Continued from First Page. No. 104 Frankstown avenue. He has for many years been keeping a saloon and restaurant, and lately a cigar store. Joseph McKee, No. 6348 Station street, prior to 1880, kept a licensed place for three years. The house which he occupies contained a bar for 45 years. Mr. McKee used to keep what is now the First Avenue Hotel and prior to that operated a saloon in the house now kept by the Eayley brothers. He is a man beyond middle are, but well preserved. His white mustach and hair finely set off his fresh complexion. Thomas M. Marshail made his only appear-ance in License Court for John A. McKelvey, who applied for the new building at the coroor of Station street and Frankstown avenue. Mr. Marshall said: "I do not appear strictly as coursed but os cert theout."

Marshall said: "I do not appear strictly as counsel, but as next friend."

"I don't know that we understand that rela-tionship," said Judge Ewing, "Mr. McKelvey is of age." After a few questions as to the dimensions of the property, Judge Ewing asked:

"Yes, str: I do." "Mr. McKelvey," continued the Judge, "is entirely competent, if he will just look after it himself; but I am somewhat surprised." Mr. McKelvey is well known in this city. He formerly kept one of the most popular livery stables in Pittsburg. Recently he has been an auctioneer, presiding at several most notable sales. He is a lover of fast horses, and is often seen on the driving thoroughfares in the East hoff. Christian Haus applies for a house at the foot of Brack Horse hill, No. 5508 Penn avenue. He is a neat old German, with a well-kept gray mustache and a high, old-fashioned collat. He used to keep a saloon and restaurant, and dur-ing the past year has furnished meals whenever anybody called. He was cut off by Judge White. He owns his own house. In 1887 he held a $500 license and sold on Sunday for a short time only. During the past year he had received, for family use, a case of beer only ouce in three or four weeks.

BEN LEECH AN APPLICANT.

Benjamin F. Leech applies for No. 4828 Penn avenue, at the corner of Fitch street. He has been, for two years, connected with the police bureau, being operator in the Inspector's office, and before that was, for many years, employed by Parke Brothers. Until 1888 the house for which he applies was kept by Mrs. Jane Fallon, who owns the property. Mr. Leech has rented the entire house. For two years the barroom has been closed. Mr. Leech has an absolute lease on the premises. He intends to keep a rostaurant. At present there is no place of that kind between the Forks of the Road and East liberty.

Louis List, No. 3040 Penn avenue, who has been bowled out for two successive years, again comes up hopeful. He has been keeping boarders and has used his baroom for the storing of flowers over winter. Three years ago he did business on a $100 license.

Joseph Motzel, a short, dark man, applies for No. 6310 Penn avenue. He has been twice re-pulsed in his assaults on the Brooks law. He has sought refuge from the storms of an ad-has sought refuge from the storms of an ad-verse world by keeping a grocery store. "Why," asked Judge Ewing, "did you take out a United States license on August 27, 1889?" 'I thought I have to get a license because I buy a barrel of whisky for myself." He is just around the corner from the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church. M. J. Reiber applies for the Central Hotel, on Railroad street opposite the stockyards. He had a licensed har until 1888. Mrs. Wilhelmina C. Schoeller, No. 6379 Penn avenue, is a very large woman, in black, who keeps a boarding house. She kept a licensed house for 17 years. She said that she never sold on Sunday, but went to church. EPON BOLLEPS TO INFUE her husband. J. A. Emory appeared for W. A. William Vau Buren, proprietor of the East End Hotel, at the corner of Penn aucnue and Putnam street, holds the only license granted by Judge White in the Twenty-first Ward. He was not questioned. Theodre Weiss, corner of Larimer avenue and Everett street, made a strong appeal for a license in his neighborhood. He said: "We cau't get nothing out there—not even a drink of water. Business has been decreased out there because we have no license." "Do you drink yourself?" asked Judge Ewing. Avery to take out letters of administration to distribute $67,228 23, a balance belonging to the estate of J. Heron Foster left undistributed Ewing. Mr. Foster is now con-testing in Philadelphia the will of his mother, Mrs. Julia Foster, who left her estate to her daughters, cutting off her son. He contended that if the will contest in Philadelphia is de-termined in his favor he will be entitled to a share of the money to be distributed and objects to his sister as administratrix. Attorneys Williams and Emory, of Phila-delphia, argued in behalf of Mrs. Avery. The case was concluded by Register Conner decid-ing to grant the letters to Mrs. Avery, a bond to be given by her in double the amount in-volved.

"No, sir, except when I get sick; then I get a subscription from the doctor."
"Mr. Christy-Did you sell in 1888?
"Mr. Weiss-No, sir. I think you came out there and tried to get my wife to sell you some drink, and you didn't get it.
Amid the langther of all persons, Mr. Christy declared that he was not the man.
The Weiss is a good talker, and made even the Judges laugh by the answers which he gave them.
The only applicant from the Twenty-second ward is Michael Joyce, who wishes to keep a saloon in his property at No. 33 Forward avenue, near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, He built the house for a tavern, but has been refused license during the last two years.
Major Frank Blessing, No. 2290 Second avenue, was the first from the Twenty-third ward, He was licensed in 1888. Last year Judge White made a prohibitory district of that ward, and it consequently abounds with "speakeasies." The Major is on the list, but he swore that he had sold no intoxicating drink during the past year.

The jury was out but a short time and returned with a verdict for the defendant. of the Second avenue electric line. Mr. Borlin, Sr., kept a licensed house at McKeesport, which he transferred to McKay, and before that, for many years, kept a hotel in Greens-burg. The petition does not give the number of their house and Judge Ewing says that it must be amended. John Donlon, Acorn street, is a little, old Irishman, who declares a license house to be "very much necessary" in his locality. Nicholas Delahanty, No. 1598 Second avenue, used to be on the police force. His wife has been keeping a grocery store and selling soft drinks.

This led Judge Ewing to ask: "Is there room for you and Mr. Beacom both?" Mr. Branthover did not think there was. Court took a recess for one hour.

Nicholas Braudenstein, at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Rowan street, was the first man called after dinner. He is the owner of the house for which he asks a license, and for many years prior to 1888 was in the tavern business. He kept a sa-Joon in Pittsburg for three years. William Dersam would like to run a saloon at No. 306 Frankstown avenue, and a restaurant along with it. He had a licensed house at that place in 1886 and 1887. He was refused a year ago, and has been working for the Keystone Brewing Company. Meanwhile his wife ran a little eigar store and, it is said, sold beer on the quiet. He would not deny it. "You are on our list," said Judge Ewing, "in
