

The Dispatch. ESTABLISHED FEBRUARY 8, 1866. Vol. 4, No. 181. Entered at Pittsburgh Postoffice, November 14, 1887, as second-class matter.

29,914. Average net circulation of the daily edition of THE DISPATCH for three months ending July 24, 1890.

54,897. Copies per issue. TERMS OF THE DISPATCH. POSTAGE FREE IN THE UNITED STATES.

temporarily? The fact is that the trust is a form of organization to accomplish ends, which under favorable conditions, have been made just as offensive and dangerous to the public without that form.

SLANG AND ITS ORIGIN. A PUZZLE TO THE DOCTORS. RAY FEVER SUFFERERS. METROPOLITAN MURMURS. CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

NEW SOME POPULAR WORDS AND PHRASES. A PROJECT FOR A WATERWAY FROM BISMARCK TO ST. PAUL. HOTEL FOR BRIDAL PARTIES.

THE TYPHOID FEVER. A YOUNG GUY WHO HAS QUARANTEED HIMSELF. A MIDSUMMER MARRIAGE.

DEATHS OF A DAY. GENERAL VAN YLLET, the oldest Brigadier General in the United States Army, now on the retired list, is on his way from Washington to his home in New Jersey.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

AN URGENT DUTY. The facts which are set forth in our local columns concerning the overcrowded condition of the Dixmont Insane Asylum, does not reflect credit on our civilization.

OUR RIVER INTERESTS. The purchase of a controlling interest in the Cincinnati and Pittsburgh Packet Company indicates a gratifying tendency to the consolidation of the Pittsburgh interests in river transportation.

THE SPEAK-EASY PROBLEM. It was an accepted theory in police circles under the old liquor laws that the city force had nothing to do with people who sold illegally, unless wink at them.

THE TWIN STORY. A specimen of the flapdoodle with which it is attempted to feed the public, with regard to trade movements and railway interests, is afforded by a dispatch sent the other day from Chicago, concerning the report that a big syndicate of foreign capitalists is going to buy up the entire surplus wheat crop of the Northwest, and ship it to Europe by the railroads and Canadian Pacific routes.

PEOPLE OF PHILADELPHIA. THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.

CONFERENCE in the coke region affords the hope that the dispute will soon be satisfactorily compromised. But doubtful things are uncertain, the coke industry has amply proved that so far as the wage question is concerned, it belongs in that unreliable category.

It is announced that a man in New York, who created a sensation the other day by saying he was going to marry Mary Anderson, was "promptly arrested and sent to the insane asylum." But whether the wildness of the announcement or the manifest lack of sanity in the choice of a wife was the reason for adjudging him insane, the amiable paragoner omitted to state.

THE declaration of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange that it must have free bagging on the streets leading to the Exposition grounds. That idea is timely. All the streets should be put in neat order before the visiting thousands come to see the show, but particularly those which lead to the Point.

WHEN a single man with a shogun can rob a whole railroad train in Wisconsin, it is not necessary for heroic measures tending to induce a little and lead to the train and traveling public.

THE Queen will have a replica of her Jubilee portrait by Angel made for the Victoria Art Gallery at Melbourne.

WASHINGTON THE RIGHT PLACE. Chicago, with characteristic Western push, offers a premium of $250,000 to have the World's Fair of '92, while New York has not got beyond discussing a demand on the National Government for an appropriation.

PAPAL POSSIBILITIES. The idea that the Papal power is coming more closely into relation with Anglo-Saxon politics, and that the next Pope must be a man who can speak and think in English, if the seat of the Papacy is not transferred to some English-speaking territory, forms the basis of a very interesting article in the Contemporary Review, liberal extracts from which appear in this issue of THE DISPATCH.

TRUSTS AND PARTIES. A declaration is made by the Philadelphia American that the trusts are opposed to the purpose of the tariff, namely, the stimulation of competition among home industries, and that therefore, wherever a trust is formed that has the benefit of a protective tariff, the duty should be removed.