stomach, so something warming was sent for, in this way:

five Cent Worth of Gemmagich ginger. Jamaica ginger was the article desired. A flax-seed poultice is considered one of the best remedies in the world for certain ailments, but there are different forms in which it is prepared. The writer of the fol-lowing knew exactly what was wanted: Plese give the bearer the hole flax-seed.

The next gem that came to light from the box was one written on a small piece of rather peculiar fine-lined note paper. The writer thought so well of it that he signed his name, which will not be given here, but the order itself was as as follows: 5 Cent Worth Pulvedriced Lickrich Rute.

Pulverized licorice root was desired, but the druggist admits he had quite a time of it translating the first word.

HARD TO RECOGNIZE.

Now comes one written on a scrap of a eigar dealer's license. The author wanted a medicine known to everybody, but it is doubtful if everybody will recognize it as it written:

Bottle of Magneschie to fisig.

The next writer, evidently another painter, wanted benzine, but as he wrote "ben-sian," the druggist was cornered tor some men's working pants; $1 29 buys men's good time or until he smelled of the can sent with the order.

A beauty is now picked out. It is written on a piece of wall paper, and the author was seemingly so tickled over the produc-tion that he has ornamented the border with $7 53 buys an all-wool fashionable dress odd little designs, to show that he was equally original in another art. This is what he sent:

Then came one that the druggist thinks it

Then came one that the druggist thinks it it a shame to leave unframed. The writing is class stylish boy's suit, age 13 to 19 years. Thousands of other bargains, that give me 3 white pills for 5 cts to fissig.

Inasmuch as there are any number of different varieties of pills of that description. the druggist was of the opinion that the only way left for him to do was to send samples of the different kinds, and let the sick person test them uptil suited.

The next one wanted chlorate of lime. That was the reason the order is written "Glory Lym."

Then comes a request for pulverized rhubarb. It was thought that pulverized could not be exaggerated more than the licorice-chasers residing out of the city. Do not not be exaggerated more than the licorice-root patron had done, but the following sale closes. proves the contrary:

polbrize Ruburb.

AS HE WANTED IT. The next is on tissue paper, and the author, wanting a Seidlitz powder, writes it: the next 20 days our complete line of decora-One Setlers powder.

Now a beautiful Christmas card is shown, on which is inscribed in a running hand that insists on making compound words of s a bona fide sale. everything:

five 5 Ammonia in the bottle 3 senswerth roaskshellsvalt. The last line, translated into intelligible English, would road: "Three cents' worth of Rochelle salts." The next is an order written on a business card. The writer needed something to brace wear and gloves. This means a saving of im up, so he sent for a bottle of Godfrey's 25 to 75 per cent on prices elsewhere.

Cordial, which is written evidently to show the author's contempt for all regular forms of spelling: "Godfield's Corchill." Now we have a heavy piece of cardboard, on which is written:

5 cents' worth of Balsam of Furh.

The first word of the next is untranslata-ble. It will be left to the imagination. Any one having spare time might endeavor solve the anagram. The second word is also unique, but is within comprehension. The communication was gotten up as follows:

cl0 Tharmoyak. cl0 Boracks.

The flext customer sent in a phonetic pecimen that almost drove the pill-pounder $21 00 from Pittsburg, at "Breck's Ticket Office," 642 Smithfield street, to drink. It contained but one word, "Ac-

A Fine Piano.

One of the finest Krapich & Bach upright pianos that ever came to Pittsburg, has just been delivered to Mr. August Haller, of Haller, Beck & Co., of the West Eud. This piano was especially selected at the factory for Mr. Haller, and it is certainly a beauty. The case is a beautiful rosewood, richly carved, and the tone is superb. Mr. Haller, after examining most of the leading pianos wisely decided upon the Kranich & Bach. It was furnished by Lechner & Shoenberger, 69 Fifth avenue.

Park They stated that they are willing that the nterest of Captain Grav in the firm shall be letermined either by a sale of the said interest under the order and direction of the Court, or proceedings in the Common Pleas Court under the act of June 2, 1874. AMICABLY SETTLED.

Couple of Libel Suits Attended to Out of Court.

The suits for criminal libel against Dr. R. H. Gilliford and George R. Bothwell, both of Alleghenv, brought by C. W. Robison, member of the State Legislature from Allegheny, were amicably settled and discontinued yesterday, the defendants paying the osts.

The suits grew out of the action of Mr. Robison in introducing two bills in the House relating to the classification of cities and making addresses on them. The de-fendants were alleged to have published an open letter in which Mr. Robison's motives were questioned in his action.

Put Out of the House. A petition for divorce was filed yesterday by Christina Neely against her husband, Daniel N. Neely. The petitioner says they were married on December 6, 1860, and lived together until March 18 of this year, when she alleges her husband put her ou of the house and heaped other indignities upon her. She asks for an absolute divorce and alimony.

Wants to Wind Up Its Affairs. A petition was filed yesterday for the dissolution of the Anchor Slate Company, doing business in this city since 1882, with works in Harford county, Md. The petition avers that the company has no debts and desires to wind up its affairs. It is signed by E. M. Aiken, President, and W. S. Daily, Secretary.

> Out of the Workhouse. Charles B. Horner, alias Hollinger, was brought into court yesterday from the workhouse on a writ of habeas corpus. He had been committed there on the 13th inst., on a charge of disorderly conduct, by Mayor Pearson. The offense alleged was denied, and the prisoner was discharged.

Wants One More Show. A duplicate petition was filed by J. E. Fi'e yesterday, in his suit for divorce against his wife, Lillian M. Fife. The original petition, which alleges desertion, was filed on November 30, 1889, and has since become mislaid or lost.

Score Another to the Glue Company. A. & J. Groetzinger yesterday entered suit against the William A. Baeder Glue Company for $4,640 on promissory notes.
