ANOTHER FEATURE.

Erie has no rolling mills, no blast furnaces, no manufactory, in fact, that pro-duces or requires heavy tonnage, but it has some valuable factories, nevertheless. A simple enumeration of the chief manufactories will probably give a comprehensive idea of Erie's industries.

The Jarecki Manufacturing Company, Limited, probably does the largest tonuage business in Erie. The company manufac-tures brass work, malleable and gray iron pipe, and fittings for steam, gas, water and oil. Employment is given to 800 men, but as the product is all finished material, the tonnage is not heavy. The Eric Paper and Chemical Mills is another important industry, and one of which Eric is proud, although a ship canal would neither help nor hurt such an establishment. The 200 workmen employed would regret any project which might make them idle. The Stearns Manufscturing Company, which makes engines, boilers and sawmills, employs 350 men. The Erie Car Heating Commany, which makes steam heating attach-ments for ears, has nearly half a million dollars invested in the works, and employs a large number of hands.

THEY ARE PROUD OF IT.

The Burdett Organ Company is one of the enterprises which people in Eric never forenterprises which people in Erie never for-get to mention to astranger who ismaking in-quiries as to the city's industries. The Erie City Iron Works, which manufactures steam engines, boilers and portable saw mills, has an invested capital of $500,000. The F. F. Adams Company produces neuroities in workwork. The Chicago and novelties in wookwork. The Chicago and Erie Stove Works has its foundry in Erie and $200,000 invested in the establishment. The Ball Engine Company, the Erie Engine Works, T. M. Nagle and the Skinner En-gine Company, all manufacture steam engines and their various appliances. The other iron working establishments are the Hydraulic Iron Works, Davenport & Fairborn, manufacturers of car wheels and railroad castings; the Erie Car Works, the Griswold Manufacturing Company, hollowware; the Erie Malleable Iron Company, the Brown Folding Machine Company, ice intern rotating Machine Com-pany, tolding, electrotyping and stereo-typing machinery; the Bay State Iron Works, engines, boilers, etc.; N. A. Wat-son, boiler iceders; Hubbard & Haskell, for file manu inclurers; "Radiant Home" Stove Works and the Eric Specialty Manufacturing Company.

PLENTY OF BRASS.

There are several factories working in brass, and as a matter of course, innumer-able lumber dealers and wood-working establishments because all lake cities can get tablishments because all lake offices can get Michigan lumber at lower treight rates than can offices that have a rail haul. None of these industries, however, indicate a large tounage. The coal tonnage probably reaches as much as any three or four of the establishments would put together. There are two large firms in the wholesale the Union Coal in Erie. One of them is the Union Coal Company, dealing in an-thracite, and the other is the Youghiogheny River Coal Company, handling bituminous, and of which Hon. W. L. Scott, a man not altogether unknown to fame and cash, is the President.

And, speaking of coal, reminds me of the fact that Erie has natural gas for fuel and has had it ever since 1860. It comes from the shale and not from such gas sands as exist in the Murrysville district. The sup-ply is not strong, but it is much more en-during than that obtained from the storage house sands.

ORTON'S GAS IDEAS.

Prof. Orton, State Geologist of Ohio, places much faith in the gas obtained from the shales, because, while the supply is lim-ited in quantity for each well and the flow is slow, only a comparatively small territory is drained by each well, and new wells, just as good producers, can be put down not far from the old
