THE death of Comrade William Powers

There is considerable excitement in the boroughs of Mansfield and Chartiers over the question of consolidation. It is favored by one party and opposed by another. The friends of the scheme contend that it would materially increase the importance of each place, both in business and population, to combine them under one government. The other side is of the opinion that matters are well enough as they are, that consolidation would increase the taxes, and advise delay. Two joint meet-ings have been held to consider the proposi-tion. At one of these arrangements were made for a meeting in each of the boroughs to further consider the question, and a commit-tee, consisting of the borough attorneys and several prominent eitizens, was appointed to devise a plan whereby consolidation may be iscally accomplished. The probability is that the project will go through. Some think that enough tarritory and people will be taken in to make a city of the third class. So far this season over 100 men have qualified as marksmen in the different companies, and by the last of October, the time specified to stop practice, it is probable that the number will be doubled. Among the officers who have placed good scores to their credit are: Colonel Smith, Captains Roessing, Harper, Awi, Penny, Hock-ert, Harvey, Simmons and Coon, and Lieuten-ants Matthews, Little, Lowrr, Pearson, Rust, Doak ond Lauer. The interest taken by the officers is stimulating to the enlisted men, as the results this year will show. In the Fourteenth Begiment the tour at Johnstown held back the target practice very considera-bly, but Lieutenant Brown, the imspector of rifle practice, expects to make almost as good a showing as last year, although fi is requiring hard work.
