QUEENS WHO WORK. Fair Girls in Their Teens as Absolute Rulers of

SCHOOLS IN THE COUNTRY.

Mere Pittances.

A NOTE OF WARNING SOUNDED The low salaries paid country school teachers have resulted in the employment of a great many youthful educators. It is claimed by some that such inexperienced persons cannot maintain the schools as they should be, but THE DISPATCH correspond ent has investigated this phase of the trouble. Other features of the question will be treated in additional letters. IVROM A STAYF CORRESPONDENT. BAKERSTOWN, Pa., February 25 .- That 'village schoolmaster' of whom we used to read has long since been gathered to his fathers. Now and then you still see some age-stained picture of him. Circle it with the educational framework of 1890, and it seems unreal, the pedagogue almost a myth. Hang it up in front of the modern teacher's desk in a Pine township school, and it becomes a mere carienture; for look behind the desk, and there sits a little queen instead of Old, cross and ugly was that early tutor. How familiar have aucient magazine prints made his image to us! The spectacles pushed back on the bald head; the bandana handkerchief hanging out from the pocket of that long, greasy-looking cost; switch in one hand and book in the other; a general bearing as though he had grown up at the feet of Gamaliel; the scholars before him, however, quaking as though they saw only a raw head and bloody bones.

VERY YOUNG TRACHERS. Fresh and pretty, youthful and gay, gen-tle but firm-nine words which best describe a large class of country and village school teachers in Allegheny county to-day.

"But it won't do," somebody croaks, "for there are many school marms in the rural districts who are widows and maiden Well, my abreviated description is not a misfit for even some of them. But by referring to the last annual report of County Superintendent Hamilton it will be found that he granted certificates to 117 teachers, most of whom were under 18 years of age. I beard yesterday of two of them, now teach-ing in a certain township some distance south of this, who are only a little way advanced into sweet sixteen. The County Superintendent adds that the female teachers outnumber the males in Allegheny county 4 to 1, and that many of these are under 21 years of age. The fact that the education of children is intrusted to such a great ex-tent in this county to such young girls is used by Prof. Hamilton as a note of warning. He blames it on the cyll of low salaries, which was the topic fully discussed in the first letter of this series. Her inexperience he would make a barrier to the admittance of young girls as teachers, if possible,

HER RUDE QUARTERS. Be that as it may, I watched two or three young school marms manage as many schools yesterday in a manner that certainly pronounced them worthy of their hire, and considerably more than what their hire amounts to. One of them taught in Pine township. The school is one of those typical little white buildings that you will find so frequently put down right in the corner of a grove, on a triangular clearing at the side of one of the roads. If you are not sure whether it is the county school, look if several of the window panes are broken. Then if the wooden steps at the door are all nicked up with initials and names, you may be sure you are not mistaken. A half de-molished coal shed close by is another infallible indication. Inside, the rough desks and benches have been just as fully memoralized by the jack-knife and youthful tomahawk. Blackboards do not appear to have afforded room enough for the soaring genius of Pine township Gourleys and Morrows, and the once-white plastered walls are ornamented at almost measured regularity with sketches resem-bling late campaign cartoons of Pittsburg's Mayoralty battle. The innocent arts of peace, however, are typified by two long rows of hata, hoods, cloaks and lunch baskets, while the scratch of pencil on slate, or the upsetting of an ink bottle calls you back to noble educational thoughts. A GOOD TEACHER. And the little lady teacher called the wandering thoughts of the ink spiller back to his duties at the same time. When I was able to make the teacher understand that I was not one of the new census supervisors, she seemed to feel safe-there was no danger of her age becoming public property. She is one of the youngest teachers in the county, though. It was soon apparent she was a born educator, a systematic trainer.

"I only have 25 pupils here," she explained. "They come from territory a mile and a balf around. I have tried to properly grade my school for even these 25. This I have done by making four divisions. In the A division I teach geography, grammar, arithmetic, penmanship and physiology. B division takes in the simpler forms of physiology, geography, arithmetic, language, spelling, reading and writing. In C division still simpler forms of these studies are taught. D is the primary division."

Here was a person teaching pretty nearly all that is taught in a large city school, where teachers get twice and nearly three times as much salary for conducting a class in merely one set of the studies, while she must teach all branches. SMALL PAY FOR HARD WORK. This young lady receives $35 per month. Last year she paid $15 per month board, and living more than 20 miles from home laid out about $7 50 per year for visits home. She teaches seven months, and then puts in the other five months as a student at one of the State Normal schools, where she has to pay for tuition a part of her small earnings. In Pine township there are four schools, with as many teachers. They get $35 per month each, one of them being a man.

In Richland and West Deer townships I made particular inquiry as to the ability of the very young teachers. I got satisfactory replies in most cases. Some were put down as forficient, "and getting all they were worth." But the exposure these young women have to put up with, the lenely location of their schools, the kind of material they have to deal with in their pupils, and the responsibilities they can't help but feel when they find themselves in a disorganized, ungraded school—all these must appeal for better salaries for even "the very youthful Yet, there are grounds for objections to the employment of teachers at a too inex-perienced age. These objections are well worded in the report of County Superintendent Hamilton, to which we again have recourse. He says: COCOA TOO LITTLE EXPERIENCE. It is a significant fact that the demand for teachers last year was so great that to secure | Choicest, Purest, Best, teachers enough to fill the schools we were compelled to issue certificates to 117 persons who were without any experience whatever in the work of teaching. In the course of my visits most of the teachers were found to be carpestly, honestly and faithfully discharging their duties to the best of their abilities. And their duties to the best of their abilities. And while many were absolute failures in the school-room because their ability was not equal to the demands made upon it, yet be it said, to the credit of our teachers, that but few were found who were willfully neglecting the proper performance of their duties. This class of teachers which makes an honest and determined effort to succeed and yet fails, or at most does very inferior work in the school-rooms, is a surprisingly large one. This is due to the fact that but few teachers, less than perhaps 20 per cent of them, remain permanently in our profession, or for a sufficient length of time to gain an experimental knowledge of the work of teaching. The great majority of our teachers belong to the transient class. They leave it eventually to enter more remunerative callings.

The vacaucies thus caused in our ranks must be filled by new recruits. These recruits average perhaps one-sixth of our teaching force, and it is to be expected that many of them, though faithful and honest in their efforts, must be classed as WEAK AND INEFFICIENT teachers. We have a right to expect that the Their Difficult Tasks Performed for results of the work of these 117 inexperienced teachers, for instance, would be unsatisfactory.

* I believe that 25 per cent of the money

s * I believe that 25 per cent of the money now paid to the teachers of Allegheny county is wasted, not because of the carelessness or extravagance of the directors, but because they are compelled to employ young and inexperienced teachers, who cannot, and do not do the work for which they drawthe pay.

I am not afrain to trust the education of the young to intellectual, cultured women with well disciplined minds and mature judgments, yet I believe we are steadily drifting toward a danger point by allowing this important work to be left in the hands of very young ladies of limited scholastic, attainments and for unmatured minds—persons whose judgment by reason of youth must be very defective. Many of these young teachers came from families where they had very meager advantages for culture. Such persons can scarcely have a proper conception of the great realities of life, by which they are to train the children. Surely they are not the best qualified persons to prepare our boys for the responsibilities of life. Not only have the men become a VERY SMALL MINORITY in our profession, but many of those who remain are charged with being poorly qualified for the work of the school room. This charge, no doubt, has some truth in it. Yet, back of all these conditions, which have given this work into the hands of very young ladies and poorly qualified men, there is a cause, and to produce a more desirable effect we must change the cause. This cause is found in the fact that the earning power of a man is greater in any business than in the work of teaching, and that the earning power of a lady is greater in our profession than in any other work in which she can engage. For this reason alone many young indies who know they must earn their own living seek to enter the profession as early as possible, regardless of natural fitness or special preparation for the work. It is more a question of the relative earning power of the sexes. Do not misunderstand me. I am not opposed to female teachers, or to paying the competent ones well for their work. I only favor having more of the competent and less of the very young and inefficient. This trouble should be checked by offering better inducements to the good teachers, and thus retain in the profession more good men. work into the hands of very young ladies and

A LIVING EXAMPLE.

The six-foot countryman, who drove me out through Pine township, interrupted my meditations at this point, as we neared the railroad station, on our homeward trip. "I was a school teacher myself once," he

"Have you a bank account now?" I "Not from teaching," he laughed. "It was ten years ago, and in Cambria county. My school was in the woods of those mountains not far from Ebensburg. I was examined and elected teacher in the same day. [He laughed heartily at this, as though Dela-mater tactics of the modern Cambria county might have ruled in the county institutes might have ruled in the county institutes there years ago.] I got $20 per month. I would have starved if I had not had an uncle up there who boarded me for 10 cents a meal and threw the lodgings in for harvest time work. And I would have died had I taught school another term. I guess it was not in my line, stranger. I'd rather saw wood any day. The bullies of the school were the Giles boys. The township expected they would cow me like they did the dude who taught before me. But I did not use the switch on them once. Soon their not use the switch on them once. Soon their father told me they had learned to read verse about with him at family worship. But I guess I spared the rod too much, and the school was too much for me at the end of the term. Then I went to farming, then oil drilling. "What do you do now?"

"My brother and I have the store and postoffice down on the railroad in Butler county. Our store is not like yours in the county. Our store is not like yours in the city. We keep a little of everything—drugs, medicines and shoes, you know, and lately we have added to our assortment a brick yard, lumber yard, coal and limestone quarries—and, oh, I forgot, a grist mill, too. Yes, I got a little bank account, but I had to stop teaching school."

L. E. STOFIEL A Noteworthy Exception From the Kimball, South Dakota, Graphic. 3 While the columns of the Graphic are open to any and all unobjectionable adver-tisements, yet it is quite impossible for us to speak knowingly of the various articles of merchandise advertised. Particularly is this true of patent medicines. But there are exceptions occasionally, and a noteworthy exception is the celebrated Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This now universally known medicine has been advertised in the Graphic for four or five years, but not until recently had we any personal knowledge of its wonderful efficacy, which has come about through the prevailing influence and the stubborn cough that has so oft-en attended it. In the writer's family this medicine has on several occasions this win-ter cured a cough that baffled any and all other remedies; and the number of families
