COME, REST AND PRAY

The Invitation Extended by a Church in New York

THAT IS OPEN FOR WORSHIP DAILY

Generosity of a Brooklyn Church to a Retiring Pastor.

NEWSY NOTES FROM THE CHURCHES

For a long time it has been the desire of the rector of Trinity Church and many others with him that this church should be opened every day for public service and now that it has been made practicable by the generosity of one of its founders (the late Mr. Shoenberger) it is devoutly hoped that no obstacles will be thrown in its way by any, although they may feel it tends toward Rome or some other ancient city. Apropos of this desire is the sentiment of the Congregationalist, which says in a late assue on this subject: Just off a little park, which is skirted by one, of the busiest avenues in New York City stands a handsome church edifice, near whose porch is a placard bearing the words, "Come in, rest and pray." Seven days in the week this house of worship stretches out its arms to the stream of humanity which pours unceasingly past its doors. In an age which runs to materialism, and in a city where life is most intense and fevered, the simple, gentle invitation is a constant reminder of the spiritual world and of the peace of God.

The ratify of such use of a Decrease. stands a handsome church edifice, near whose constant reminder of the spiritual world and of the peace of God.

The rarity of such use of a Protestant meeting house is not more striking than is the satisfaction which one feels who has observed the good results which, in almost every instance, have followed the experiment of opening the church week days as well as Sundays. When we reflect upon the amount of money invested in church buildings, it becomes a grave question whether it is good business policy to let them he idle six-sevenths of the time. And when we remember they were dedicated to God, to the end that they might be serviceable to men, the query thrusts itself forward, are our church buildings being utilized as fully as they night be to bring the masses to Chriss?

It is of course impracticable and undesirable for every church in every community to keep its doors open to the public, day in and day out. But there is a decided disposition on the part of those passors and peoples who are alive to modern methods of church work to bring isto larger and more frequent use the edifice, which, in the popular apprehension is the church itself. Just so soon as a church awakens to the need of greater activity, if it would reto the need of greater activity, if it would re-tain and strengthen its hold upon the people, that church finds new uses for its edince. It cannot carry on a large and varied work for the men and women about it unless it does swing ide the doors, not for a few hours on Sunday but like any other enterprising business con-cern, from Monday to Saturday as well. The centering of all the activities of the but like any other enterprising business concern, from Monday to Saturday as well.

The centering of all the activities of the church at one point, the grouping there of gymnasitums, reading rooms and sewing schools, the extending of a welcome at all reasonable hours of the day are most admirable features of that forward movement whose pulsations are beginning to be felt in all our religious work. The church should be the center of all the innocent and joyous life of the community, it should be no less of a temple, whether the tribes go up to pray and to praise, but it should be the railying ground and the training school for all noble activity. And every lonely, dispirited man and woman who catches signt of a church spire should know that there can be found the sympathy and help which will make their barren lives rich again, and worth the living.

Is this a fast, to keep the larder lean and clean, From int of yeals and sheep?

Is it to quit the dish of fiesh, yet still to fill The pintter high with fish? Is it to fast an hour, or ragged to go, or show
A downcast look and souf?

No! 'Tis a fast to dole thy sheaf of wheat and meat It is to fast from strife, from old debate and hate, To circumcise thy life.

To show a heart grief rent, to starve thy sin, not And that's to keep thy Lent.

Dr. Lee stated that the experiences of the health authorities were embodied in a report to the State Board of Health, which would be published in pamphlet form, together with an accurate description of the the means employed to secure sanitation as a provision for future contingencies of the same nature. As this was the object for which the tri-State meeting was called, the intention was commended. It was also proposed that the various papers read at the meeting be inserted in the various medical ournals in order to obtain the widest possi-

GRATEFUL COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a property nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
