SENATORS AT STAKE.

The Hearing of the Montana Contest at Last Begun.

CLAIMS OF THE RIVALS.

All the Dispute Centers Upon the Silver Bow Precinct.

THE POINTS REVISED BY COUNSEL

The hearing in the Montana contest, which involves two seats in the United States Senate, was commenced yesterday. Ex-Solicitor General Jenks appeared for the Democratic claimants and Colonel Halbert E. Paine for the Republicans. Their arguments were of a decidedly conflicting nature. No decision was reached.

WASHINGTON, February 15 .- The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections to-day began an investigation of the credentials of the several claimants for seats in the Senate from Montana. Before the formal ression begun Saunders, one of the Republican claimants, gave a brief statement of the situation. There was a full attendance of the committee and persons interested from Montana.

Colonel Halbert E. Paine is counsel for the Republican claimants. The counsel for the Democrats is Solicitor General Jenks. When the committee found itself with a quorum Colonel Paine began the presentation of the case. He said that he should attempt to maintain, by his argument, propositions to the following effect: THE REPUBLICAN CLAIM. That the certificates held by the rival claim ants in this case contradict each other and are nullities. This being the case, it is the duty of the Senate to resort to secondary proof to determine which of the claimants is entitled to a seat. As such secondary proof it is competent to show that the House of Representatives and Senate, at the time they voted for United States Senators, contained a majority of the members duly elected to these bodies, and that in this case there was no change in the mem-bership of the Montana Legislature, from the time it was organized, November 23, 1889, to January 1 and 2, when the election for United States Senators occurred. In the absence of the certificate required by law showing a prima facle right of the holder to a seat the Senate has the right to investigate and adjudicate the claims of de facto members of the Legislature electing the claimant, but not to go into the claims of de jure members thereof. Upon these propositions, in summarizing, Colonel Paine said that Messrs. Saunders and Power had been elected Senators from the State of Montana by the legal Legislature of that State. Colonel Paine gave a resume of the facts of the organization of Legislature, which are well known, there being two Houses, but only one Sen ate. As to the position of the five Republican members of Silver Bow county, whose right to seats in the House is in dispute, he said that, it it were shown that they were entitled to sents, then the election of Messrs, Saunders and Power on the 1st and 2d of January, 1890, was legal and they are rightfully elected Senators.

THE POINT IN DISPUTE

If they were not, then the election Messys. Maginuis and Clark, on the 7th and 8th of January, was legal, and they are entitled to seast in the United States Senate. A controversy at this point arose as to the passage of the reconstructed bill offered in the Senate. The resolution upheld the certificates of the De-Silver Bow county, nel Paine stating that Governor White, the Territorial Governor, had issued certificates to the Democratic members. Mr. Maginnis, one of the Democratic claimants, denied this, saying that the certificates were found unsigned in the Governor's office after he va-Both Mr. Saunders and Mr. Power stated that their information was that the certificates had been executed and sent to the members by mail.

Proceeding to the question of the duties and powers of the United States Senate in the investigation of the election of its members, Colonel Paine argued that if the committee decided that it could go behind the returns of the election of the members of the Montana Legislature, it could not confine it. sel: to the five members of Silver Bow county whose seats are in controversy, but must prepare to go into all the cases in which contests may be made-in Montana these would number more than 60. He cited a a number of authorities and decisions to prove that a member of a Legislature who acted upon any question in pursuance of a prima facie right to a seat had the same power as a member whose right to a seat was unquestioned, and that his vote could not be vitiated subsequently.

A SWEEPING STATEMENT. In conclusion Colonel Paine said that if the inquiry went outside the record, the committee could find from that source, as well, that Messrs. Saunders and Power are the legally and rightfully elected Senators the case for the Democratic claimants. He said that in this case there were three points or questions to be determined.

Ex-Solicitor General Jenks then began

First-lis there a prima facie right to a seat in the United States Senate? He affirms that there is, and that it is in favor of his clients. Second—is there, or was there, a Legislature to elect Senators? If there was, he said, the certificate of the Clerk of the Commissioners of Silver Bow county is the only credential of right of representation from that county to sit therein.

BOTH RIGHT AND TITLE.

Third-In whom is this prima facre right existing? Mr. Jenks said that it existed in Messrs. Maginnis and Clark. They have the title and they have the right, back of the title, from the neopie to represent the State of Montana in the United States Senate. Upon the first point, Mr. Jenks quoted from the statute of July, 1866, to show what constitutes a prima facie right to a seat in the Senate. The possession of the certificate of the Governor, even though it large the seal and countersien. it lacks the seal and countersign of the S tary of State, foifills the requirement of

A colloquy here ensued, in which several members of the committee and Mr. Jenks took part, concluding with the statement by Chairman Hoar that it was his understand ing that the possession of the Governor's certificate, in itself, gave no lorce to the claim of prima facie right. Senator Teller said the question before the committee was not who has the evidence of title or right. He was unanimously re-ele out to whom the title or right really be-

As to the legality of the Legislature,"Mr Jenks said the Legislature that met pur-suant to the proclamation of the Governor was the only legal Legislature. Mr. Jenks went on to argue that the new Constitution and ordinances of the State did not repeal

bers of the Legislature. THE LEGAL LEGISLATURE. This being the case he insisted that the Democratic Legislature was the legal Legisand the persons elected by it are the old law requiring the county clerks 5 issue certificates to members of the Legisla-ture is still in force. This view was controverted by members of the committee, whereupon Mr. Jenks said that if it was not still in force, then the power to declare the result of the election and issue certifi-cate reverts to the Governor, as the Supreme Executive of the State.

The Republican members of the committee questioned Mr. Jenks as to the com-essity of a canvass by the county clerks, which did not effect anything, and could not effect anything, to all of which ques-tions Mr. Jenks answered that he could not tell the reason for every law, but could only cite it and give his opinion of its force and

A PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCE. Mr. Jenks stated that the members of the Liegisature had certificates of election from the Government except the nine members from Silver Bow county—4 Democrats and 5 Republicans, whose certificates were contested. These nine certificates were found in the Governor's office after he vacated, Mr. Sannders admitted that this was the case, and withdrew his statement to the contrary, made earlier in the day. The Democratic members of the Legislature did not use the certificates of the Governor, believing that the certificates of the county clerks were the correct and legal ones, but the Republicans used the Governor's cerdificates in effecting the organization of their House.

The registry list in precinct 34, Silver Bow county, Mr. Jenks said, was made by a Republican and contained 182 names. That list seems to have been made under the law tulfilling all its requirements. The election law (a modification of the Australian sys-tem) is very strict, and all its details were carried out with the utmost strictness and rigidity, as shown by the affidavits of the election officers.

ALL APPARENTLY STRAIGHT. None of the official tickets were missing, nor were any false ballots cast. The list shows that 174 ballots were cast out of the egistry of 182 votes. Mr. Jenks said that affidavits by the members of the Election Board say that no one was excluded from the count, except one who was drunk and raising an noroar.

But, even if the election officers did violate the provisions of the election law, so as to prevent the voters from expressing their views, if throwing out the precipct would result in changing the result, then the violstion is treated as of no force. The County Board was not really a canvassing board, and its refusal to count the votes from pre-cinct 34 was an assumption of power it did not possess. It could only make an abstract of the votes. A mandamus proceeding to require the board to include the vote of prenet 34 was had and the mandamus was

A DEMOCRATIC ABGUMENT.

So that, in the eye of the law, the only certificate of votes from Silver Bow county that went to the State Board, contained the votes of precinct No. 34. If the acts of usurpation of the State Board are rubbed out, there is a clean record.

In answer to questions by Senator Evarts, Mr. Jenks stated that after the ballot had been deposited in the box, there exists among election or canvassing boards no power except to count and tabulate the votes cast. And, again, as to the limit of the power of the Senate in making an inquiry into the election of a member, it could pursue every voter to the last resort; but that it would not be wise to exercise the power after coming into contact with the finding of a judicial tribunal that has juris-The committee then adjourned till March 1.

The Extraordinary Claim Put Forward by the Dubuque Family. MINNEAPOLIS, February 15 .- Minneapolis is likely to have another millionaire. Samuel Fontaine, a mason contractor, living on Lyndale avenue, North, is the husband of one of the heirs of the old Dubuque family, which came from Canada many years ago and settled upon and owned a tract of land 20 miles up and down this Mississippi river, and extending back from the river a distance of three leagues. This tract covers the sits of the present city of Dubuque, Is., and a number of very valuable mining claims. The discovery of the title was due to a very trivial accident.

Sometime ago a Catholic priest offered to another one of the Dubuque heirs, who is a resident of Canada, $70,000 for a quit claim deed for all his rights and titles as an heir of the original estate. The offer was not accepted, but the Dubuques began at once to hunt up their claims. There are several now living who can trace their lineage back to the original grantee, and some of them are prosperous and well-to-do. This makes them abundantly able to thoroughly investigate their claims and protect their rights.

PRESS. BERLIN, February 15 .- The Emperor's generous and magnanimous purposes, and his earnestness and sincerity in the endeavor to ameliorate the condition of the working people, are obtaining full recognition, and a chorus of praise arises on every side. But the doubts that were expressed regarding the practical value of his intentions as indicated in the rescripts, have been strengthened by the speech he delivered to the counsel of State. In every part of this he shows an increased consciousness that the utmost power of the Sovereign is limited by the mere fiction that this is a constitutional government and that he may not succeed in overcoming the obstacles arising from the inherent difficulties of all social reforms. The Emperor was brought to realize the tough nature of the job he had undertaken when he tried to trame a bill for creating labor councils, in which employers and workingmen might meet to regulate and adjust labor disputes. His Majesty wrestled bravely with this problem, and consulted upon it Von Berlep new Minister of Commerce, as well as Krupp. Stumm, and other men well informed upon industrial subjects, and the more informaseemed to see his way toward the completion of the bill, and he finally abandoned the attempt and handed over the preparation of the bill to the Committee of the Council of State presided over by Jencke.

The address of the Emperor, delivered be fore the Council of State, was his own, but it was submitted to Prince Bismarck for his criticism on Thursday, and he and the Emperor had a two-hours' conference upon the subject. It is erroneous to suppose that the Emperor has plunged into all this in definnee of the Chancellor's opposition.

Throughout the inception of this labor programme the Emperor has constantly sought the opinion of the Chancellor upon the main theme itself, and upon its various phases as they have presented themselves to phases as they have presented themselves to his mind. That opinion has modified the Emperor's purpose and action at many points, but it has not curtailed his views so far as to impress upon them any radical change.

PRINCE BISMARCK AND THE EMPEROR. Prince Bismarck stated in a very free spirit in a conversation held at the last Parliamentary dinner the relations between himnamentary dinner the relations between him-self and the Emperor, and the position in which he stood. He said: "The Emperor certainly likes me, and, as to many things, be relies upon me, but he has a stubborn will, and when he has once made up his mind even I cannot influence it, nor can any other man.

Knowing the headstrong character he has to deal with and to guide, if that is possible, the Chancellor has to give a loose rein to the imperial mule (Die Kugel Schiessenlassen), confident that experience will tame the impetuosity of the Emperor's yearning dock township School Directors met last to control and regulate everything. After the session of the Council of State was ended there was held an interesting and very animated reception, at which Prince Bismarck presented to the Emperor all the industrial and other non-military members. He expressed on this occasion the hope that other state concerns might be so little press-ing as to leave him the leisure to preside, as ne desired to do, over both sections of the BOSTON, February 15 .- Officer Shields returned to-day from Dover jail where he had long talk with Isaac Sawtelle. The latter, when confronted with the proofs of the crime, backed down somewhat and made a partial confession. He denied that he did the killing and implicated "Dr." Blood and one Ed Russell, a Boston criminal suspected of complicity in the Keene jewelry store robbery on Washington street. Isaac also maintained he did not know where the head was and that he would, if he could, give the fficers aid in finding it.

Captain White after hearing the report expressed the belief that Sawtelle was still lying, and that though the prisoner was aided up to the point of committing the crime, he did, the deed. Blood's picture has been shown to many people in Rochester, but no one recognizes the man as ever having been there where strangers would be

A dispatch from Rochester, N. H., says: Mrs. Hiram Sawtelle and the Boston officer arrived here at 11 A. M. They were met at the depot by a large crowd of citizens. Deputy Marahal Kent took charge of the party and they entered a carriage and were driven to South Lebanon where the mutilated body has rested in a schoolhouse since its discovery. Search still continues for the head and lothes of the murdered Hiram Sawtelle, but thus far unsuccessfully. The officers think Issac put the head in the bag in which he carried the tools, weighted the same and threw it in the river, or else carried it to Portland. The clothes are probably in an-

A coroner's jury was impaneled to-day and Mrs. Sawtelle's testimony as to the identity of the body taken. The jury then adjourned to Monday.

Seth W. Corson, of East Rochester, in an interview states that on Wednesday night, February 5, while on his way home from work he saw a team near the Nutter woods, 14 miles from the Rochester depot, toward East Rochester. Two men were in the wagon. One was talking excitedly. After

It is not generally known that Mrs. Carte is, in a large measure, responsible for the changes which are to be made in the cast of the opera. She was for a long a time the secretary and assistant of D'Orjy Carte, and when his wife died a year ago the manager married his secretary. Her uame was Heleu Lenour, and she had full charge of Carte's business during the successful runs of "The Mikado" and "Patience" here, Steaton, Gilmore and several others of the shrewder of the managers of New York always insisted that Miss Lenoir was the head, brains and front of the Carte management. Mr. Carte's own opinion of his assistant was very high. They now run the biggest hotel in London together, direct the Savoy Theater and a number of suburban companies, and occasionally make a shrewd bargain with the American managers for the production of the intermittent Gilbert-Sullivan opera. the much-abused perukue: "In my opinion," she said, "every actress ought, as far as possible, to rely upon her own hair. A wig, however becoming, is an inanimate thing and not in aympathy with the expression of the face. You see when I raise my eyebrows my hair moves also; if I wore a wig this would not be so. My eyebrows might almost touch the wig, but the latter would not budge. In this way the expressions of the face lose effect."
