In the Criminal Court vesterday W. H.

Smith was placed on trial for murdering his wife. The degree of murder was not stated by District Attorney Porter. The lawyers had considerable trouble in getting a jury. W. H. Smith, the colored man who murdered his wife on the 3d of September last, and then tried to commit suicide, was placed on trial in the Criminal Court, before Judge White yesterday, The prosecution is represented by District Attorney again. Porter, and the defense by Thomas M. Marshall, Esq., John Marron, Esq., General Blakeley and Attorney McElroy. Almost all day was consumed in securing a jury. Nearly the entire panel was exhausted before the requisite number of jurors were se-cured. Among others called was Rev. Gustavus Lauch, of the Twenty-sixth ward, who surprised the Court by stating that he had conscientious scruples against capital punishment. Judge White wanted to know where he got those scrupies, and Mr. Lauch said he could not speak English good enough to go into a discussion of the

The jury to try the case is composed as follows:

John Askey, Allegheny: James Casey,
Sharpsburg: S. R. Caskey, Pittsburg; David
Forsythe, Franklin township; Nathaniel J.

SENT NOTES HOME. After the jury had been given a chance to where they were, said notes having been carefully examined by Judge White, the case was opened by District Attorney Porter, who explained to the jury the different degrees of murder. He detailed the crime for which Smith is accused. He did not say what degree the Commonwealth would demand. The first witness called was Charlotte Smith, mother of the murdered woman, who testified that her daughter Mary was 30 years old when she met ber death. Mary bid previously been married to a man named Joshua Turner. She had been married to Smith two or three years are, and send notes home informing their friends of married to Smith two or three years ago, and the witness had seen their marriage certificate. Mrs. Smith was at her daughter's house on the Sunday previous to the shorting. Mr. and Mrs. Smith did not seem to be on the best of terms. He cut a watermelon and offered the witness a slice, but did not give any to his wife. Her daughter handed her a piece of cake which she did not want to take, and the defendant administration of the state of the defendant administration of the state of the defendant administration. which said do not want to take and the defendant advised her to take it, saying that there might not be any when she came again. The witness also saw the defendant go to the window, and as he looked out he said: "It will not atways be day for her." The witness did not see her daughter again until after the shooting. During the recital of her story the mother way. her story the mother wiped away a few tears, but made no particular scene,

THE DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY. Dr. J. Guy McCandless testified to having made the post-mortem on the body of the murdered woman. He stated that he found one external wound, that was about an inch and a bullet penetrated the brain structure. The bullet was found on the right side of the skull, and had taken a slightly downward course. The bullet taken from the head of the deceased The deceased, the witness stated, was about 30 years old, a mulatto in color, and appeared to have been in excellent physical condition. The wound inflicted was sufficient to cause instant death.
On cross examination by Mr. Marshall Dr.

een held close to the head, as be found powder marks about the wound.

H. Grant Miller, Coroner's clerk, was next H. Grant Miller, Coroner's clerk, was next called, and testified that he went to the house, 124 Fulton street, on the morning of the shooting, and found the body of Mrs. Smith in the bed. She was laying partially on her side, as if sleeping. Witness had the body removed to the morgue. He noticed a bullet hole in the temple. On searching the bed witness found a razor under the sheet, about 15 inches from where the body lay; he also found the shell of a cartridge on top of the sheet. The bed showed no evidence of a struggle. Witness knew both the deceased and the defendant, they having lived near him at one time. The revolvet with which the shooting was done was given to the Coroner by Officer Terry, and was in the same condition now as when handed to him. At this

One of the most important issues of the day is the proposal for the federation of the Australian Colonies, set forth in the dispatch which Sir Henry Parkes, the Premier of New South Wales, has addressed to the Premiers of the other colonies in Australia. It is in reality an invitation to meet and consider the formation of an independent combination of the colonies, a sort of United States in Australia. Most of the colonies probably will not exactly so regard it, and England has not the faintest suspicion of its meaning. The proposal has come about through the ndvice of the Military Commissioner whom England sent to assist the Australians to a common scheme of national defense. He reported in favor of a Federal Australian army, and Sir Henry Parkes, who is a Federalist, but not an Imperial Federalist, at heart, has seized the opportunity and boldly tells the colonies that the time has come for a grand federation, not only for military protection, but for all the uses that are implied by the term.

in Church Circles.

Polite society in Auburn, N. Y., is acquittal and three for a verdict of manshocked to its very center. The wife of a prominent banker, herself a great church worker and society favorite, has boldly left town with a young dude bookkeeper, deserting her husband and young daughter. Mr. Longstreet, the wronged husband, has applied for a divorce.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. AUBURN, N. Y., November 18 .- Mrs. Clara C. Longstreet, wife of George B. Longstreet, Teller of the National Bank of Auburn, brought a summer's folly to a close and shocked Auburn's 400, Saturday evening, by leaving the city in company with Louis H. Leach, a young man employed as bookkeeper by the Birdsall Manufacturing Company. Strictly speaking, it was not an elopement, for no attempt at secrecy was made. The pair went to the New York

Central station together, and took the 8:50 P. M. train, West.
Young Leach, who is good-looking and built on the dude plan, blossomed out Saturday afternoon with a new silk hat and a new overcoat. He called at a clothing store and bought such a large quantity of shirts, cuffs and collars that the clerk who waited upon him had his suspicions aroused and concluded that he and Mrs. Longstreet were about to take the final step in a scandal that had agitated Auburn's high society all sum-Leach has been so bold in his attentions to Mrs. Longstreet that the matter has

He has com-menced proceedings to obtain an absolute

It is the general opinion that Mr. Longstreet knew that his wife and Leach intended to leave town together, for on November 8 there was filed in the office of the county clerk in this city a deed from Mrs. Longstreet to her husband. It transferred certain real estate in this city. Mrs. Longstreet is worth about $20,000 in her own right, which she inherited from the estate of her father, the late Colonel William H. Carpenter, who was a prominent business man. He died about three years ago.

AN ACTIVE CHURCH WORKER. Mrs. Longstreet has been very prominent in society, and took an active interest in the work of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Mrs. Longstreet's friends have used every possible means to bring her to a realization of her conduct, but to no purpose. Her pastor, the Rev. Dr. Brainard, called at the house for the purpose of remonstrating with her, but she refused him an audience. Her sister, Mrs. Warren A. Worden, called for the same purpose, and was accorded the same reception. The name of Frank the same reception. The name of Frank W. Lightfoot, a young colored barber, has figured picturesquely in the scandal. Light-foot is a very handsome colored fellow and dresses with taste. He and Mrs. Longstreet have been seen walking together on the back streets of the city, and he has been seen en-tering and leaving her residence numerous

A great many of the woman's friends are of the opinion that she is crazy. Before she and Leach left town they said that they were going to Ohio, and would be married as soon as Mr. Longstreet had secured his Then they were coming back to Auburn to live.

CHARLESTON, S. C., November 18.— Jones, the model Edgefield family murderer, has made his fifth escape from the rather feeble clutches of the law in Edgefield county. The jury having his case in charge failed to agree upon a verdict. A mistrial was ordered. When the jury was being organized for Jones' fifth trial it was discovered before the panel was completed that a juryman had been sworn in who had expressed an opinion. The State's Attorney made an effort to get him recalled, but Bad Break of a Society Leader and an active Worker that this was not the only Jones juryman who got on the jury. When the jury was discharged it is said that it stood nine for slaughter. Some two or three years ago Jones wiped out his father-in-law and his two brothersin-law because they wanted him to pay rent for a farm that he had hired from them. It was a clean piece of work. He met his father-in-law in the field. The old man was 75 years of age, and paralyzed, and Jones blew out his brains. Then he killed the old man's two sons. He was first tried for the murder of the old man, and was convicted of manslaughter, the lesser degree of murder. He appealed from the verdict and has since been tried three times for the murder of one been tried three times for the murder of one of his victims, each trial resulting in a failure of the jury to agree. Jones will probably get off entirely.
