How Ethelbert Nevin is Received by the Boston Critics.

NEWS OF OUR LOCAL MUSICIANS.

Sometimes pretty early in the next season—probably in October—the new Carnegie Music Hall in Allegheny will be completed and ready for some kind of an inaugural.

As the matter stands there is absolutely no person or committee with authority to set the ball rolling. The present Carnegie Commission will have ended its work when it hands the finished buildings over to Allegheny Councils for the public.

DEATH DEALING-GUNS

A Prussian Commander Recounts the Results of Experiments With Improved Modern Artillery.

How His Country Astonished Europe and Made Its Military Force

THE MOST PERFECT IN THE WORLD

The experience of Prince Krafft von Hohenhausen as a commander of artillery in the field is probably unrivaled among living officers.

In 1864, 1869 and 1870 he was in command of a Prussian artillery force. In 1870 he was in command of the Prussian artillery of the Guard. He has acquired in three campaigns a knowledge of his profession which confers the highest possible value upon his recently published letters, viewed merely in the light of a technical manual for the use of gunners.

The work has been done with characteristic thoroughness. The perfection of the material, the completeness of the system, the accuracy of the method of instruction, all are treated in a scientific spirit, and a persevering adaptation of means to ends, to which we have no parallel whatever in the military arrangements of this country.

But though a rigid and searching scientific method is followed in every detail, the Prussian Staff has never for a moment forgotten that whatever may be the perfection of appliances and the completeness of a system, the personal element in all cases must ever remain paramount.

HOW FRUSTRIATED EUROPE. The circumstances under which Prince Krafft's correspondence was commenced are in themselves typical of the spirit in which military problems are approached in Berlin.

In 1868 Prussia astonished the world by an advance of six weeks in the military operations of Austria. The rest of Europe, amazed at the result, hastened to do practical homage to the victor in a course of servile but not humiliating homage.
