

NOBODY BUT A FOOL

Would Sign That Ballot Box Contract, According to Sherman.

THE SENATOR UPON THE STAND.

He Grows Indignant as He Talks of the Now Famous Forgery.

MURAT HALSTAD TELLS HIS STORY.

He insists that the Governor and Himself Were Completely Deceived.

Senator Sherman appeared before the ballot box investigating committee yesterday. He stated that a member of Congress would sign such a document would be a fool as well as a criminal.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—Two star witnesses, Senator Sherman and Murat Halstead, appeared before the ballot box investigating committee today. Their testimony, while not of a sensational order, developed many interesting features.

Senator Sherman appeared before the ballot box investigating committee yesterday. He stated that a member of Congress would sign such a document would be a fool as well as a criminal.

"What was your relation to them?" "I was their old friend," responded the witness. [Laughter.] Continuing, the witness said that he had known of a great deal about the matter from the beginning.

"I was their old friend," responded the witness. [Laughter.] Continuing, the witness said that he had known of a great deal about the matter from the beginning.

ONE INTERESTING FEATURE. Governor Foraker called attention to the three blanks on the paper, and witness had said: "Johnny (McLean) is a smart boy, sure enough; he is not going to put his name on the paper until he has got the money in his pocket."

Then the paper showed that the signers had committed a crime. In a dilution they would seem to be fools, for the United States had never bought a ballot box. His own signature on the paper would naturally raise a question and excite wonder why he had contracted to pay money to John McLean.

A POINTED STATEMENT. Then the paper showed that the signers had committed a crime. In a dilution they would seem to be fools, for the United States had never bought a ballot box.

NOT EXACTLY BROTHERS. Continuing, he said that there was supposed to be feeling between Senator Sherman and Governor Foraker growing out of events at the Chicago Convention. The delicate relationship existing between these two men was such that Governor Foraker made it highly inexpedient to allow a paper to get out through Governor Foraker's agency that reflected on the Senator.
