SCENES AND INCIDENT OF THE WORK

Few people have any idea of the execu tive ability required to place a show of such magnitude as Barnum's on the road, or carry it from town to town, and exhibit with a precision as to time and detail which many a General in the field might

Yesterday morning, at 5 o'clock, the first section of the equipment train of Barnum's sisting of the baggage and horse cars, and three coaches of the working people and those of the cuisine, was bauled in, and the work of disembarkation begun. To accomplish this is in the department of the Master f Transportation, whose duty it is to see to the unloading and loading of the entire equipment, and take general charge of the relling stock.

The horses are gotten out, yoked in their respective wagons, now loaded with divers freight, and they move forward to the ground, already occupied by the man in charge of the tents, and his cohort of 120 assistants, to whom the material is delivered, and the erection of the tents begun. Simultaneously with the arrival of the foremost wagons, enter on the scene the chiefs of the culinary department, who straightway erect their gipsy like cooking apparatus and have breakfast prepared for the energetic workers in very short order.

THE ANIMALS COME NEXT.

Next in order appear the superintendent of animals with his charges, the trainer in charge of the elephants, with his 13 assistants, another man in care of the properties and his 16 men, and in an incredibly short time the whole of the vast show is assembled, tents erected and everything ship-shape and in apple-pie order.

When a representative of this paper visited those Gardens of Elysium in Alle-gheny on which the name of Exposition Park has been bestowed, it was to find the extensive area taken possession of by strangers, huge tents erected on the ground, and people not of local reputation passing through and iro. Passing within the barriers, the old wooden pavilion, formerly used as a restaurant, was seen to have undergone a transformation. Scores of waiters were bustling about preparing the long rows of tables for the midday meal. Ontside, in a wagon, were the cooking ranges in full swing, and at a table nearby was a confectioner, in white cap and apron, operating on chicken patties. This department is contracted for by Mr. Robbins, and it is a feature of the management that the meals are as good as could be wished. The catering, though independent of the show, is still dependent on it. Mr. Robbins provides all edful help, as for instance a corps of 55 wniters, half a dozen cooks, etc., and the als are charged for at a uniform price of 23 cents to everyone, which he is paid by the management every day on presentation of the coupons. The contractor has always man in advance to arrange for the provisioning, and some idea of the amount required to feed the host of circus people when it is stated that of meat alone 1,300 pounds are consumed daily.

THE CLANG OF HAMMERS.

In the hig top or circus tent preparation was being made for to-day. On one hand were gangs of men slinging heavy hammers with a rat, tat, tat, tat, which quickly sent the long pegs to the level of the ground, and on the other cheery workers were putting up the seating accommodation. In the ploughman and his team w turning up the clay for the formation of one of the rings, and with saitor-like agility, at the top of the poles, were painters engaged in putting on fresh paint, indicating that not ven the smallest details were overlooked in the production of the show.

Next in order came the "Illusion Tent," of black canvas, where a wooden platform had already been put down, and the dark hoodcoic looking cabinets placed in position. The young elephant, "Mary" reared in Africa and trained in Germany, who does some wonderful tricks with a velocipede, was swaying her small body from side to side, and no doubt ruminating on the mutability of human affairs, which made her a queen of the torest in her infancy, and in her budding womanhood a thing of sport and pastime. In a corner were some 20 Algerians arrayed in the unassuming raiment of their country, with ashawashee, or head covering, bernous, pantaloous, bontines and clintures. A very quiet and self-contained lot of people these, who, though now performing for the edification of the multitude, were, and for that matter are still, many of them, sheiks in their own country. Deenly resentful are they of the manner in which they have been guyed while on their travels, and it speaks well for their self-control that they do not retaliate in the manner, as a chief informed the writer, he would in Algeria, by using the knife.

CAN'T TALK UNITED STATES.

Though some of them have been for over a year in America they have not succeeded in acquiring United States, and are able to converse only in French, in which they are all proficient, and in Arabic. All of these men are desert Arabs, and own Constantina, in Algeria, as their dwelling place.

Passing over to the horse tent, wherein 315 equines found first-class entertainment, a glimpse of life, as passed with the en-campment, was seen. Here was a man, at cents per shave, which he mostly never reeeived, he declared, and whose sign was exhibited on a piece of paper stuck into his bat, and bearing the legend, "Pay to-day; trust to-morrow." Another was writing, perhaps, to his best girl, a small board doing duty as a desk, and a pile of hay a chair and lounge combined, and sundry others were passing the time with cheap literature or papers. These had gotten through their work, for others were still engaged in watering and feeding horses and cleaning up the harness.

Over in the dressing tent the property man was met with. He pointed out how each performer's box was arranged always each performer a box was arranged always in the same order, so that the moment a man or lady entered their respective quarters they knew at once where to find their particular trunk. Here also a barber was officiating. None of the performers were visible, as they are quartered in hotels. The men retire to the cars at night to sleep, leaving some dozen of their number on duty as

Mr. R. Hamilton, the courteous press agent of the combination, explained the different features of the show to the representatives of the press, and afterward introduced them to the interior of the supply department, where an agreeable half hour was possed in discussing news and-exchanging

RAILROAD MEN IN TOWN.

B. & O. Officials on Their Annual Inspection -The Improved Flunncial Condition of

The party of general officers and directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, who are making an inspection of the 1,800 miles of line in that system, arrived on their special train, over the Pittsburg division, at 6:10 o'clock Saturday evening. They registered at the Monongahela house. The party consists of the following gentlemen: Charles F. Mayer, President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; First Vice President Oriand Smith, Vice President Thomas M. King, General Manager I. T. Odell and James Sloan, of Baltimore; George de B. Keim, of Philadelphia, one of the receivers and former President of the Reading Railroad; 1. B. Mo-Donald and I. Pennington, of Baltimore; Edward R. Bacon, of New York, and three secretaries, William Anderson, J. F. Broderick

and G. M. Schriver.

The party left Baltimore on Thursday, and

The party left Baltimore on Wheeling this evening they will depart for Wheeling and Chicago. On Saturday evening all the gentlemen of the party, except President Mayer, visited the Exposition. Mr. Mayer remained in his room. General-Manager Odell said that business over the road was accomplished the considerably shead of that very brisk and considerably ahead of that done during the corresponding period in 1888. He and other members of the party expressed themselves as well pleased with the Exposition.

In conversation with friends whom he met in this city, President Mayer expressed gratification at the financial and property condition of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail-road. It is believed that the gross earnings for the current month will reach $2,000,000 and the net carnings $500,000. When all the accounts have been adjusted the net earnings for all the lines during August, 1889, will probably exceed by $200,000 the net earnings for August, 1888.

A large share of the increased traffic is attributed to the opening of the line from Philadelphia to New York. Travelers from the West who formerly went to New York by other lines, now travel by the Baltimore and Ohio, which gives them an opportunity to stop over in Washington. The revenue of the Philadelphia division for August shows an increase in net earnings of $11,700 over the net earnings for August, 1888, which was the best month

Sunday afternoon nearly all of the party were entertained at the Duquesne Club. Some of them enjoyed a carriage drive about the city. The length of their stay in this city gave rise to the opinion that they contemp'ated some changes here. Vice President King said that the object of the stay was simply to look over the property here. A number of the officials had not seen the new depot. Mr. King said: "The large increase in the business done is due principally to the fact that there is much more business being done generally in the country. All lines have an increased traffic. Our increase is not owing to the opening of the New York line exclusively. All divisions of our road show an improvement. The net earnings for August, 1889,

AN OLD DODGE.

But it Worked Successfully, and Miller Got the Plunder.

John Schroedel, who keeps a boarding house at 398 Thirty-third street, yesterday reported to the police that on last Thursday he had been robbed. On Thursday morning a man who gave his name as Miller called at Schroedel's house, and engaged boarding and a room. He was shown a room which he said pleased him, and he asked permission to occupy it for a few moments to change his clothing. Mrs. Schroedel granted the request, but that was the last she saw of Miller, he having entered the room of another boarder, who was in bed asleep, and robbed him of a silver watch and chain and $4 65 in money. Miller also captured Schroedel's umbrella. From the description given he is evidently the same man that robbed several Allegheny houses in a similar manner

CO-OPERATIVE PIANOS.

Home.

Offers the following inducements, if wish to pay cash: By becoming a member you will save $75 in the price of the piano, and get it at once. If you cannot spare the cash you can get your pisno any time, on payment of $25 cash and $2 50 per week, no interest, and still save $75 in the price. If you cannot pay so fast, by waiting until your number is drawn you will get your piano on payments of $1 per week, no interest, and save $75 in the regular price to our retail trade. Think of this! Our club is composed of 350 members, each paying $1 per week. Thus you see the members are buying for cash, and one piano is delivered to the member whose number is drawn each week, until all are supplied, or, if one-half of the members take their pianos and pay $2 50 per week, we deliver twice the number, and get double the amount of cash each week, and it leaves only one-half the number to be drawn on the $1 weekly payments. It is a simple business problem. We are saving our members the problem. We are saving our members the difference in price by contracting for 350 pianos at one time, and on a cash basis. We have now enough members to guarantee the success of this plan, and have decided to begin delivering the pianos on Saturday, September 21. Do not wait, but apply for membership at once. Call and see the piano, or send for circular.

We have commenced delivering these pianos before our club was entirely full, to con-vince our members and the public that the Everett Club has come to stay. It is a practical, common-sense business proposition, and must win. Do not be misled by our competitors, but come and see for your self and apply for membership at once.

A LAND OF ARTISTS.

A. Bryan Wall, Fresh From Europe, Talks About Foreign Painters.

MAGNIFICENT STUDIOS THE RULE. How the American Knight Lives and Works

on the Continent. THE PICTURES AT THE EXPOSITION

A. Bryan Wall, the distinguished Pittsburg artist, has just returned home after a prolonged tour of European countries. His visits to the various capitals were for the purpose of inspecting the works of art of ancient, medigwal and modern painters, He speaks in glowing terms of the grand galleries, noble in architecture and nobler in the gems they contain. To describe them, he says, defies speech. In the many places he visited he was able to see all the styles of painting executed in every decade of modern civilization. While absent he was privileged to meet and converse with some of the most celebrated French painters in their studios. In an interview with a DISPATCH reporter last night he said:

"I called on a painter who now makes his home in Paris but is an American by birth, D. Ridgeway Knight, a man of whom we feel proud. His house is five miles out of Paris, at Poissy, and adjoins the home of Meissonier, one of the greatest living painters. The domain is inclosed by a high wall. As you enter a grand scene of exquisite landscape gardening unfolds itself before your eye. No matter which way the eye turns, a thrill of delight runs through one at the variety of the beautiful arranged artificial scenery.

KNIGHT'S GLASS STUDIO.

"At right angles with the house, Knight has built an elegant glass studio. Its appointments are quite lavish. The floor is covered with the finest carpets, the tables are loaded with choice china, the shelves full of bric-a-brac which he has picked up, first making sketches of them, afterward using them for the adornment of his studio. Behind the mansion is an old French courtyard, which was a necessary part of the old nobleman's eastle. Inside the house, which is a marvel of luxurious furniture, Knight has a studio on the third floor, which is similar in its arrangement to the outside one. From the windows a stretch of scenery unrivaled in the vicinity of Paris is pre-sented to the view. The blue Scine flows beneath in its winding course to the sea.

"Madrazo is a French painter I met. He lives in the heart of Paris. His salon is a very grand one, from the hall magnificently painted, to the studio, situated at the top of the house. This studio is one floor through the length and breadth of the house, roofed over by glass. Here you will see old armor, drapery, actique furniture and Gobelin tapestry. A peculiarity of the studio is that no two pieces of furniture match. Hanging on the wall is a picture painted by Fourtney, a brother-in-law of Madrazo, called 'Soldiers on Parade,' which is highly prized by the owner.

PAINTING A QUEEN'S FACE. "Upon the easel, the painter had a portrait of the Queen of Spain, which was almost finished. Madrazo has a number of pupils, their studio being on the second floor. The private studio of this artist is, like himself, elegant and refined. Madrazo is very neat. His clothes are as artistic as his paintings "After visiting Madrazo I went to see Henner, a very clever portrait painter. Before you can get into his studio you are obliged to go through a back entrance into a kitchen, where you invariably meet a decrepit old woman, and then you pass through a narrow passage which terminates in a handsome octagonal studio. The fur-niture and collections in the studio are odd, but they are arranged with such evident prized in Paris. Henner is a strange man a bachelor, whose life is absorbed in his work. Pelouse, another artist I saw, has a suite of square rooms at the top of his house roofed by glass, and crowded with costly gems, porcelain and drapery, odd chairs and china. In every studio I visited the character of the man was ascertained by the arrangement of his studio. "The art collection in the Paris Exposi-tion is the finest of modern paintings that has ever been gathered under one roof. lower part of the gallery contains the best pictures that have been exhibited in the salon for the last five years. All the prize pictures are there and rival one another for first place. Indeed, it would be invidious to single them out. Some of them, however, are worth special mention. The upper part of the gallery contains the works of dead artists.

"The space is cut into compartments, each containing the complete works of an artist. Compartments are devoted to the works of Corot, D'Aubigny, Millet, Rousseau, Trayon, Diaz, Mauve and Breton. In the corridors Bastien Le Page, a French peasant, exhibits a remarkable picture of his grandfather. The flesh color is perfect, the general tone excellent, the texture fine and the character brought out in the face is truly wonderful. Quite handy to this picture is a fine cabunel, a reposing female figure, which is unequaled in this special branch of art. Lesebre exhibits all of his best female fig-Munkacsy's 'Crucifixion' and 'Christ before Pilate' hang side by side. "There has been some disappointment felt over the American collection. I think this is wrong. Our artists show up well. C. S. Reinhart, a Pittsburger, exhibits a splendid picture called 'Un Pave.' The subject is washed ashore. A man is lying on the beach dead, and another is kneeling beside him. At the left stand a group around a French officer, telling him the circumstances of the wreck, while he takes notes. This is one of the best of our collection, another picture of his, also a water subject, called Le Maree Montante.' Dan R. Knight's exhibits, 'Calling the Fairy,' Charles S.

Pearce's 'Misty Morning Sheep,' H. Bolton
Jones' 'Autumn,' W. Jones' two small pictures of Brooklyn Park, Dannot's 'Serenade,' and the original sketches by Abbey, are the best in the American collection." Mr. Wall finds that young European artists are straining to secure odd subjects and make large pictures for the purpose of attracting attention and securing quick sales for their work.

THE CORNER STONE LAID

The Ceremony Performed Over the New Southside Polish Church-It Will Cost

$45,000 When Finished. The corner stone of the new Saint Adelbert's Polish Catholic church at the head of South Fifteenth street, was laid at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Bishop Phelan in the presence of 5,000 people. Preceding the laying of the corner stone was a parade of all the Polish societies in the two cities.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the procession of priests which included Bishop Phelan, Fathers Bernard Wall, Bernardine, Gallagher, Strub, Christopher, Wenderlin, Duffner, Deasy, Schramm, Jawrski, Dombrowski, Miskewicz and Edmund, preceded by a dozen altar boys, marched from the old church, which is just across the street, and the ceremony preceding the laying of the corner stone was performed. The ceremony corner stone was performed.

consisted of the procession of priests passing around the foundation walls singing a chant while the Bishop blessed the foundation by sprinkling it with holy water. After this the corner stone was placed in position and lowered to its resting place. The box which was placed in the stone contained a copy of each of the daily papers, the records of the church, the names of the clergy participating in the ceremonies and some of the dif-After the ceremony Bishop Phelan preached an instructive sermon. He was tollowed by Father Emanuel and Father
