them to do that when they were among them-It has come about I know, by nature and

It has come about I know, by nature and by necessity, in the course of the centuries which have passed between that day and this, that the love and reverence of Chris-tians have made the memory of that sacra-mental supper beautiful. The rude table mental supper beautiful. The rude table has been out in wood and stone, and listed high in the chancels of churches. The coarse oth has been made fair with embroidery and radiant with color. Amid the blaze of sound of music, men have celebrated the Supper of the Lord.

THE EXPRESSION OF DEVOTION.

And I have no word of disapproval for all this. It has all grown naturally as the expression of devout and reverent Christian love. I have no word of disapproval, ex-cept so far as the splendor of the service makes us forget the real simplicity and the omeliness of the sacrament which Christ ordained, except so far as the remoteness and the ceremonial of celebration make people afraid to draw near. But in the mind of Christ there was no thought of this. It was the simplest thing in the world. It was a sacrament of love and blessing, of help and remembrance. It was as if He said: "When I am gone, don't forget me. And when I am gone, when I with no thought of Christ, to the Supper to to one another and to me, I will be with you.

I will bring you close to Me." So far as the gospels go, so far as the mind of Christ concerning this, His own sacra-ment, is revealed, there is nothing about this simple and loving act to keep anybody away. Indeed, I do not see how anyone, remembering these circumstances, can find remembering these circumstances, on we will include the stay away. Whoever it in his beart to stay away. Whoever loves the Lord Jesus Christ, and is willing, in recognition of His dying for us, to join in Savior; amend your lives, and be in per-Savior; amend your lives, and be in pera service of memorial, may draw near. Suppose a great national hero dies, and when, after preliminary services, the mo-ment of the act of memorial arrives, a great crowd of people get up and go out of the building. What would that mean? It seems to me that it would mean that that crowd, at any rate, cared little for that hero. But the Holy Communion is just such a memorial service. Christ asked us to hold such a service in memory of Him. And when the time comes for the service and half the people in the church turn about and go away-you may see how it looks. It is not possible that any considerable number of these departing people intend any disre-spect. Indeed, it is not likely that any of them mean that. The explanation is that they either do not quite understand what the Holy Communion is, or that they are afraid.

ST. PAUL'S REAL MEANING. Nobody would go away if this text had never been written. All the reason for fear is just here within these words. Let us look at the words carefully and see if they do really mean what some people think. The sentence seems to be plain enough. St. Paul says that the punishment of damnation will fall upon the head of him who partakes of this bread and of this cup unworthily. That would seem to be enough to frighten anybody. But let us see exactly what that means. Here is a threatened punishment. It is described in the good, strong word-"damnation." Here is a state of guilt which deserves that punishment. That penalty will fall upon his head who is guilty of the body od of the Lord. Here is the sin which leads into this state of guilt. It is escribed as the act of eating and drinking the Lord's Supper unworthily. Now God forbids that we should take

Now God forbids that we should take away from Holy Scripture even the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "L" God forbid that we should prophesy smooth things, when the voice of God is stern, or cry "beace, peace," when there is no peace. But was upon us, on the other hand, if we are sterner than our Master. Wose upon us it was the store of the store if we threaten where He has not threatened, or what He has not threatened. God forbid that we should put a stumbling block in any man's way where God has set no barrier; or that we should make the wall higher or the ditch deeper than He has made them.

WORDS CHANGE WITH TIME. Now let us see what the sentence actually means. The word "damnation," in the first ive. At druggists'.

hiersning, gave to the disciples, and asked and the poor ate crusts, and one was hungry them to do that when they were among them-selves, and He was gone, as a reminder of Him. What could be more plain? What could have in it less that should—I will not say frighten anybody—but even put anybody out of ease? It has come about I know, by nature and mind them of the secred associations which gathered about it. This the Lord called His body, and this His blood. Will you turn this sacred feast into a mere social merryand radiant with color. Amid the blaze of making, into an occasion of evil? And then he brings in the sentence about unworthiness. And at the end he suggests that hungry people, who have no thought except for gry people, who have no thought except for their suppers, would better eat at home. And so we come both by precept and by example to the same definition of unworthy reception of the Lord's Supper. It is as if that scene in the Corinthian church, that disorderly revel of those hall-converted pagans; it is as if that were the picture, and because if the sene on converted beneath it as a title or an explanation this text was written: He comes unworthily who comes as those Corinthians came. That word unworthily means irrevently, and it means nothing more.

am out of sight, be of good cheer; I will be which the Lord invites him, he shall be judged for that. "What is required of those who come to the Lord's Supper? To examine themselves whether they repent them truly of their former sins, stead astly purposing to lead a new life, have a lively faith in God's mercy, through Christ, with a thankful remem-brance of His death, and be in charity with feet charity with all men; so shall ye be meet partakers of these holy mysteries." GEORGE HODGES.
