King's Personal Loss by Fire. OTHER POREIGN NEWS OF INTEREST

But imperial body be fairly well, the mind is ill at ease, for it is beyond doubt that fresh and daugerous Nihilist plots have been recently discovered, and there is no reason to discredit the rumor that several motable officers of the Russian army have recently hanged within the precincts of the fortress prison of St. Peter and St.

The young Kaiser made no public speech, but wrote a very gracious letter to Prince Biamarck, congratulating that great man upon the maintenance of peace, and inci-dentally claiming credit for the same, equally with the Chancellor. The Kaiser, however, it somewhat priggish, is a kindly young man. He spent several thousand marks upon New Year presents for his five little sons, and sent the Sultan's small daughter, Princess Haile, a superb collection of dolls, with complete sets of dresses and furniture. On New Year's Day His Imperial Majesty looked very grand, as, with his wife, he sat upon a gorgeous throne, with a purple canopy, holding a sort of review of royalties and high civil and military officers. No one under the rank of Counsellor of the first class was allowed to be present at this august cere-mony. Congratulations marched two by two past their majesties, the tadies in high dresses and hats and the gentlemen in tull iniforms, with their orders or decorations. To-day, by way of emphasizing the prospects of peace, the Kaiser gave formal conman army corps, and the construction of

GLADSTONE AND CARNEGIE.

The Grand Old Man Taking a Great Interest in the Pittsburger. INT CABLE TO THE DISPATCH. LONDON, January 4 .- Gladstone has benome deeply interested in Andrew Carnegie's adeas concerning the duties of wealth, as set forth in a recent artice in the North Americon Review. Gladstone, in a letter to the Pall Mall Gazette, says he agrees with Carnegie in nearly everything that he affirms, and recommends that his (Gladstone's) main reservation is prompted by Carnegie's language respecting the endowment of the Stanford University. Gladstone says he has some doubts as to whether large endowments of places of learning do not raise the market price of higher education, which they aim at lower-ing. "I must add," he says, "that the growing tendency to the dissolution of unias such from religion does not mbate but enhances the force of all such considerations as have suggested my lanconsiderations as have suggested my language of reserve." Gladstone concludes:

I now come to an important addition which I about like to attach to the gospel wealth. I see no reason why, in the last of admissible and desirable objects for the dedication of funds, we are not to include their direct dedication to the service and honor of God. Money spent in the erection of our cathedrals and our great churches hardly inferior to cathedrals, has been large, and has, in my judgment, been very well and out. What I have said as to the endownment of offices and places has some application to the great province of religion, but apart from this, and apart from marvelous and noble works, such as cathedrals, the institutions of religion and works of devotion, learning, mercy and utility connected withon, learning, meroy and utility connected with it, are numerous and diversified. Religion is a giant with a hundred hands, whose strength, however, is not for rapine, but for use. I should wish to bring its claim proportionate, and therefore large, under the consideration of the open-handed and open-minded philanthropist.

DICKENS' CHINESE HERO DEAD. Ah Sing Expires, but His Business is Yet

Flourishing.

IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATOR. LONDON, January 4 .- Ah Sing, the most Mamous Chinaman out of the Flowery Kingslom, was call to his fathers this week. He was the original of the Chinese opium joint keeper in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," Diekens' uncompleted novel. Ah Sing dled in poverty, and, although he has been a bad man in his day, he passed away in grace. He leaves as widow, an English woman of 63 years, who says that his last days were exemplary, as he passed his time on Christmas reading the Bible and singing hymnr, and the Sunday before his death was with difficulty restrained from going to church.
It should not be imagined that because

Ah Sing gave up the business opium smoking is dying out in London. On the contrary, there are more people now using the drug than ever, and a few houses have been established in the West End for tashionable society that is addicted to the practice.

The villain of "The Gold Crare," who commits two or three crimes in each act, was named Marquis de Fleurville and was now transpires that de Leuville got wind of this impersonation and hired a gang of men for two nights to go in and attempt to break up the performance. At least, so a man named Kelly, who alleges that de Leuville hired him to organize the gang, has sworn in the police court. He says de Leuville paid for tickets for about 20 men and gave him money to buy them drinks afterward. Kelly has charged de Leuville with in-stigating, inciting and procuring a riot, and men to applaud some doggerel of his that was produced at the Empire.

De Leuville, by the way, has outgrown the suspicion he lived under in New York, that "he wore stays." If this saying is as true as it is old, then, judging from the lively manner the high piles have been melting down since the inauguration of our Great January Mark Down Sale, we shall succeed in the tremendous task of Closing Out our entire winter stock, regardless of the weather. Talk as you please; argue till doomsday, but the fact remains that such big, genuine reductions as we have made all over our establishment during the past few days will cause a buying fever among the people every time. And there is nothing more contagious than the buying fever. Even the glorious Influenza must take a back seat in this respect. The buying fever, once aroused, catches on everywhere. It spreads from house to house, from street to street, from town to town. And this accounts for the busy times at Kaufmanns', and the dull, dreary hours in the establishments whose proprietors are waiting for the cold weather to sell their winter

OUR GREAT JANUARY MARK-DOWN SALE

OUR ANNUAL INVENTORY COUNTER CLEARING.

This double attraction will undoubtedly draw big houses every day this week, and, it is safe to predict that every patron will save a snug sum of money-according to the amount of his purchase.

With an unusually large winter stock still on our counters, and stock taking being but a week off, it stands to reason that we will this week make greater exertions (i. e. bigger reductions) than ever to turn merchandise into money. It's dollars, not garments, we want to count at our inventory, hence you needn't be surprised at our offer to

SELL AT FROM ONE-HALF TO TWO-THIRDS REGULAR PRICES

Any Suit, Any Overcoat, Any Cloak, Any Wrap, Any Hat, Any Cap, Any Shirt, Any Scarf, Any Pair of Shoes

in our establishment. We didn't take an undesirable lot here and there and mark it down for advertising purposes, but have slashed prices in every department. Nothing excepted! Nothing reserved!

Now, then, if you have any spare change (and who hasn't) bring it forth and invest it in this great combination closing out sale. Every dollar invested earns an immediate dividend of from 33 to 50 per cent. Even if you don't need the goods just at present, it will pay you to buy them at these prices. Do not, if you have your own interest at heart, buy a cent's worth of goods elsewhere before having visited our establishment. Compare our goods and prices with those offered by other houses, and, if we don't undersell them all by a heap, we shall not consider ourselves worthy of your patronage. THOSE who would gain an idea of our reductions should take a look at the Men's Suits and Overcoats
