HOW DISTILLERIES MIGHT DO GOOD

That there is always more or less typhoid fever in a large city during or just after a season of excessive heat, goes without saying. That there is a greater proportion of this malarial in certain sections of Allegheny this month than can be accounted for on any ordinary basis, has been noted in these columns heretofore.

SOME PREVENTIVE POINTERS.

But, speaking of typhoid fever, water or no water, a well-posed physician in Meadville has some interesting suggestions as to its cause and effect and the proper preventive measures to observe.

I understand that the citizens of Allegheny City are apprehensive that typhoid fever will prevail among them in the near future as an epidemic.

The means, however, of preventing typhoid fever as an epidemic is, for each family in city or elsewhere, to use pure water to prevail, to provide itself with pure water.

Distilled water is the purest, and when it can be had it is necessary to use it. Boiled water, the distillers could, if they would at such times, do an immense amount of good by furnishing the people with pure water instead of what they are now getting.

The lower strata of atmosphere at night are more highly charged with causes of disease than the upper; consequently sleeping rooms in the second or third stories of buildings tend to prevention of diseases from atmospheric causes, and should always be adopted by those who can do so.

Causes and effect therefore prove in spite of the disbelief of the learned as well as unlearned, that pure water prevents the spread of typhoid and yellow fever as epidemics.

ONE JUDGE IS OUT,

And the Retail Liquor Cases Must be Decided by the Other Two.

JUDGE EWING'S REASONS STATED

For Declining to Grant Any Rehearings in the License Applications.

IMPORTANT SUITS BEGAN IN COURTS

Judge Ewing called the attorneys, who had petitioned him to reconsider the retail liquor license decisions, into Common Pleas No. 2, yesterday, to hear his decision.

This is my opinion and I do not know what the other two judges who sat in Quarter Sessions, in March last, may think of the matter.

The act of Assembly requiring the Court of Quarter Sessions to hear and pass upon applications for license to sell liquor at retail prices on the Judge or Judges sitting the exercise of a discretion which cannot be judicially reviewed without hearing the cases, unless in the exceptional cases where the Judge has full personal knowledge of the locality of the house and the applicant.

First—Not having sat in Quarter Sessions during the March term, I do not feel qualified to pass upon the cases and grant licenses without a rehearing.

Second—Even if the first objection were out of the mind, I do not feel qualified to reopen the cases at this late day.

Third—After full consideration I am satisfied that, looking to the future, neither the public interest nor the interests of the petitioners would be promoted by a further consideration of the cases.

Fourth—After full consideration I am satisfied that, looking to the future, neither the public interest nor the interests of the petitioners would be promoted by a further consideration of the cases.

How it is RECEIVED. Josiah Cohen, one of the counsel of the liquor men on the license question, when asked his opinion of Judge Ewing's refusal to grant a rehearing yesterday, said:

"I have not as yet seen the associate counsel and consequently cannot say what he will do in the case, but I think the opinion given by Judge Ewing in defense of his refusal with considerable interest, and must say that I am surprised. I was in hopes that the Court would continue a case hearing as a usual judicial proceeding, in which case the rule that a final judgment entered at one term cannot be changed or set aside at another term of the same court, would not govern. I do not think that an appeal will be made to the Supreme Court."

The Supreme Trustees at the quarterly meeting held in Detroit last month promulgated a rule that all applications for membership must fill up Form B on the back of the application and forward the same to the State Secretary, W. C. Shiple, Cor. P. & O. Bldg.

The committee on the reunion to be held August 5 at Rock Point are making great preparations. All the grand officers are invited. One of the grand features of the day will be a foot race between the presidents of the branches in Allegheny county, the prize to be a handsome gold-mounted gavel. The last man in the race is to pay the supper.

The District Supreme Representatives and alternates in Allegheny county districts are John J. Shaw, Charles E. Cornelius, Esq., Frank P. Egan, Esq., and Monday the two were united in marriage in the office of Chief Brown. McAdams left his wife in front of City Hall and immediately sued for a divorce. He claims that he had been coerced into the marriage by Detective Conroy and others, who threatened if he did not marry Miss Earley to send him to prison.

Mrs. McAdams held that there had been no compulsion at all in the case, and that McAdams married her of his own free will. Pending a decision in the case Mrs. McAdams refused to court for an allowance from her husband. He was ordered to pay her $4 a week and her counsel fees. McAdams left the city, but through the intervention of Judge Ewing, the amount of the allowance, Mrs. McAdams filed a counter petition to have these proceedings stayed until the arrears of the allowance had been paid.

Judge Slagle, in his opinion on the two petitions, said that it was rather unseemly for McAdams to petition the Court, at the same time pleading himself out of his jurisdiction and speaking through an agent. For this reason he refused to reduce the allowance and granted a stay of proceedings until the arrears of the allowance had been paid.

A divorce was refused by Judge Slagle yesterday in the case of Elizabeth Mason against John Mason. The divorce had been asked for on the ground of indignities to her person. In his opinion Judge Slagle said that the proof showed no actual violence. The petition was based on one or two occasions, and that Mason frequently got drunk and then made serious charges against his wife, but there was nothing to show that she had been made burdensome and her condition unbearable, which was required in order to obtain a divorce.

A suit for a divorce was entered by John Griffiths against Sarah Griffiths, indignities to his person and intemperance were alleged.

Mrs. Fannie Shirz sued for a divorce from Harrison C. Shirz, alleging indignities to her person.

AN UNUSUAL PROCEEDING. An Appeal From the Decision of Arbitrators in a Law Case.

There was an unusual proceeding in Common Pleas No. 1, yesterday, Judge Slagle handed down an opinion setting aside the award of arbitrators for $13,000 in the suit of Hancock & Co. vs. the Columbia Iron and Steel Company of Uniontown, Pa. The arbitrators were A. Aiston, J. Ingram and George A. Cochran.

The two first named made the award, and when it was filed Messrs. O'Brien & Yeager, attorneys for the Columbia Iron and Steel Company, made application to have it set aside on the ground that arbitrators Aiston and Ingram had misbehaved in hearing evidence privately and without notice to defendant. The motion to set aside was sustained, although it had been agreed that it was to be submitted without exception or appeal, and the case will now go to a jury for trial. Major Brown and A. K. Stevenson represented the plaintiff.

A return was made to the Quarter Sessions Court yesterday of the special election held on Tuesday, July 16, in the borough of Bradock, on the question of increasing the indebtedness of the borough. The indebtedness was to be increased 3 per centum, amounting to $63,370 for the purpose of constructing a system of sewers throughout the borough. The vote on the question stood 334 in favor of increasing the indebtedness and 89 against it, deciding the matter in favor of having the sewers.

CHARLES ABBOTT yesterday entered suit against Messrs. Western Pennsylvania Writing Telegraph and Telephone Company, and the city of Pittsburgh. Abbott is a farmer, and claims that while driving down the hill he was struck on a loose wire belonging to the company and killed. The city, it is claimed, was negligent in allowing the wire to remain on the street. A boy who was in the wagon with Mr. Abbott, it is claimed, was severely shocked and is still in the hospital.

JUDGE SLAGLE yesterday granted a new trial in the case of James W. Friend against the city of Pittsburgh. The suit was on a bond for the fine of $100 for obstructing the view of Main street in the old borough of Templetonville. Interest was claimed on the bond for the time allowed and interest on the Controller refused to pay the interest, holding that the bond had been made at maturity. The bond had been given for Friend for the principal and interest. The city asked for a new trial.
