SECOND WEEK OVER

And the Exposition People Smile as They Count the Proceeds.

THE SHOW IS A DECIDED SUCCESS.

From 2,000 to 5,000 Excursionists Were Present Yesterday.

THE ADVANTAGES QUITE APPARENT

The second week of the Exposition, ending to-day, has brought surprises with it to both the public and management. Even at the beginning of the week the Exposition was nothing more than a theory, but now its practical use has been demon-

It is certainly a pleasant thing for Pittsburg merchants to see some 2,000 to 5,000 excursionists in this city who would not be here if they had not the money and the time to spend. When these 5,000 excursionists run up to 12,000 or 15,000, even 20,000 daily, as they will very soon, then the practical utility of such a magnificent and popular Exposition will be seen.

The attendance during the week has been more than fair; it has been large, and it increases every day, and at the present rate of progression some outside amusement must be devised by the fertile minded management to take care of the tremendous crowds expected next week.

not only in the Exposition itself, but also in the city. People from the country have already fallen into the habit of dropping around in the Exposition early in the day, when the large crowds do not interfere with a careful examination of anything interesting. They are thus enabled to fully appreing. They are thus enabled to fully appreciate the remarkably perfect exhibits in every sense, and to pass hours, if they wish, in making a careful survey of the art galleries, when they have all the time necessary. This enables them to devote a certain portion of their time to outside amusements, and Manager Gulick, of the Bijou, recognizing this, is negotiating for the privilege of putting up a handsome sign on the grounds.

The musical programme for to-day, as prepared by the Great Western Band, presents some excellent selections:

PART I .- 2 o'clock.

PART II .- 4 o'clock. 1. Overture—Hungarian Lustspiel Keler-Bela
2. Episode Militaire—'Passing Reveries". Dolworth
3. Selection—Investigation. Braham
4. Characteristic—The First Heart
Throbs. Eilenberg
5. Yankee Patrol—Comic. Missud

The Oboe and Bassoon Duet in the evening The Observation and Dasson will attract considerable attention. Messrs, Beckert and Musser will give the duet, and Conductor Weis promises something even more than ordinarily good.

S. HAMILTON'S

Piane and Organ Display.

Piane and Organ Display.

Wood, iron, steel, ivory, felt, silver and ebony in the abstract, do not convey the idea of music, yet put these materials in the hands of such manufacturers as Decker Bros. Knabe, Fisher, Estey, Clough & Warren and others shown at this great exhibit, and you find that in combination, the greatest musical instruments of the age are the result. The space is full to overflowing with the samples shown by Mr. Hamilton, this festival season, of the pianes and organs which he carries in his immense stock. It is a handsome exhibit, and the idea, "music," is thoroughly carried out at all points. The names associated with pianos and organs, have been carved in black lettering into the border of the space; music adorns the gate posts, piano stools are in form of lyres, cabinets for sheet music stand about: piano lamps are here and there, and last mentioned but first in importance are the pianos and organs themselves. Of course, Decker Bros take procedence as the leading piano carried by Hamilton. How they ring out like beautiful bells! dence as the leading piano carried by Hamilton. How they ring out like beautiful bells! Unlike bells, they are wonderfully sympathetic—indeed, every emotion may be expressed upon them. The Knabe pianos, too, hold high rank among the first-class instruments, many competent judges declaring them to be second to none, and the Baby Grand is a most delicious example of what the Knabe is worth to the lover of music. Then there is a very fine Estey cabinet and a J. & C. Fisher upright and others that go to swell the list of pianos that the pubthat go to swell the list of pianos that the pub-lic know and appreciate. There is great va-riety in the cases as to finish, and as to the woods employed, such as butternut (which is the Estey), and rosewood, in fact in every style the Essey), and rosewood, in fact in every style to suit the artistic drawing rooms and average parlors of to-day. Some of the music racks are adjustable, others stationary, with and without carving, inland in musical designs and plain. A chance to suit every taste be it ever so carriculars or serious.

A chance to suit every taste be it ever so capricious or exigent.

There are the Estey organs, which are universally conceded to be the best, and for which remarkably low prices are asked. If the expression may be allowed, they are a convenient organ, suitable for churches, parlors and schools. They have the largest number of reeds, a great variety of stops, and after each instrument is "voiced," it is carefully tested before leaving the factory. There is in the exhibit a large Clough & Warren church organ, a very valua-"voiced," is in the exhibit a man-the factory. There is in the exhibit a very valua-Clough & Warren church organ, a very valua-clough & Warren church organs also in a ble instrument, and a number of smaller organs of the same make. Apart from their value in a musical sense, these organs are each handsome pieces of furniture, with their attractive cabinets, handsome carvings and generally rich cases. Indeed, where everything shown deserves commendation it is difficult to pick out points here and there to mention. The Hamilton is near the center of the main hall, where the visitors are at all times made welcome, and to those who would like to see the stock which furnished such specimens a courteous invitation is given to call at the warerooms, Nos. 91 and 93 Fifth, avenue, and examine the great line of punos and organs always on view; for despite the immense sales of this house, the stock is kept up to the standard by constant replenishing from the different factories from plenishing from the different factories from which Mr. Hamilton draws his supplies.

PASTEUR FILTERS AND HOUSE FUR-NISHING GOODS.

Demmler Bros., 526 and 528 Smithfield St. If the ladies of Pittsburg have not every convenience for carrying on the work of their kitchens and households generally, the fault does not lie with Demmiler Bros. for in their perfectly delightful exhibit they show every possible article from a Pasteur filter to a neat possible article from a Pasteur filter to a neat contrivance for greasing the griddle. The Pasteur filter takes precedence over all other things, because it means pure water and freedom from diseases caused by water right from hydrants. It can be kept absolutely clean. The tubes can never become clogged, but are as easily kept in order as a plate or a goblet. Then the New Eta hydraulic clothes washer, which works on the principle of the cylinders for whipping cream; and the Empire roaster which works on the principle of the cylinders for whipping cream; and the Empire roaster and baker, one iron pan fitting closely over another, the lower one having a rack upon which the meat resta to prevent it being soddened by contact with the juices of the meat; when the meats are cooked you open a cunningly devised ventilator, the steam passes away and the roast is browned without burning; and there are perforated pie plates for pies made of juicy fruits, and boss coffee pots, in which you make fragrant coffee, all the aroma preserved, in just one minute. It would take columns simply to enumerate the admirable and desirable things on view in this band-some and useful exhibit.

AS TO COL. GRANT.

Ex-Consul W. B. Scalle Makes Some Corrections in His Interview. Walter B. Scaife, ex-Deputy Consul General to Vienna, writes THE DISPATCH to say that the interview which occurred between him and a reporter, appeared in print with some inaccuracies. For instance, he cites the following: Furthermore, your allusion to Colonel Grant's Furthermore, your allusion to Colonel Grant's acquirements is unjust to him and to me, and you will do me the favor to say that he impressed me as a man of unusual ability and, energy, and I feel confident he will be a success at Vienna. I related a story of stupidity of another diplomate, which your reporter evidently misapplied. Let me add that there is a crying need for general reform in our diplomatic and consular service; that every American who mingles with educated Europeans is frequently given a shameface by the perfectly justifiable remarks made about our reational policy in those branches of the civil service.

TANNER'S SUCCESSOR.

Unless it is General Warner No One Know Who it Will Be-The Grand Army Ex-Commander in Washington.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 WASHINGTON, September 13 .- All day long the efforts of the news gatherers were directed toward getting from the Secretary of the Interior some statement of the correspondence that had passed between him and the Commissioner of Pensions, as it was thought it would afford an insight into the true inwardness of the trouble; but up to a late hour to-night the labors of the most intimate friends of the Secretary had failed to make any impression on him, and not a word of the correspondence was forthcoming. This is wanted very much, as it is the only clew to the bottom of the mystery, but it is probable that the only influence that will bring it out is the circulation of intemperate strictures of the administration by the friends of Tanner.

General Warner, of Missouri, arrived here at about 3 o'clock this afternoon and held a consultation with Secretary Noble, held a consultation with Secretary Noble, but did not see the President. To be away from interviewers he is out at a country hotel at Forest Glen, nine miles from the city, and he is therefore not easily reached, and if he was would have nothing to say. He has not decided whether he will accept the position of Commissioner of Pensions or not, but will probably reach a conclusion to-morrow, when he will have a consulta-tion with the President and the Secretary of the Interior A great pressure is being brought to bear on the General to accept the position by Re-publicans who regret the trouble in the Penason Office, and who desire that it shall One thing has been shown during the great attendance of this week, and that is the interest displayed by outside visitors, the control of the office by the late Commander of the Grand Army would be the surest obviation of all chance of a serious kick, though most of the members of the body in this city appear to think that the administration knows what it is about and must have had a good reason for the prompt removal of the Com-missioner, as the change occurred on the eve of important elections.

There is little or no doubt that General Warner has been tendered the office and there seems to be a quite general hope that he will accept the place. This hope is ex-pressed by Democrats as well as Republi-

Secretary Noble said to-night that there was nothing new to say concerning the ap-pointment of a successor to Mr. Tanner. The report of the commission that exam-ined the administration of the pension bureau under the Secretary's orders, will be in print to-morrow, and a copy furnished Mr. Tanner. He has already seen it in manu-script. Whether or not it will be made public is not yet determined.
