from little towns in vicinity, but not near enough. Pittsburg supplies are going via P. R. E. and lying five or six miles out of town and cannot get in on wagons. We will sun anything Chamber of Commerce or anybody else offers for relief of sufferers promptly and free as fast as it is offered to us, and you cannot get too much.

Ask Chamber of Commerce to take up question of police protection. Citizens of Johnstown are demoralized, and there ought to be 180 level-headed men in uniform here in addition to those already sont, who know how to protect lives and property. One thing is needed badly is 25 to 40 barrels illuminating oil. See that somebody furnishes it, and tell my people to give you a car for its special transportation and any other cars you may need.

THREE DAUGHTERS.

They Refused to Leave When They Could Not Save Their Mother.

Engineer A. L. McClue, of Conemaugh, was in town yesterday. He said that his wife and three daughters were among the drowned. With tears in his eyes he said that the children might have saved themselves, because the might have saved themselves, because the neighbors told them to clear out when the flood was running down the hill.

Their mother, however, was sick in bed, and when the girls realized that they could not save their mother also, they went upstairs into her room, closed the doors, and stayed with her to meet the death which they knew was slowly but surely overtaking them. Thus they all registers.
