatal beyond conception is this carelessness in regard to health and life, for without health there can be no happiness, and when life ends—all is darkness and mystery.

After carefully as skillfid and experienced physician as soon as the existence of any disease is detected. To delay is always danger out, and may prove fatal. The principal point to decide is the ch

Men's Finest Dress Suits, $15 to $20

These garments will satisfy, aye, delight, the most careful and particular dressers. Gentlemen who are in the habit of paying high tailor bills should see these suits. Why, nobody can have an idea of the high degree of perfection attained in the manufacture of clothing until he has seen these suits.

Here, as in all else, the clothiers of Pittsburg, of course, pretend to be able to compete with us. But can they? Well, this question is easily answered by our readiness to produce at from 10 to 20 per cent less money any Grand Army Suit they may offer. This includes the celebrated Middlesex uniforms.

If, as is generally concoded, a Silk Hat has become indispensable to a gentleman's attire during the fall and winter, the Kersey has equal if not stronger claims for Summer wear. Our "Cassimeres," as they are hereabouts called are made up with a view to extreme comfort, being exceedingly light, thoroughly ventilated and will prove cooler to the head than the average Straw Hat.

For the comfort of our thousands of friends and customers, we have put in one of the celebrated "Granger Hat Ventilating" machines, with which we will punch the invisible pinholes in every Hat.
