RELATIVES OF AN EXECUTED MURDERER, DENIED BY THE LAW'S OFFICERS. ONE LAST LOOK AT HIS FACE, BEREAVE THE REMAINS FROM THE GRAVE AND HOLD A WAKE UPON THEM.

THE GUARDS OUTWITTED SHERWOLD. And Mother, Father, Brother and Wife Mourning Over the Corpse.

Despite the efforts to prevent the family of the executed murderer, Hillman, from seeing the face of their dead, a clever ruse was played on the officers in charge of the grave, and while they were dining the body was removed and kept in the home of the deceased's father over night.

PHILADELPHIA, November 14.—The distorted face, the ghastly tear in the neck, the hair, the mangled body, the body of the murderer who was so bunglingly executed at Woodbury yesterday have been viewed by the family, despite the efforts of Sheriff Ridgeway to bury Hillman without his friends again looking on his face.

When the limp form of Hillman was taken from the gallows it was placed in the coffin and given into the charge of Under-taker Jeffrey. As the undertaker started for the grave, the mother, who was in his father's yard, two deputy sheriffs, William Smith and James Carr, followed in a carriage directly in the rear of the hearse.
