Allegheny Gas Consumers Given a Choice of Meter or Contract.

TO GO INTO EFFECT APRIL FRIST.

A Decrease in Consumers Brought Out the Hazelwood. The incorporators will be Bishop Phelan, two clergymen and three lay-men. When the diocese was divided about 12 years ago it was found that the Pittsburg diocese was not able, financially, to support the New Proposition. THE RATES ADVANCED ON CONTRACTS

As a result of the vigorous opposition by the Allegheny people against using gas meters the Allegheny Heating Company has withdrawn their determination to com pel their use and are now giving their consumers an opportunity to choose between the meters and the contract system. This is hailed with delight, and many people who had given the company notice that they would discontinue the use of the fuel will now make new con-tracts. Others who had already changed to coal will resume the use of gas.

New circulars were sent out yesterday setting forth the advantages of the meter-advising consumers that a waste of the fuel is checked; from 60 to 80 per cent of the heat produced is utilized by the meter instead of from only 10 to 25 per cent without it; that by using the meter the consumer makes his own bill, which of course is regulated on the basis of carefulness and economy.

notices that the contracts now in force will be terminated within 30 days. Applications for new contracts are filled out at an advanced rate of from $10 to $25 per year over the previous year, and this, together with an applica-tion for meters are being sent to the consumers.

tion for meters are being sent to the consumers. They are asked to decide before March 15 which they will accept.

The meter has a bad reputation in Allegheny. Many of the people who have tried it have quit using gas altogether, claiming that it was a costly experiment. One man who had tried the meter said it was a practical infpossibility for any man outsike of an official of the company to read the meters. He worked at his for a day and a half, when he found, according to his calculation, he had used about 70,000,000 feet of gas. At that rate he figured that he would have to mortgage his property to pay his gas bill for one quarter. He bid farewell to the meter. Allegheny Councils Finally Dispose of the Manchester Trouble.

Flint Glass Workers' Union, yesterday, in reference to the strike at that place.
The trouble was caused, as the workers claim, by the discharge of one of the workmen without justifiable cause. Mr. Irwin stated that if the Secretary would give it as his opinion that the men were right, he would agree to the terms of the workers.

Secretary Dillon assured the gentleman that the men were decidedly justified in the course they had taken, whereupon he promised Mr. Dillon that the trouble would be immediately settled, and he would invite the men to return to work on their own conditions. This means a practical settlement of the strike.

Some of the Old Hands Return to Work at Shoenberger's Mill. There has been very little change in the situation of the strike at Shoenberger's mill. A visit to their place vestorday sh plant is being partially operated. Many of the men who went out have refused to return since President Weihe has declared the strike off. A number of unskilled hands are being tried. These, along with those who returned to work, enable the mill to be operated to a certain extent. The full complement of men is at work, but whether they succeed in producing the usual quantity of iron is not known. New developments may occur in a few days.

There are diverse re-ports as to the personnel of the syndicate, one story being that H. President Harrison, Mr. Andrew Carnegie's Guest,

GREETED WITH CHEERS. Elaborate Arrangements Made for the Events of To-Day.

THE EXECUTIVE VIEWS BESSEMER The President of the United States is within the city walls, the guest of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, whose cornucopia of plenty, has poured into the lap of Allegheny, a $300,000 tree library as remarkable in its way as the man who gave it or the circumstances connected with its formal dedication to the public by the Chief Magistrate of the Not within the record of history has a private gift to any city enlisted the services of the Executive as its sponsor, and Mr. Carnegie feels justly proud of the unusual significance attaching to the consummation of his philanthropic plan. Official matters had necessitated the postponement of the trip from Washington from the date originally contemplated-one week ago to-dayand the fulfilment of the President's promise to be present created feelings of the liveliest satisfaction to all concerned, but especially to Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Scott, and the members of the Free Library Commis-The train bearing the President, his party and the various welcoming committees rolled into the spacious depot of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at a few minutes after 11 o'clock. The engine ceased its puffing and the wheels ceased to revolve. Escorted by Mr. James B. Scott, the President alighted from the forward end and was descried by a crowd which had waited pa-tiently for several hours. Cheers were vigorously given, which General Harrison courteously acknowledged by raising his sifk hat again and again. The welcome was hearty and spontaneous, and the drenching rain did not debar a mass of humanity from lining the approaches to the carriages in waiting. MET THEM AT BESSEMER. The arrival of the Presidental train at Bessemer at 9:30 o'clock had been awaited by a delegation of Pittsburgers for over an hour. The party which left Pittsburg at 7:10 o'clock was composed of the Carnegie Free Library Commission and a delegation of gentlemen representing the immense Carnegie interests headed by Mr. H. C. Frick. The representatives of the Carnegie interests who were of the party were the following gen-tlemen: Mr. H. C. Frick, Mr. W. L. Abbott, who were of the party were the following gentlemen: Mr. H. C. Frick, Mr. W. L. Abbott, Mr. H. M. Curry, Mr. O. is Childs, Mr. John G. A. Leishman and Mr. A. R. Peacock.

The entire Carnegie Free Library Commission was present. The members were as follows: Mr. James B. Scott, Chairman pro tem; Mr. John Walker, Mr. Adam Ammon, Mr. Arthur Kennedy, Mr. Thomas A. Parke, Mr. G. W. Saaman and Mr. Charles Davis, consulting engineer. A representative of The Dispatch was also of the Pittsburg party.

At Bessemer, the party was joined by Mr. C. M. Schwab, General Superintendent, who acted as escort to the combined party when the tour of the works became in order. The interval between the arrival of the Pittsburgers at Bessemer and the appearance of the Presidental train was put in inspecting the hugo furnaces, "G" just having been blown in. Under the guidance of the gentlemen representing Mr. Carnegie, those present were placed in possession of the most exhaustive information. An adjournment was taken to the signal tower, where the time was occupied in learning the progress made by the special train from Connellsville, where the first stop was made since Cumberland, to Bessemer. Superintendent Patton telegraphed that the train would reach Bessemer at 9:30. Mr. Scott telegraphed at intervals to Mr. John H. Ricketson, at the Duquesne Club, in order to enable the Eugulesne Club committee to be accurately posted as to the time of arrival in Pittsburg.

Furnace "F." the remainder of the party falling into line indiscriminately. Mr. Carnegie, active as a boy, was here, there and everywhere, shaking hands and making inquiries albout various matters, the soul of geniality.

The furnace had been due at 8 o'clock, but was stopped up and held until the arrival of the distinguished visitors. The burly workmen gave a few sharp blows upon the venthole and with a shower of sparks the molten metal crept like a thread of gold through the moist sand. Elaborate explanations were made in detail by Messrs. Frick and Schwab.
The party then threaded its way through the boiler rooms and through the yards to the enormous converters. The eyes of the President diluted, as the showers of sparks radiating the glories of an aurora borealis shot across the ingot pit. The ingots were followed in detail with the greatest interest by the President and those present, through the various stages leading up to the famous finished object lesson upon protection was fully appreciated by all who witnessed it.

ciated by all who witnessed it.

The return to the cars was made through double lines of workmen armed with lanterns, the excursion having been made in the shape of a circle. The commission and Mr. Carnegie's lieutenants joined the President in the special car, and after Mr. Scott had sent a message to the Duquesne Club, the train started for Pittsburg. On the way in Mr. Carnegie charted earnessly with messus. Frick and negle chatted earnestly with Messis. Frick and Curry, and the President conversed with Mr. Scott. He showed signs of weariness and re-moved the soft traveling but he had worn while on the tramp. The train reached Pittsburg without further incident.

CHEERS AT THE STATION. The President was met by Mr. B. F. Jones. Chairman of the Welcoming Committee of the Duquesne Club, who introduced the committee, who were the following gentlemen: Mr. John H. Rieketson, Mr. John W. Chalfant, Mr. A. E. W. Painter, Mr. Charles H. Spang and General Fitzhugh. As the party traversed the pintform toward the carriages, President Harrison bowed in response to the cheers which rang out. Eight conveyances awaited the party. Owing to the heavy rain no attempt was made to do more than seek shelter, and the carriages were quickly filled. Then the imposing cordon of police, which had kept back the crowd while the marky was passing resolved itself into a were quickly hited. Incu the imposing cortion of police, which had kept back the crowd while the party was passing, resolved itself into a platoon under Mr. Roger O'Mara's direction, and took the middle of the street, marching to the Duquesne Club. Demonstrations and cheers greeted the party at every portion of the way, and an immense crowd shouted forth obsers when the President alighted and ascended the broad steps leading to the club. With every window alight and a double line of members of the club in full dress to receive Mr. Carnegie and his distinguished guests there could not have been a warner, hoartier welcome. The elevator conveyed the party upstairs and the Washington contingent retired immediately to the private dining room, where a choice collation awaited discussion. After this had been done justice to the soluce of morpheus for the fatigues of the day became immediately in order. No visitors were received, and the President was as privately housed as if in the big white mansion at the end of Pennsylvania avenue.

HIS PRIVACY COMPLETE. The members of the Carnegie Commission had been extended the courtesies of the club, and a brief era of handshaking terminated the evening. By order of the club President, Mr. Sol Schoyer, Jr., the club rules relating to the admission of non-members were suspended from 6 o'clock last evening, the suspension to be in force until to-morrow at noon. By this means the privacy of the President will be

The arrangements for the reception of the party were most complete, and were carried out with a minute exactness reflecting great credit upon bir. James B. Scott. Everything was in place, and not a hitch occurred. Mr. Scott's indefatigable exertions were very warmly compublic last night.
The menu of the clubhouse is under the personal supervision of Steward James Riley, so far as the President's table is concerned. Mr. Riley has had a wide experience in the conduct of important banquets. He superintended banquets to the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Albany, ex-President Cleveland and other not-ables, and he makes no doubt of being able to tlexic the Presidental palate. It is conceded by all who have had a peep at the suite of rooms used by the President that in extent and beauty their equal does not exist else-where.

Covers will be laid for 16, and the table will be decorated with orchids and roses. The Carnegie Free Library Commission and the Washington guests will occupy the arranged places.

A miniature log cabin, in imitation of the one in which President Harrison first saw the light of day, will occupy the center of the table. It will be composed of palm tree bark, rolled so as to represent logs and covered with orchids. At either end of the table a large, graceful basket of rare and fragrant roses will be placed. Handsome palms fill the niches and corners of all the apartments, while exquisite vases containing finer and more delicate exotics occupy the bay window in front of the building. The decorations are under the supervision of A. M. & J. B. REPUBLICAN GAINS IN COUNCILS A Full List of School Directors, Aldermen and Constables. SEVERAL PLACES TO BE CONTESTED

Although the election contests are decided the excitement has not subsided. The defeated factions are satisfied with the fight they made, and in both cities the Democrats look upon their struggle as a noble one. Of course the friends of the winning candidates are jubilant. The vote was an unusually heavy one, and Gourley's majority is placed in round numbers at 3,500. This is an increase of 3,300 over McCallin. The surprises were many, and of a character that furnish food for reflection by both parties. It is admitted by all that the Republican organization was about as near perfect as it could well be, and the workers moved in harmony. Judge Bailey received many Re-publican votes, and if his party had been as thoroughly organized the result might have been somewhat different.

The Republican victory was carried into the Councilmanic elections as well as the contests for School Director. The new Select Council will have 29 Republicans and 7 Democrats, and the Common branch will have 35 Republicans, Independent Republican, 16 Democrats and 1 Independent Democrat, The returns from the outlying districts came in very slowly and many of them have not been heard from yet.

The following Common Councilmen were elected that were not reported in yesterday's elected that were not reported in yesteraly's DISPATCH:

Among the many unusual phases yesterday's contests assumed, was one in Braddock, on which the disposition of the postoffice is supposed to depend. Henry Fix, one of the aspirants, backed Christopher Sheets for Council, while George A. Smith, a G. A. R. man, and also an aspirant for the postoffice, put Richard Jones forward for Council. Jones won and this is regarded as a victory for the G. A. R. choice for postmas-ter. A citizen of the borough says he expects the agony to end as soon as Courressman Dal-zell can be made acquainted with the situation, regarding the result of the election as a test of the sense of the voters on the matter,

There is a spring in the hillside near where the intant was discovered. The clear water, issuing from a pipe, falls into a large cask sunk in the ground. Detective Glenn believes that the girl intended to throw the body into this cask. To reach it she must pass through a gate in a close board fence. This gate was locked, and the body was simply thrust through under the gate. Every woman in that neighborhood, except one, hurried to the scene after the corpse was discovered. seminary. After a brief existence the ecclesiastical school was closed, and the students found quarters at the College of the Hoty Ghost and other institutions. The property at Hazelwood was retained. There is a small debt on it. About six months ago the buildings were destroyed by fire.

Bishop Phelan said yesterday that the intention was to build a new seminary for the education of young men for the priesthood in this diocese. The site at Hazelwood is not considered suitable, for several reasons, and that property will be sold. Other property will be secured, and a building will be erected to cest probably $40,000 or $12,000. A location has not yet been decided on. The Bishop believes that the seminary should be in the suburbs, within easy railway communication with the city, but in a neighborhood so far removed from the turmoils and distractions of the city that the young men will be undisturbed in their devotion to their studies. Healthfulness of site must also be taken into consideration.

It is not intended to build at once. The incorporation is sought for the purpose of showing to the people that the seminary is to be It is not intended to build at once. The incorporation is sought for the purpose of showing to the people that the seminary is to be placed on a substantial, responsible and permanent footing when it is resumed. The time for that resumption will depend altogether upon the securing of funds. The Bishop is decided that no debts shall be saddled upon any of the institutions of the diocese during his administration. The seminary will begin its second life on a sound financial basis, and the best talent of the church will be enlisted in its instructions. The laity will be interested in the institution. Bishop Phelan believes that the ultimate work of such a school is really of more vital interest to, the laity than to the clergy, and they will be given a prominent part in the work of its establishment and maintenance. Just how the new scheme will work remains to be seen, but it is almost certain that the people will submit even to the advanced rates in preference to the meters. Another objection to the meter is its first cost. The company charges $5 each for putting in the meters, and requires $5 additional as a deposit. When the consumer quits using the gas the deposit is returned to him, but the amount paid for putting in the meter is retained by the company. This is also claimed to be an unjust charge, as the
