GETTING A MOVE ON.

The Prospects for the New Government Building Brighten.

A LITTLE VISIT TO WASHINGTON

HE'LL HUSTLE THINGS UP LIVELY.

Architect Pattison Coming to Inspect the Work Very Shortly.

Quite without warning, Superintendent Malone, of the Pittsburg Government building, was closeted with Supervising Architect Windrim yesterday for a long time. He will do all in his power to hasten the completion of the building, he says. An inspection of the work will soon be made by Architect Pattison, of Philadelphia.

PROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, January 29.-Superintendent Malone, of the Pittsburg Government building, turned up quite unexpectedly at the office of the Supervising Architect ly at the office of the Supervising Architect and a young follow walked in very much as of the Treasury this morning. He had not if he was at home. He stared when he been sent for. No message from this end of | found McCarthy there instead of Smith, and the line had gone forth to alarm him. Yet stared more when Officer Benning pushed he was plainly alarmed. Whether it was he was plainly alarmed. Whether it was the publication in The Disparch of Tues-a little cross-examination as to his business day, that Colonel James Andrews was about to start for Washington and had offered to isfactory, and the young fellow was taken guarantee the completion of the building by to the lockup by Benning, while Detective November, or whether it was something else, possibly no one knows, except Mr.

Colonel Andrews has talked with the Secretary of the Treasury in regard to the slow progress of the building, in the presence o the Supervising Architect; but he has not vet offered his services. He expressed freely and forcibly his opinion that the work is being unnecessarily delayed, and so emment an authority was listened to with great attention and respect.

Possibly Mr. Malone divined in advance just about what Colonel Andrews would say, and determined to come on.

CO-OPERATION PROMISED. Mr. Malone was closeted for a long time with Supervising Architect Windrim, who told him plainly of the complaints about who is in the city for a brief visit. "Don't delay, of his promise to Postmaster McKean that he (Mr. Windrim) would use every endeavor to have the postoffice ready for occupancy by the first of November, and the district composed of Crawford and Erie Mr. Malone consented to do everything in his power to hasten the completion of the building, and to prepare the postoffice por-tion for the advent of Mr. McKean and his force by the time specified. It can be stated as a substantial fact that upon the efforts of Mr. Malone in the very near future depend the length of his tenure. The strong presentation by Mr. McKean of the condition of affairs in the old postoffice, and the necessity for increased ac-commodation, coupled with the publications in the Pittsburg newspapers, the complaints by citizens and by Contractor McGowan, who is responsible for the work and yet prevented from having anything to do with it, and lastly, the forcible assault upon the present management by Colonel Andrews, has apparently determined the department authorities to take Mr. Malone firmly in hand, if he does not at once begin to push things at the building.

NOT QUITE SATISFIED. Of course the Superintendent had much to say in his own defense, and some things with a good deal of substance in them, but he did not quite satisfy the Department that he was doing all he might do. After the general talk in regard to the building, the question of rushing the preparation of the postoffice apace was dwelt upon by the Supervising Architect and the Superintendent. The ground was thoroughly gone over, and Mr. Malone knows exactly what he has

Architect Pattison, of Philadelphia, who has already visited Pittsburg once or twice as the special agent of the Supervising Architect, will again be on the ground within a few days to consult with the Superintendent and inspect the progress of the work. He will make a report to Mr. Windrim as soon as possible, and if every-thing does not appear to have been going satisfactorily, Mr. Malone will get another shaking up.

If the atmosphere of the Supervising Architect's office to-day was not entirely de-ceptive, the prospects for the Pittsburg Government building are brighter than they have been for a long time. LIGHTNER.

AN ECHO OF THE IVES SUIT.

A Michigan Corporation Demands a Receiver for the Broken Firm.

NEW YORK, January 29 .- The Mineral Range Railroad Company, a corporation created under the laws of Michigan, has filed a bill of complaint with the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against Henry S. Ives, George H. Staynor and Thomas C. Doremus, individually and as members of the firm of Henry S Ives & Co., and William Nelson Cromwell, assignee of that firm. The bill is signed by Charles W. Cass, solicitor, and James C. Carter, of counsel for the complainant. It cites the fact that the complainant com-pany, on January 27, 1890, obtained a judgment in the Supreme Court of this State in Kings county against H. S. Ives & Co. tor the sum of $450,984 27, and that the executions issued thereon have been returned unstisfied. It also alleges fraud on the part of the defendants.

The complainant therefore prays that the assignment to the defendant Cromwell be decreed null and void; that a receiver be appointed and that a writ of injunction issue probabiling the defendants from parting with or in any way disposing of any of the property of the firm.

RIVERMEN WILL OBJECT.

Pittsburgers Kick Against Low Bridges on the Mississippi.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, January 29.—Senstor Harris, of Tennessee, yesterday introduced a bill in the Senate to amend the "act to autherize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Memphis, Tenn.," 13 over 70. by reducing the required height above high water mark from 75 to 65 feet.

Pittsburg rivermen will remember the fight they had in the last two Congresses over this bridge bill and the particular stress they laid upon the necessity of building the bridge high enough not to have it prove an obstruction to navigation, and Mr. Bayne is of the opinion that they will scarcely allow this amendment to be made without at least making an attempt

THE TARIFF ON IRON AND STEEL,

The New Bill to Reproduce a Clause From the Old Senate Measure.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, January 29 .- A member of the Ways and Means Committee, who has interests in Western Pennsylvania, said to-day: "We are making rapid progress with the Tariff bill, and will probably be able to report it to the House in a week or ten days. So far as the clauses relating to the iron and steel industries are concerned I think this House bill will be practically a reproduction of the Senate bill of the last Congress. That was rather popular, I am sold, around Pittsburg, and THE DISPATCH will probably be glad to learn that the chances are good for our bill being equally
