Rogers' Suit Against Hallman Argued in Court.

RESERVE RULES WON'T GO.

Parson Davies Explains How Lambert Fought Peter Jackson.

THE SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

The suit of the Philadelphia National League Club against Hallman and President Love, of the Philadelphia Players' Club, was argued before the Philadelphia court. The case seemed to be strongly in favor of Hallman. Parson Davies explains how Jackson failed to knock Lambert out in four rounds. Trotting horses continue to realize good prices at New York. President G. B. Day talks guardedly about the ten-club League.

"SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.] PHILADELPHIA, March 7.-The test case of the Philadelphia Ball Club, Limited, against William Hallman and Henry M. Love came un for argument this morning in Common Pleas Court No. 4, President Judge Thaver and Judge Arnold on the bench. The bill in equity was filed by Colonel John I. Rogers, who had with him to-day as associate counsel Mr. George Tucker Bispham. A demorrer was filed by Messrs. Vanderslice, Moore and John G. Johnson to this bill for an injunction, and on this the Court heard counsel. Mr. Vanderslice argued that the demurrer should stand, on the ground that the plaintiffs had a remedy at common law, and that the Court of Equity would not enforce a contract for per-sonal service; that the contract was one-sided; that it was really a "gilded bondage;" that it was unfair, and that the Court could not hold

WHAT THE BILL SETS FORTH. The bill in the case sets forth that the Philadeinbia ball club executed a contract with William Hallman on the 24th of October, 1888, in which it was agreed that Hallman should receive a salary of $1,400 to play ball for a period of seven months, commencing April 1, 1889, and ending October 31, 1889, and that the power of reserving" him for the next ensuing season, on a salary not less than that paid bim previously, be given to that club. On the 21st of October, 1889, notice was given Hallman that he was "reserved" for the ensuing season of 1890, and despite of this it is charged in the bill "Hallman has recently contracted to give his services as a ball player for the season beginning April L 1800, to H. M. Love, with the privilege of Love to assign said cantract to another baseball club be known as the Players' National League Baseball Club of Philadelphia or by some similar title, and as the Philadelphia club is informed and believes has publicly declared that

WILL NOT GIVE HIS SERVICES as a player to the Philadelphia club during said season of 1890 and that said defendant, Love, had and has notice and knowledge of plaintiff's prior contract with Hallman and of the plainiff's reservation thereunder of said Hallman's services for the ensuing senson of 1890.

In addressing the Court in behalf of the Philadelphia club, of which he is Secretary, Colonel Hogers said: "There can be no reasonable doubt that the contract set forth in plaintiff's bill gave to it an absolute right to Hallman's services as a ball player for the season of 1889 with an option to plaintiff to renew such services for the next ensuing season of 1890. Provided it should signify such option by 'reserving' Hallman for such season, which meant, ding Hallman's name, as one of not more than 14 players then under contract with plain tiff on a reserve list sent to other clubs and published for the information of everybody and by a renewal for 1890 of the salary of 1889."
The injunction asked for from the Court is to restrain Hallman from giving his services as a ball player for the season of 1890 to any club or organization, person or persons whatever other than the plaintiff club which brings the question before the Court: "Can a player be enjoined for a breach of contract for professional services?"

ROGERS ANSWERS HIMSELP.

In reply to this question of his own, Colonel Rogers thought that the contract can be enforced by a direct and affirmative decree for specific performance; that the tendency of equity jurisprudence is in favor of such a degree in cases like the present, and that it is highly probable that in the near futu e the distinction between enforcing a covenant for personal services by the direct means of a ree for its specific performance, and getting at the same result by restraining the bre a negative covenant, will disappear, and the courts of equity will feet themselves able to grant relief as well in one form as in the other. But if it be admitted that the contract cannot be directly enforced specifically, or that a player cannot be compelled by a mandatory injunction of the court to perform his duties as a baseball player, nevertheless the restraining power of a prohibitory injunction can be enforced to prevent the player from giving his services for the term contracted for to any other club or association, and thus, perhaps, indirectly compel specific performance. George Tucker Bispham followed on the same side, and argued to the court that the contract made was a definite contract, a contract for a time limited and not running inseffinitely, and that was a definite contract, a contract for a time limited and not running indefinitely, and that it was a contract on which an action for dam-ages would be inadequate, and that no proper relief could be obtained in another court. DUYSTERS MAKES AN APPEAL

BUYSTERS MARES AN APPEAL.

George F. Duysters, of New York, was given permission through the courtesy of the Court to address it as counsel for the defendants, and Mr. Duysters commenced by saying that he had argued a similar case in New York before Judge O'Brien, but the the matter came up there on a preliminary injunction, and not on a bill and demurrer, as here. Judge O'Brien thought that the injunction should not be made permanent until a final hearing, because the base ball player would not be likely to play ball for a living in the middle of winter, so he let the matter go over for a final hearing in February. The case, however, was not reached, and has not yet been decided. He then quoted a number of other cases from the New York courts in favor of his side of the case and made a stirring appeal to the court against the bill.

John G. Johnson, who is the acknowledged leader of the Philadelphia bar, closed for the defense. In the course of a very able speech, Mr. Johnson said: "The Philadelphia Club never said to this man, we will take your services under our contract, but they coupled it with an option they had no right to make. You must sign a new contract. This contract, which has not been produced, we believe contained a smillar option for the right of reservation for the next year, so the man could have been held from year to year in bondage. It is against the doctrine of the Constitution of the United States."

The court reserved its decision.

In the course of the argument Judge Thayer

The court reserved its decision. In the course of the argument Judge Thayer (who had been reading a copy of the National League contract), interrupted with the remark. "I see by the seventeenth paragraph of the contract that the club can discharge the player within ten days, if it so wishes, but that the player is compelled to play with the club as long as it may see fit."

ANXIOUS ABOUT BECKLEY.

A Letter Sent to Keep the First Baseman in Line.

Manager Hecker left the city yesterday stating that he was going to visit his family at Oil City. On Friday night he and President Nimick arranged that he should pay a visit to Beckley, but Secretary Scandrett intimated restering that this trip would not be taken. The desire was to keep the Beckley matter quiet, and whether or not Manager Hecker started on a trip to see the big first baseman is to some a matter of doubt, Birector Brown read the letter vesterday aft-

Director Brown read the letter yesterday afternoon which gives the information regarding the alleged effort to secure Beckley for the Players' club and be thinks there is some truth in it. At any rate another letter written by a higher official than Manager Hecker was sent to Beckley yesterday.

Al. Johnson has decided to send the Cleve-land Players' Club on a Southern trip with the players' club of Chicago. The two teams will start on their trip March 12, and the Cleveland players will report at Cieveland on the lith inst. Several local players think the idea a good one. The trips that are now being undertaken certainly knock on the head all the rumors to the effect that none of the new clubs but one are preparing for next season.

DAT'S NARROW ESCAPE. The New York Buseball Magante Luckily

Misses the Wrecked Train. NEW YORK, March 7 .- John B. Day returns from Cleveland this afternoon. As it was known that Mr. Day intended to leave Cleve-land last night, his friends feared that he had taken passage on the train wrecked near Ham-burg, and their anxiety as to his fate was very great. In fact, it was currently rumored that he was a passenger on the wrecked train. Mr. Day said the only reason he was not aboard the fatal train was because he haun't finished his business in time to catch it. He left Cleveland on a later train, and was delayed by the smashtinued Mr. Day, "and we were thus enabled to pass the wreck. As we rolled by the scene we could see the wounded stretched on the couches and the surgeons working over them. Each section contained two wounded persons. It was a horrible sight. One of the passenger cars was telescoped so completely within a Wagner coach that it was difficult to tell but that it was one and the same car. How a car can be so completely telescoped is something that I do not understand."

Mr. Day was not disposed to talk of beach. Mr. Day was not disposed to talk of baseball.
"Do you intend to go through with a ten club League?" was asked.

"That is what we have arranged," replied Mr. Day, concisely.
"How about the New York team for next "How about the New York team for next season?"

"We are still in the League and will have a team to play our scheduled games."

Mr. Day declined to say anything about engaging new star players or how he intended to strengthen the material he now has on hand. The local baseball opinion in regard to the Cleveland meeting seems to be that the true results attained were not disclosed. Prominent Brotherhood club officials share this belief. The impression seems to prevail that before the championship season opens only eight clubs will be found in the National League.

Regarding the Schedule. The National League schedule was the gen eral theme of conversation among local baseball enthusiasts and players yesterday. The also at the League fixing its opening date on the 26th when it is understood that the new league will open on the 21st, Referring to this point Secretary Scandrest stated that the 26th was chosen so that the new League schedule would be almost duplicated by that of the old League during nearly the entire season.

THE CHECK-REIN. some Good Advice to Amateur Drivers

About Its Usc. The following advice about the use of the check rein, published in the Horseman, will be of great interest to local horse owners: "There should be someone to enlighten the amateur horsemen in the proper use of the check-rein, from the fact of there being a number that have a tendency to imitate their neighbors. When any of these people see a horse hitched they go home and try the same plan, frequently checking a colt up as high as they can, and start in to break him. The re-they can, and start in to break him. The result is that nine out of ten are partially spoiled and develop a dislike for the check, and it is years before they are cured of the habit of tossing their head.

If the beginner would only use a little forethought and check a colt up gradually, he would soon find the natural position and svoid future trouble. Under such treatment the colt will soon learn to drive pleasantly and speed without pulling. One colt likes an overdraw, another a side check, and so on therefore the driver should endeavor to get a kind that will suit. It is never safe to check a colt up until such a point is reached, as he will do that will suit. It is never safe to check a colt up until such a point is reached, as he will do his work easier and with more determination. This is especially true of the trotter and road horse. Get him where he trots steady and easy, after his feet are balanced, and do not try to drive him in 2:20 the first week. Wait patiently and find where he likes his head and what kind of check or bit makes him feel comfortable. In nearly every town an observing man sees horses speeded up the streets, over cross waks with their heads stuck up in the air as if they were taking astronomical lessons. Such a method is not the best way to make a good track horse or even a safe roadster, as he has not liberty enough to see his way or what is going on around him. Give the horse a little freedom in harness, treat him kindly and speak to him when he is doing his work. It does not cost anything and it wins his confidence."

THE PARSON EXPLAINS.

He States How Lambert Managed to Stand Four Rounds Before Jackson. CLEVELAND, O., March 7 .- Peter Jackson, the colored pugilist, arrived here Friday morning, accompanied by Jack Ashton, Sam Fitz-patrick and "Parson" Davies. Jackson denied the truth of the report that he came near being knocked out by Gus Lambert at Troy, N. Y., the other night.

"Do you know who Lambert is?" "Parson" Davies, who acts as Jackson's backer, asked.
"Why, he's a professional wrestler and weighs 240 pounds. He had trained two weeks because up for two hours.

"Our train was shunted on a side track," continued Mr. Day, "and we were thus enabled to would stand up before Jackson for four rounds." Lambert wanted the money and he got it. He did not stand up, but he wasn't knocked out. did not stand up, but he wasn't knocked out. In the first place he wouldn't agree to anybody but a Troy saloon keeper for referee, and after he had his own way in that he insisted on having eight-ounce gloves. Well, what could you expect anybody to do with pillows on his hands? Why, you might stand up before Jackson or Sullivan or anyone else for a dozen rounds with such gloves on. There would be no possibility of knocking a man out with such things. When time was called Lambert rushed right in and grabbed Peter round the wast and tried to throw him down, Jackson didn't go in for a rough and tumble scrap. He obeyed the rules and called for a foul. But Lambert's friend, the referee, refused to allow it and the same tactics were repeated over and over again. In fact, all that Lambert did was to run around the stage, trying to keep away from Jackson, and when he failed in that he would duck his head, rush in and catch Peter around the walst. That was all there was to it."

A PARK ALREADY ENGAGED.

Movement Toward Securing a Brother hood Tenm for St. Louis. Sr. Louis, March 7 .- The first real move t ward placing a Brotherhood club in St. Louis was made to-day, when Al Spink, editor of the Sporting News, closed a five-year lease for Amateur Park. He admits that he is at work general opinion seemed to be that it is not at all an attractive one. League admirers, however, that Mr. George Munson, who is looking after claim that when it is put into operation it will St. Louis Brotherhood interests at Chicago, has be quite successful. There was some surprise already closed a contract by which the Chicago Brotherhood club is to play here from March 30 to April 17. During its stay here it will play games with visiting Brotherhood clubs.

Amateur Park is a fine plot of ground in the southwestern part of the city, and is reached by cable and electric railways. Ten thousand dollars are to be expended in preparing it for baseball purposes. It is believed that the move is simply preliminary to the placing of a Brotherhood club in St. Louis permanently.

Allen Foster, an old volunteer soldier, has sued McKeesport for bounty money. Butler Republicans are hustling for nominations. A crazy prisoner attempts to burn himself and the jail at Massillon. The news from other points in three States is complete and interesting.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] Mckeesport, March 7 .- Allen Foster vesterday entered suit against this borough to recover $400 bounty money due him for enlisting in the war of the Rebellion. Foster states that he served through the war as a volunteer in Company E, Fourteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania, California, He first enlisted on August 17, 1861, and was discharged December, 1863. He re-enlisted for three years during the war, to be accredited the borough of McKeesport on condition of receiving bounty money, then offered to vetans for re-enlistment. He demanded his bounts noney at the close of the war, but was refused.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

Youthful Mansfield Couple Elope to Greensburg and Are Married.

He brings suit under the act of May 8, 1889, which provides that they shall be allowed in-terest on the money.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 MANSFIELD, March 7.-The facts in a runway marriage have just leaked out. L. W. Kearns is an office boy in the home office of the Pennsylvania Lead Company. He is four months less than 19 years of age, but is steady and industrious. For nearly two years, young Kearns, whose father has been a Mansfield orough Councilman for 15 years, and in comfortable circumstances, has been paying un-flagging attention to Miss Kitty Evans, a pretty brunette, of about the young man's age. She is a daughter of George Evans, a brakeman on the Pittsburg, Chartiers and Youghiogheny Railroad, Railroad.

On Wednesday, two weeks ago, young Kearns secured permission for a day's absence from the office. He went atonce to Pittsburg, where he met Miss Evans, who was accompanied by her mother. They went to Greensburg, where a license was secured by the combined efforts of the trio, and the happy couple became Mr. and Mrs. Kearns. The pair have rented a house in East Mansfield, and gone to house keeping in a business like way.

This is the third runaway marriage that has been effected by parties living in Mansfield Valley, since September, 1889. One pair went to Jamestown, N. Y.; the second to Olean, N. Y., and the last to Greensburg. , and the last to Greensburg.

Cunningham, James Stephenson, Isaac H. Christle, J. C. Kiskaddon, S. W. McCullough, Charles F. Smith, R. S. Hindman, A. D. Wier, Frederick Ebert and S. T. Marshall. The increase in the salary attached to the latter office accounts for the number of candidates.

ENVELOPED IN FLAMES.

Young Woman's Clothing Catches Fire and She is Literally Roasted.

PERCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH A LIMA, O., March 7.-Mrs. E. W. Gloss, about 20 years of age, living near Van Wert, was nearly roasted alive to-day. She was seated in front of the stove, when her dress caught fire, front of the stove, when her dress caught fire, and in an instant was a sheet of flame. After trying in vain to extinguish the flames, she frantically ran from the house to a neighbor, where she was overcome and sank almost lifeless to the ground. After the fire was extinguished, the burned clothing was removed and with it came great pieces of charred flesh. It is feared death will ensue, and thus leave her two small children motherless.

TOO MUCH PEACH BRANDY

And Too Little Food Causes the Sudden Death of an Ohio Physician. "SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH 1 MASSILLON, March 7 .- A postmortem held to-day on the body of Dr. W. C. Putman, the Justus physician, developed the fact that he died from cerebral apoplexy. It was de-veloped at the postmortem that he drank ten and one-half quarts of peach brandy from Monday until Thursday, and ate nothing all The entire body turned black as coal directly after death, and blood gushed from the mouth and nostrils in streams.

KAMPF PAYS THE PENALTY.

He is Hanged for the Brutal Murder of His

Two Children. CHARLESTON, March 7.-Felix Kampf was hanged here to-day for the murder of his two children, October 4, 1889. This is the first legal hanging in the State since 1858. There was quite a crowd of people present to see the exe cution. It took place in the court house yard in full view of the public. The execution was perfect and Knupf died without a struggle.

The floor of the scaffold gave way in about ten minutes after the drop, precipitating several people to the ground, slightly injuring two persons.

Guffy & Murphy have won their suit against E. M. Hukill, involving the David Wise farm, claimed by both. Hukill has producing wells in this tract, and will appeal the case.

Interest in developments in the Pleasants county field is at a high pitch. The wells are all stayers, and few dry holes have been struck. The Two Brothers' Oil Company's well, located on Brother's Island No. 3, opposite New Belmont, will be drilled in to-morrow. Should oil be struck it will extend developments nearly a mile northwesterly from Eureka. Several new rigs will be put up. Charles W. Sterling, now in the Ohio penitentiary, is on record as having eight wives. He would marry one before the honeymoon with another was a week old. After securing any spare cash he would then leave for a new field.

WEDDINGS CAME OFTEN. The latter's tale of woe was published in the Chicago papers, but Mrs. Sterling No. 3 knew nothing about what had occurred in Minneapolis and Milwaukee. The Distric Court records in Minneapolis show that or November 8, 1888, a marriage license was issued to Charles W. Sterling and Frances M. Roach, and on January 21 following a license was issued to Charles Sterling and Emma Jean Mars.

Miss Roach was a pretty brunette, abou 20 years of age, and first met Sterling at the hotel at which she was employed. They were married four days after the license was issued at the parsonage of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church by Rev. George W. Miller.

The honeymoon bad not continued a week when Sterling met and "mashed" a sprightly widow, Mrs. Emma Jean Mars whom he married at the home of Mr. Fotsom, a well known resident of East Minne apolis, on the evening of January 21, the ceremony being performed by Rev. R. N. McKaig, of the Hennepin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. PAID WITH A BOGUS CHECK. The reverend gentleman will always remember that wedding. When the nuptial knot was tied the groom shook the hand of the divine in a truly cordial manner, and UNIONTOWN, March 7.-After being out about 12 hours, the jury in the Abrams-Powell homicide case, returned a verdict of not guilty after thanking him handed him a check at 11:30 to-day. The verdict was a great sur-prise to everybody, it being supposed that the verdict would be at least voluntary manslaugh-$20 on the People's Bank. The minister atterward found that Sterling never had a penny to his credit in that bank.

On February 5, just two weeks after this wedding, Sterling deserted this wife. She reported her desertion to the police, but requested that the facts be kept a secret. This was done. Sterling had taken $5 from her -all the money she had-and she was left penniless. After he had been gone several days he wrote to his wife that he had been called away suddenly and expected to join again. He told her where she find her trunk.

About this time the abandoned wife No. 1 (nee Roach), in Minneapolis, also re ceived a tender missive from the actor. He apologized for his sudden departure and excused his conduct by saving that Manager Bock, of the Ponce Opera House, with who he had been associated, intended to "make trouble." But it is not known that he ever returned to them. Wife No. 1 and wife No. 2 have both lived in Minneapolis during the past year.

He writes to friends in this city denying that he eloped with Miss Brown, or that he had any-thing to do with her disappearance. He says he was called away on professional business and will be home Saturday. HIS LAST CONQUEST. After going to Chicago Sterling appeared as 'Squire Arden in "My Geraldine,' which was being played at the Bon Ton Theater. He was a guest at the Ogden House and there he met and won Miss Helen Walter, an attractive blonde. They were married about February 22, and a few days afterward there was another case of de-

What occurred after Sterling left Chicago is not known any more than that he kept up the marrying business until he got into the Ohio pententiary. He is about 40 years of age, good looking, particular about his dress and a pleasing conversationalist.

VIEWING LOCAL MILLS.

Sastern Railroad Men Visit Homestend and

Braddock. A large number of men connected with the mechanical department of Eastern railroads arrived in the city yesterday morning, and spent the day in the Homestead and Braddock mills as the guests of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. The company has recently gone into the manufacture of fire box iron for locomotives, and they desired to show the railroad men how it was made.

A banquet was served to the party at the hotel in Munhall, and they were dined at the Duquesne Club in the evening. The party was in charge of Chairman Abbott and Vice Chairman Curry.

The railroad men returned to New York last evening. They thought Pittsburg was a great city, and they had seen processes of making iron and steel that they had never witnessed before anywhere. In the party were F. S. Gannon, General Superintendent of the B. & O. lines east of Philadelphia; R. C. Blackall, of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company; J. W.
