OSSIP ABOUT OUE LOCAL MUSICIANS

The new organ erected for the Butler treet M. E. Church by the Granville Wood Son Pipe Organ Company, of Northville, lich., was inaugurated last Friday evenig in the presence of an amiable audience int comfortably filled the prettily remodled anditorium. The programme was as illows:

He labored under diffi-ultics: there had been but the least oppor-unity for acquainting himself with the rgan, which the workmen left (not entirely ompleted) at 7:30 P. M. Moreover, Mr. Wood ame to Pittsburg to visit his brother, Mr. John A. Wood, for the express purpose of re-player and lecturer. Mr. Wood neither sks nor needs any odds at the critics ands on account of his being totally sightess. But it is proper to state that fact in appreciate the marvelous rder to fully

As a general thing, you can count on a THE Philharmonic Society has about de cided to go back to Somerset county for its annual fortnight's encampment for practice boy's being just what he pretends to be. Deception isn't a professional affair with the boy, as it is with the man. The boy's insincerity is always amateurish and trips in its lines. If you have ever

An interesting debut was recently made at noticed the diffident and deprecatory way in the Opera House at Elherfeld by an artist who which a boy tells a lie, you will realize how appeared under the nom de theatre of Marie Lindes. This young lady, who sang the part of much he has got to learn before he will ever make a first-class editor or lawyer. But there are boys and boys. Their con-Elicabeth in "Tannhauser," is really Miss Marie Joachim, daughter of Dr. Joachim. She has been taught by her mother, herself a distin-guished vocalist, and her success is said to have been so great that she was forthwith engaged for a certain period at Elberfeld and Barmen. —Courter stitutions and personalties differ like pebbles. Any schoolroom will afford you as many as five or six different types of undeveloped manhood, and perhaps the play-THE Bayreuth Music Festival begins July ground will present even more. To begin with, there is the rather large, square-faced boy of pugnacious disposition. His freckled nose has an upward tilt, and his hair is 21. ending August 18. The "Meistersinger" 21. ending August 15. The "Meintersinger will be given five times, on Wednesdays, July 24. 31 and August 7 and 14; also, on Saturday, Angust 17. On all other Saturdays, however, the theater will remain closed. "Parisfal" will be given on Thursdays and Sundays, altogether inc. parformance: the datas of which are: always totally unmanageable and generally afflicted with a "cowlick." He is the bully be given on Thursdays and Sundays, altogether nine performances, the dates of which are: July 21, 25 and 28 and August 1, 3, 6, 11, 15 and 18, "Tristan und Isolde" on Monday, July 22 and 29 and August 5 and 12. The cast includes as usual a fine representation of the world's best Wagnerian singers and conductors, who gladly give up their vacations to assist at the temple of art, which is becoming more and more the midsummer Mecca of the musical pilerim. of the school, and would not exchange the distinction for a life-pass reward of merit. As a scholar he fails to sustain the preeminence which is accorded him among his fellows on the playground. A PROMINENT INDIVIDUAL.

But if he stands at the foot of his class

But if he stands at the foot of his class in the schoolroom, he is always at the ex-trema, of honor when the "whip" is "snapped;" and he takes a fiendish delight, at -recess time, in bending the back and twisting the nose of the small, pale, intelli-gent boy who enjoys a monopoly of the honors in mental arithmetic and geography. The pugnacious boy has a warm, chiv-alrous heart in his bosom, and if he catches any of his vassals in the performance of a mean act, especially an act of discourtesy to a girl, he lays aside all other engage-ments and proceeds to chastise the offender according to the enormity of the offense. His heart is always moved within him at MR. JOHN T. HORNER, who for two or three seasons has been doing yeeman service in Pittsburg's amateur orchestras, has arranged an exceptionally interesting concert to be given next Friday evening in Connellsville, his former dwelling place. He will take there-and perdwelling place. He will take there—and per-sonally conduct—an orchestra of 25 men, most-ly chosen from the Mozart Club's instrumental ranks. They will play Schubert's "Rosa-munde" overture, a "Faust" selection, one of Moskowski's Spanish Dances, Meyerbeer's "Coronation March," Ellenberg's "Mill in the Forest," and other lighter pieces. Miss Jennie Evans, soprano, Mr. Frank W. Bearl, baritone, and Mr. John Gernert, violin, are to be the so loists. The concert promises to be quite the musical and society event of the season at Con-nellsville, at heast the running of special trains His heart is always moved within him at the sight of undeserved suffering, and he thinks nothing of often carrying a little crippled schoolfellow home on his back. nellsville; at least the running of special trains for it by the railroads would seem to point that on the whole, the pugnacious boy is a right good fellow, and I am inclined to think that the faculty of using the fists well in COMMENTING upon the concert given at youth is not so great as in as the Sunday school books used to make it out. At any rate the list of our D.D.s and leading phi-lanthropists is largely made up of men who were sandy-haired Sullivans and red-handed "Miss Rosa Weber, of Pittsburg, made her first ap-pearance before an Erie audience. She prechildren of Belial in their youth. They smote their fellows' hip and thigh and spared not. But somehow they seem grad-ually to have grown tired of this sort of piety like early acquaintance with the world.

Then there is the boy who is afraid of the girls. He is generally small and timid. But he has a heart that is deeper than an artesian well, and a power of sentiment so intense that it chokes itself. Nobody can ever real-ize what this boy suffers from unexpressed and unrequited love. He is in heaven or hot water all the time. He looks upon girls

TO USE TRANSCONTINENTAL RATES.

The Pittsburg Railroads Not Afraid of Violating the Inter-State Law.

The railroads running west of this city have agreed to adopt the transcontinental rates issued by the Western roads. The change will be of great advantage to Pittaburg shippers. After the inter-State law went into effect, the Pittsburg roads refused to recognize the rates, claiming that it was a violation of the law. When receiving Western freight they would issue bills of lading only to Chicago or East St. Louis, instead of receipting through to the point of destination. In order to avoid trouble the shipper would have to send his receipt to one of the Western road representatives, and have the latter take it up, giving a through bill of lading. This caused considerable inconvenience to large shippers, who asked that the change be made. The initial lines here will put the rates into effect before Monday or Tuesday.

He Had a Close Call.

A Citizens' Traction car, while passing along Liberty street yesterday morning, struck and knocked down John Deebe, Liberty street commission merchant, who was crossing the track with a heavy burden. Mr. Deebe was dragged 50 feet, and seriously, but not dangerously, injured. He claims that the bell on the car was not sounded as a cautionary signal.

PROPOSALA

C. H. LOVE, 93 Fourth avenue

were made perfectly evident. They scarcely gave fair opportunity to judge of the result of foreign training upon the popular tenor's woice. Mrs. Wolfs, whom all will remember better as Miss Emma Bingler, upheld her part in the duets very well, in view of part in the ducts very well, in view of slight rehearsal. She also sang pleasingly, it not very strougly. Handel's "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," which was in-terpolated into Mr. Wood's last number, he playing the accompaniment. But it was in Buck's lovely, though somewhat rambling, sacred song, that Mrs. Wolfe did her best work, showing a vocal purity and an emotional warmth and sympathy that she has rarely excelled. Mr. Retter was hampered, as was Mr.

Wood, by lack of familiarity with the instrument; a drawback particularly disastrous to an improvisation which ordinarily has as its sole apology for being intruded upon the public the full display of the various stops and effects of the organ. Lacking this apology, the improvisation were better omitted. In the accompaniments, Mr. Retter (Mr. McComsey did not appear) made many good points, but at times used too much organ-reeds especially-and a too continuous 16-ft. pedal bass.

* * The specifications of the organ thus inauenrated are as follows: TWO MANUALS AND PEDALS.

Compass Manuals, C C to A3, 58 Notes, Compass of Pedal, C C C to D 27 Melodia..... Wood, Metal, Wood, ute Traverse..... 255  3 Rank. Mixture. 8 feet. Trumpet. 174 piper Trampet ... SWELL MANUAL. Swell to Great Coupler, Great to Pedal Swell to Pedal Blower's Signal, Vind indicators for Organist and Blower.

FEDAL HON. Forte, Great Manual, (double acting),

Forte, Swell Manual, Forte, Swell Manual, Plano, Reversible, to operate No. 25, Balanced Swell Pedal, Wind to be supplied by the "Little Giant" Hydraulic Motor.

The makers had not had time up to Friday evening to complete the work. The Gt. mixture was not in shape to be coupled up, and the reeds and mutation stops needed a more thorough tuning and smoothing up than they had received. It is to be hoped that this process will tone down the "high-fivers" a bit, for the general effect of the full organ (even without the mixture) is too shrill and fisring. Both of the diapasons and the melodia on the Great organ need to he of larger scale or put on greater wind pressure to give that solid foundation tone which, in a church organ, is particularly desirable.

Per contra, the flute tones are pure and sweet, the viola di gamba and other strings exceptionally clear and smooth, and the oboe one of unusual richness and evenness. The action is exceedingly easy and even, and all the mechanical parts seem to be of the best.
