

THE YEAR'S HISTORY.

Chronological Review of the Important Events of the Year 1889.

MANY GOOD, BAD AND INDIFFERENT

Affairs and Men of Great Interest to Our Coming Generations.

WITH HOPES OF A GRAND NEW YEAR

With the last reluctant tones of the midnight bells there passed into history the records of 1889. Be these records good or bad, great or small, that each must answer unto himself.

While looking forward with a firm hope to the future, there is always a sad pleasure in turning back over the leaves of the past, and no matter what the vicissitudes to come, they can never atone for the defeat of the past. One year nearer to happiness, or perhaps one year nearer to shame, one year nearer the goal of ambition, and also, one year nearer death. What a world of mournful philosophy lies buried in the trifles of art, and calamities innumerable, one the greatest that ever befell the human race. What the coming year will show, but one alone can answer; let blind man rest content.

The past year has seen wondrous strides in civilization, it has seen the triumph of art, and calamities innumerable, one the greatest that ever befell the human race. What the coming year will show, but one alone can answer; let blind man rest content.
