men Over a Public Building. SOME VERY HEATED LANGUAGE

During a Lively Debate in the House of Representatives.

TRYING TO KNOCK OUT THE SURPLUS

A Democratic Member's Candid Announcement of His Intentions.

Congressmen Cannon and Milliken were involved in a dispute over a public building bill, yesterday, which became exceedingly personal. Cannon tried to filibuster against the bill, but it was finally passed, Reed counting a quorum.

WASHINGTON, March 6 .- A bill approprinting $200,000 for a public building at San Jose, Cal., was the object of a vigorous attack from Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, in the House to-day. He criticised the action of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and alluded to the "pork in the pot." In his own town of Danville the postoffice site was leased for $700 a year. That was sufficient for the postoffice building there, and the business was more there than the average of the business of towns where the committee provided for the erection of public buildings.

Mr. Milliken retorted that nobody doubted that the gentleman's town was a cheap town. [Laughter]. AN EXCITING DIALOGUE.

Mr. Caunon-If the gentleman descends-

Mr. Milliken-No, I am simply admitting the truth of your own argument. Mr. Cannon said that from the uneasiness nd restlessness of the gentleman from Maine when any one rose to criticise his committee, it would seem to be treason to the gentleman and humanity to do so. When in good faith he (Cannon) called attention to the appropriations made by these bills, the gentleman rose and indulged in wit, which was as cheap, if not contemptible. The Republicans had told the country that under the new rules desirable legislation would be speedily enacted, yet these rules had not been in force a month before a special order was made for the consideration of public building bills. Hewould content himself in voting against bills which his judgment told him were not proper. Gentlemen must answer to their constituents for their votes. If a member's constituency will excuse him, when he told them that he had got for them $75,000 or $200,000 in compensation for improvident appropriations, he (Mr. Cannon) supposed that it was all right. [Laughter.]

A BITTER RETORT. Mr. Milliken said that he would endeavor to get along with his constituents without the lecture of the gentleman from Illinois. If it were not for his friendly feelings to-ward the gentleman from Illinois he would suggest, further, that he had never seen a man attempt to impute to another man that he had "pork in the pot;" that he was not the first fellow to get his hand into the pot.

[Laughter.]
Mr. Cannon, approaching Mr. Milliken, asked the gentleman to be kind enough to explain his last remark. Did the gentleman mean to say, by words or otherwise, that he (Mr. Cannon) had asked or intimated that se desired the committee to recommend any

Mr. Milliken suggested that it was a foolish thing for a man to ask another man whether he had done anything which no-body expected he had done. He was entirely responsible for what he had said.

Mr. Cannon understood the gentleman to say that he never knew a man to ery "stop thief" that he was not trying to steal some-thing. "And if the gentleman," he counght by innuenda or intimation, to allege that if it had not been for his friendly relations with me, he could urge aught against my character, or otherhere and now let us have it, Seth Mil-

ALMOST AN ENCOUNTER.

As he was uttering these words, he was slowly approaching Mr. Milliken, and as he finished his sentence, he tapped that gen-tleman on the shoulder, amid the laughter of the House. Throughout the colloquy both gentlemen manifested a good deal of exciteent, but the House was very good-humored and thoroughly enjoyed the controversy, which was ended by Mr. Milliken disclaiming any intention to insinuate anything against the gentleman, who was as nearly perfect as any man in the world.

Mr. Peters, of Kansas, criticised the bill s being extravagant, and he asked Mr. Clunie, of California, in whose district San Jose is located, to give statistics showing the postoffice business there transacted. Mr. Clume said that if he had known that his bill was going to create so much disturbance in the House he might not have introduced it. But he had thought that it would not be immodest in him (not having a publie building in his district) to ask Congress to give him one. [Laughter.] THE REASONS FOR IT.

He was informed by gentlemen on the Republican side that there was a disposi-Republican side that there was a disposition on the part of Congress to expend public money in giving the people buildings necessary to carry on their business. He did not believe that after he had voted for every bill coming from the Republican side, the geatleman from Illinois would create so much excitement over the first bill coming from the Democratic side. [Laughter.] While the pile was being divided round he did not think it immedest to ask a little slice for San Jose. [Laughter.] There was not a man on the Republican side who had not patted him on the back and said: "Clunie, we will stond by you." Il sundry land the content of the stove at the depot, and when asked by the agent to desist drew knives and carved the stovepipe. patted him on the back and said: "Clunie, we will stand by you." [Laughter.]

After further debate the bill was laid aside After further debate the bill was laid aside favorably, and the committee, rising, it, together with the preceding bills, was reported to the House. In the House Mr. Cannon made a vigorous fight against the Washington, D. C., postoffice bill, moving to adject, amid eries of "Dilatory motion" Cannon made a vigorous fight against the Washington, D. C., postoffice bill, moving to adjourn, amid cries of "Dilatory motion" from the Democrats, and raising of no quorum amid shouts of "Filibustering" from the same source. The Speaker counted a quorum and the bill was passed, as were the other bills reported favorably.

The Minister of Customs said that negotiations had been going on for some time with customs officials of the United States in the hope that the evil could be remedied, but without satisfactory result. These houses generally contained a tramway upon which the contraband goods and liquors which were smuggled were placed in a car and when the premises were visited by United States officials they were run over to the Canadian end of the house, and vice versa when visited by officers of the Can a-

136 FEDERAL STREET,

OFFICIAL-PITTSBURG.

AN ORDINANCE—PROVIDING FOR the acceptance from Andrew Carnegie of a free library.
WHEREAS, Andrew Carnegie, Esq., has generously offered to the city of Pittsburg a gift of a free library, as set forth in the following communication: a free library, as set forth in the following communication:

PHTTSBURG, February 6, 1890.

To the Mayor and Councils of Pittsburg:
GENTLEMEN-Some years ago I had the pleasure of offering to expend upon a free library for the city of Pittsburg the sum of $250.000. The finances of the city were not then in condition to permit of its acceptance. Having expended more than that sum in our sister city of Aliegheny, I subsequently intimated that I was prepared to expend not less than $500,000 for Pittsburg; such, however, has been the recent growth of the city, such are its prospects for the future, that careful consideration has led me to the conclusion that in order to provide such libraries as Pittsburg should have will require even a larger sum.

I think that Pittsburg requires a central building, containing a reference and circulating library; also suitable accommodations for works of art which I believe us attracts.

I think that Pittsburg requires a central building, containing a reference and circulating library; also suitable accommodations for works of art, which, I believe, its citizens would soon provide; that there should also be added rooms for the meetings of the various learned societies of the city. The experience of New York, Baltimore and other large cities has proved that a central library should be supplemented by branch libraries. The Free Circulating Library of New York has now four of these, the city of Baltimore has five; they are not extensive structures, but each contains a small supply of books most in demand and a reading room, and is operated in connection stricts of the city, probably one in Birmingham, another in Temperanceville, another in East Liberty, a fourth in Lawrenceville, perhaps a fifth in the older part of the city. All of these should be thoroughly fireproof, monumental in character and creditable to the city.

To provide these buildings with suitable books, etc., I offer to expend not less than $1,000,000. I propose that their location, erection and management shall be intrusted to a Board of Trustees, composed ex-officio of the Mayor, the Presidents of Select and Common Councils, the President of the Central Board of Education, and a Library Committee of five appointed by the Councils, such as you have done me the honor to appoint to confer with me. To these I would add the names of 12 well-known citizens of Allecheny county, who should have power as a body to provide for the re-election of its members at stated times, and also to fill vacancies in their number.

The libraries to be handed over to the city upon their completion, free from lien, in trust for the purposes specified. The city to agree to receive and support same at its own proper cost, under the management of the trustees as above provided.

The city of Baltimore pays $50,000 per annum

The city of Baltimore pays $50,000 per annum

The city of Baltimore pays $50,000 per annum for the support of its public libraries established by Mr. Enoch Pratt, who gave $1,000,000 for the purpose; but I believe that $40,000 per annum would be sufficient to maintain those of Pittsburg. And not less than this sum I require the city of Pittsburg to agree to place at the disposal of the library trustees to be expended upon them.

Pittsburg. And not less than this sum I require the city of Pittsburg to agree to place at the disposal of the library trustees to be expended upon them.

I am clearly of the opinion that it is only by the city maintaining its public libraries as it maintains its public schools, that every citizen can be made to feel that he is a joint proprietor of them, and that the public library is for the public as a whole, and not for any portion thereof; and I am equally clear that unless a community is willing to maintain public libraries at the public cost, that very little good can be obtained from them. Not to save me further expenditure therefor, but for the best interests of the city I make it a condition that they shall be properly maintained by the city.

Very respectfully.

Section 1—Be it ordained and enacted by the city of Pittsburg, in Select and Common Councils assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the generous gift of a free library offered by Andrew Carnegie to the city of Pittsburg is hereby accepted, in accordance with the letter of said Andrew Carnegie, dated Pittsburg. February 6, 1890, and which letter forms part of the preamble to this ordinance, and the officers of the city named in said letter are hereby authorized and empowered to act as members of the Board of Trustees composing the commission therein named, when the same shall have been completed by the appointed by the said Andrew Carnegie and the Library Committee to be appointed under second section of this ordinance.

Section 2—That immediately upon the passare of this ordinance and at the first meeting
