For the Formal Opening and Dedication of the Carnegie Library.

THE PROGRAMME AS PREPARED.

President Harrison to Declare the Beautiful Building Open.

PRECAUTIONS TO PREVENT CROWDING

Positively No One to be Admitted Who Doesn't Ge Tickets To- Day.

Regulations for observance of opening day at the Carnegie Library in Allegheny have been prepared. The exercises will take place, according to programme, to-morrow evening. Precautions to avoid crowding are Formal arrangements for the opening of Carnegie Free Library were concluded yesterday, and announced in extenso by a member of the Commission. This includes the programme for the opening, and elaborate directions for the benefit of those who are invited. The invitation cards will reach those "on the list" by mail this morning. The people who receive the invitations will have reason to thank the invisible hand that has directed the matter for one very great reason; the hall will not be jammed, and everyone present will be able to both see and hear what occurs.

The directions to the public and to holders of tickets especially will have to be borne in mind in order to obvinte the necessity for asking questions, and to facilitate the events. Entrance will be only by the Ohio street entrance of Carnegie Hail. No other door will be open except the stage door. The Carnegie Hall door will be guarded by a cordon of police. It will be opened at 6:30 o'clock.

ONLY ONE WAY TO GET IN.

The invitation cards will be the only open The invitation cards will be the only open seame, the police being under instructions to recognize nothing else. At 8 o'clock all who enter are expected to be in their seats in Carnegie Hall. There are no seats reserved, one seat being just as good as another. The hour and a half preceding 8 o'clock is to afford all as opportunity to inspect the library and art gailery, the latter being specially arranged for the reception of the guests. Catalogues will be provided, and the entire library section will be on view.

In Music Hall there will be no other priority in the seating than occupancy. The tickets admit a gentleman and lady or two ladies, but not two gentlemen. The reason for the admission of two ladies is that a gentleman may be unable to attend by reason of business engagements, but his wife and an accompany-ng friend can go.

These rules as to admission must be impera-These rules as to admission must be imperative, because tickets are issued to the full capacity of the hall, on the basis of two persons to each ticket. Any excess over that number would crowd the hall uncomfortably. The arrangements as to limitations of numbers are simply necessary on account of the small room, it would not be courteous to people to send out tickets which would not insure both admission and a seat.

WHO HAVE THE TICKETS.

The single tickets to the members of the ociety were placed in the hands of Director J. P. McCollum. Tickets were given out on the basis of active membership, as indicated on the basis of active memoeratip, as indicated in the last concert programme of the society. Entrance by these tickets will be at the stage door, reached from North Diamond street. The door will be manned by policemen, and admission will be impossible without tickets. The tickets for the press, limited to actual workers, will entitle to admission to the front row next the stage, where a table for writing has been carefully arranged.

At 8 o'clock—and all these hours will be observed to a minute—President Harrison, Mr. Andrew Carnegie and the Presidental party will arrive in carriages from the Duquesne Club, and will pass up the middle aisle, ascend the steps leading to the stage, and divide passing into the private boxes on either side of the

The balance of the party, beside Mr. Carnegie, will be Mr. James E. Scott, Chairman pro tem. of the Carnegie Free Library Commission; Governor James A. Beaver and Secretary Stone Sepresenting the Commonwealth; Mr. Governor James A. Beaver and Scoretary Stone, representing the Commonwealth; Mr. John H. Ricketson, who will respond at the transfer of the building to the city on behalf of the citzens; Rt. Rev. Cortland Whitehead, Bishop; Rt. Rev. Richard Phelan, Bishop; members of Pan-American Congress, number as yet unknown; some New York friends of Mr. Carnegie, and Mayor R. T. Pearson, of Allegheny City, to whom the figurative transfer of the building will be made in the shape of the handing of the gold key by Mr. Carnegie.

THE PROGRAMME TO BEGIN.

There was a rumor in circulation, last evening, that in some form or other, the freedom of Allegheny City was to be bestowed upon Mr. Carnegie. The advent of the above party will be the signal for the commencement of the musical programme under the general direc-tion of Mr. C. C. Mellor.

musical programme under the general direction of Mr. C. C. Mellor.

From the programmes, especially prepared, the audience will sing, with the assistance of the Mozart Society and grand organ, the first, second and fourth verses of "America," standing. Rt. Rev. Cortland Whitehead, Bishop of the P. E. diocese, of Pittsburg, will deliver the invocation. The Mozart Society, under the direction of Mrshames P. McCollum, and with Mr. C. C. Mellor at the organ, will sing, "The Heavens are Telling," from Haydn's oratorio, "Creation."

Mr. Andrew Carnegie will then present the golden key of the building to Mayor Pearson, and Mr. John H. Ricketson will make an address on behalf of the citizens of Allegheny. President Harrison will then declare the building formally opened and dedicated to the uses of the public. He is expected to make some further remarks upon education and the effect upon the rising generation exerted by such proposed fits as that of Mr. Cornection and the effect upon the rising generation exerted by such proposed fits as that of Mr. Cornection.

At 11 o'clock this morning the pupils of the Pittsburg School of Design and the Pittsburg Art School will be afforded an opportunity to view the gallery. Mr. John W. Heatty will act as exhibitor. THE DISPATCH at Washington says: The esecial train conveying President Harrison to Allegheny City to open the new Carnegie Library, will leave this city at 12 o'clock noon, to-morrow, over the Pennsylvania stailroad. The Presidental party will be quite small and select, the only guests from Washington being Private the only guests from Washington being Private Secretary Halford, Representatives Bayne and Dalsell and Professor Langley, Secretary of the Sentitasonian Institution, and the President himself. Secretary Blaine will also probably be one of the party, although to night he is undecided as to whether he will be able to go or not. Mr. Catnegie himself will, of course, accompany them. During his stay in Pittsburg the President will be the guest of the Duquesne Club. In this connection an unfortunate incident has occurred, which has occasioned some annoyance to the President, and especially to sir. Catnegie. This morning's papers contained a dispatch from Pittsburg saying that there was much indignation felt by the members of the Duquesne Club because the President had not made any response to their invitation to become their guest during his visut to Pittsburg; that preparations had been made for his reception, but that the club was still uncertain as to whether he would accept their invitation or not.

the error corrected. Private Secretary Halford, in conversation this evening with The DISPATCH correspondent, explained that there had been no formal written invitation from the Duquesne Club received by the President, to which an answer could be sent. "The President," said he, "simply received the information that during his stay in Pittsburg he would be the guest of the club. This information came from Mr. Carnegio, and was given in connection with the conversation about the arrangements that had been made for the trip. The paragraph that was printed this morning evidently came from some one who knew nothing at all about that matter, and it was unfortunate that such a misunderstanding should have been created."

Judge Over sustained the objection, which leaves $20,000 to no into the residuary estate. tional, reverses the decision of the lower court, and affirms it in that of the Washington street case. The opinion is extended on the question of chasification of cities, special legislation and the subjects on which legislation is not authorized by the system of classification.

In the Ruan street case a jury in the Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia had decided that the street should be opened, and damages and benefits were assessed under the provisions of the first section of the act. Exceptors held that the act of 1887 was unconstitutional, violating article 3, section 7 of the Constitution, which prohibits the Legislature from passing a local law, authorizing the creation, extension or impairing of liens; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering or maintaining roads, highways, streets of alleys. It was also held by exceptants that the law violated article 5, section 26, that all laws relating to courts shall be general and of uniform operation. Justice Mitchell wrote the opinion of the Court and decided "that viewers, deciding in favor of opening or widening any public plotted street, in any city of the first class, may pass on the question of benefits and damages, and that such findings are not unconstitutional as proceedings under local or special legislation as provided in sections 1 and 2 of the act of May 6, 1887. The Court decided sections 3 and 4 of this act unconstitutional because they violate article 3 section 7 of the Constitution, prohibiting local and special laws, but concluded that the failure of sections 8 and 4 did not impair the validity of the whole act, and enough remained to form a perfectly valid act.

A re-argument was allowed, and now the Court declares the law unconstitutional. It is not known just how the decision will affect street matters in this city, but while some think our street law may not be affected, yet if local legislation is decided unconstitutional, it is legislation is decided unconstitutional, it is thought our law will be affected. A full examination will be necessary before a conclusion can be reached.

The Supreme Court also made; a decision in the case of Josephine E. Rowan, widow of exsheriff W. Elwood Rowan, of Philadelphia, contesting the right of the adopted daughter of Sheriff Rowan to inherit as though she were his actual child. The Court decides that the adopted child of the decedent has all the right of an actual child in the distribution of his estate, stating that it was distinctly ruled in Ann Johnston's appeal that a child adopted under the act of 1855 becomes a child and heir of the person adopting such child, so far as he or she can be made by legislative enactment. In the case of W. Elwood Rowan, decedent adopted the appellee before he was married to the appellant, and the latter has right to complain that her rights were interfered with by the act of her husband subsequent to their marriage. The act of 1855 is explicit that a child adopted under its provisions "shall assume the name of the adopted parent, and shall have all the rights of a child and heir of such adopting parent."
