And Six Persons Lost Their Lives on the Wreck That Resulted.

WORK OF THE DEADLY CAR STOVE.

Some of the Victims Cremated Before They Could be Rescued.

TWO CHILDREN AMONG THE NUMBER.

The Terrible Narratives Told by the Survivors of the Disaster.

A fatal wreck occurred on the Monon road, near Indianapolis, caused by the spreading of the rails near a trestle. Six persons were killed and a large number injured, many of them seriously. To add to the horrors the debris took fire and the bodies of a portion of the victims were burned.

INDIANAPOLIS, January 27 .- Passenger train No. 1, on the Monon, which left Chieago last night at 11:55, was wrecked at 7:50 village 16 miles north of this place. The train was running at a rapid rate, and was approaching the long trestle across Wilkerson's creek when the tender of the engine jumped the track. The engineer reversed his engine, and before the airbrakes could check the speed of the train the locomotive and baggage car had cleared the trestle, but | ginia and North Carolina. the four coaches attached went over into the

The ladies' coach immediately caught fire, and in an incredibly short time was reduced to ashes. Fortunately for the occupants of this couch, train No. 2, which test this city for Chicago at 7:30, had been ordered to meet the train No. 1 at Carmel, and as soon as word of the wreck was received the passengers hurried to the scene and went nestly to work resening the occupants of the burning car.

A MOST HORRIBLE SIGHT. A horrible scene met their eyes. In plain view of all were two boys and a woman. All were dead, but their bodies were being rap-idly consumed. The arm of one, projected through the side of the car, could be touched by those on the outside, but the opening was not large enough to draw the body through. Immediately in front of the boy was a lady who got on the train at Frankfort, and is as yet unidentified. Her body was enveloped in flames, but there was no possible way to get her out of the burning coach.

Across from this lady was Mrs. Eubanks, of Broad Ripple, Ind. Her head was hor-ribly crushed. The brakeman and a passenger seized her by the arms and by a desperate effort pulled the body through the arrested for the shooting, is still held in window. Life was not yet extinct, but she | custody. lived only a few minutes after being taken out. Another of the rescued, but who has since died, was Mr. Dening, of Sheridan. He was pinioned to the floor by timbers and horribly crushed.

Some herore men seized axes, and after a few minutes' work cut away the timbers that held the body, which was removed to the north side of the track. There was no medical aid present and the man died in a farm houses nearby, the flames were soon subdued, and the fire prevented from communicating to the sleeper or other coaches. As soon as it was possible to do so, a search was made for the dead. The body of a woman was soon found. It was burned to a crisp. The Oldham children were found curate list of the dead and injured: J. N. DEMING, Sheridan, Ind., crushed, MRS, EUBANKS, Broad Ripple, crushed, UNKNOWN WOMAN, burned.

Stingel, Rossville, legs cut, arms severely Stingel, Rossville, legs cut, arms severel bruised and back injured; Harr; Angle, son c conductor, elbow cut off and cut back of head In addition to these there are many more who were slightly injured.

A SURVIVOR'S ACCOUNT. W. J. Collins, in his story of the wreck,

The first idea of anything wrong was the swaying of the cars, followed by the front end of the sleeper going over the embankment. There was a crash and a shock that threw the possengers from one end of the car to the other, out of one berth into another, and demolishing everything in the car. A gentleman kicked out a window through which a number made their exit. Others, seeing that there was no immediate danger to those in the sleeper, dressed themselves, and then sought the open air. On emerging from the sleeper it was discovered that the coach immediately in front had been hadly wrecked, because in leaving the bridge the front end struck the embankment approach, completely demolishing that end of the car, overturning the stove in which a fire was burning. The car immediately took fire, flames spreading with great rapidity, and in a moment enveloping the entire structure. Those who had escaped from the other coaches, and were able to work, began assisting those in the burning coach to free themselves.

The first persons taken ont were two ladies, both dead. Then Mrs. Oldham and little boy, of Sheridan. Two other children of this lady were still in the car, and, the mother noting this fact, although haddy injured made a desagnet. The first idea of anything wrong was the sway of Sheriann. Two other children of this lady were still in the car, and, the mother noting this fact, although badly injured, made a desperate effort to return to the burning coach. Being dissuaded in this, she appealed to the bystanders to rescue her children. By this time the train from the south arrived and the passengers foll to work, urged on by the frantic appeals of the dying and injured, to give them relief. Every one who could worked with a will.

FUTILE EFFORTS AT RESCUE. Axes were procured and a determined effort made to get the dead and dying out, but the efforts proved futile, as the flames spread so rapidly the work had to be abandoned in a few minutes. There was a scene of wildest con-fusion. The deck of the bridge was com-pletly demolished, the ties displaced, rails bent, twisted and broken, piles splintered and broken off, and all the care so badly wrecked that no parts of them can ever be utilized.

As to the cause of the wreck, Mr. Collins As to the cause of the wreck, Mr. Collins says he is positive it was due to the spreading of the rails within 15 feet of the bridge. "It was terrible, terrible," said J. P. Altiser, a young Chicago traveling man who was one of the through passengers on the ill-fated train. "I was in the ladies day couch which contained about 14 persons and I believe that I am the only one of that number who escaped approns inture. We were running at a great serious lajury. We were running at a great rate of speed, nearly 50 miles an hour, I berate of speed, nearly ov miles an nour, I be-lieve, when the crash came. For an instant I could hardly realize what had happened. I was thrown violently to the floor and the car was filled with dense volumes of smoke and dust. The third seat shead of me had been counsed by a mother and her two little boys, both of them particularly bright little "The stove fell upon the trio and their cries could be heard above the contusion of noises that followed. They were fairly roasted alive. I could do nothing for them, but as soon as I regained my feet I rushed to the other end of the coach where three women had been pinioned between two seats and carried one of them out. I was returning for the others when I was joined by a fellow-passenger who, though badly hurt, gladly teered to pasist in the rescue. The shricks of the dying and injured were awful to hear, and the scenes which followed the crash were horrible beyond description. I was very fortunate, only receiving a slight cut on my neck and a few bruises, which make me feel a little sore. I think the train was running entirely too fast considering the short length of the curve, and this was no doubt largely the reason of the accident."

Coughing IS Nature's effort to expel foreign substances from the bronchial passages. Frequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It assists Nature in ejecting the mucus, allays irritation, induces repose, and is the most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pec-toral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure." -Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother,

We're determined to push this sale this week for all that's in it. The offerings are bona fide and the bargains are as great, if not actually greater than any we've offered before, and certainly away and beyond what any other dealer in this city has the nerve and grit to give the public. We have a big stock, and we have been in business long enough to know that there is but one way to reduce it, and that is to cut prices to
