

THE KING OF THE FOREST.

ERNEST H. HEINRICHS.

[WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATCH.]

OLD and cutting the wintry blasts blew from the North. It was in midwinter...

The logs were now alone in the room except the kitten, who was making herself comfortable in the front of the fire...

"What, what have you to complain about?" said the pine.

"Complain about?" replied the oak. "Nothing whatever now, but I have spent a very exciting life, full of adventures...

"I was born and raised in one of the largest of Europe's forests a hundred years ago...

This year after year rolled by until I had grown to be the tallest, strongest and handsomest oak in the forest...

One day a number of men came into the wood and with axes and saws they looked around from tree to tree until at last they stopped at a tree which I had hidden in.

"There is the one we want! Look at it—the finest and straightest tree that ever grew in this part of the country..."

They called the place where I now was Glasgow, and from all I could understand, I was to be made a mast on a ship.

board, but the slaver was armed from the knee to the bow...

Now I understood what the cruelty of mankind was. Now I comprehended how they could treat their own kind as they did...

"Then the two wooden logs settled themselves close together, the oak came over to listen also, and the oak began to tell her story."

"I was born and raised in one of the largest of Europe's forests a hundred years ago...

and we had to be very careful after that. But in spite of all that we were overtaken one day by a big steamer that was full of soldiers and guns...

But before the pine could begin Bridget came in, and when she noticed the fire was getting low from the stove...

REMEDIES FOR YELLOW FEVER. A Scientific Discovery That May be of the Greatest Value.

It was announced some time ago that a South American physician had discovered that inoculation would prevent yellow fever.

One of the great problems of medical science has been to find such a remedy for the yellow fever microbe as quinine is known to be for the microbe of malaria...

Ruffed Grouse Shooting in Pennsylvania and Also Some Deer.

[WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATCH.]

It is said that the modern Briton regards it as the whole duty of man to go somewhere and kill something. The modern American seems to be built on much the same plan.
