plause Miss Tillie Mackintosh appeared in a dress of the Argyle tartan, and sang that sweet old ballad, "Jack o' Hazeldean," very sweetly. Then came the event of the evening, in the dancing of the "Hieland Fling" by Ethel Hamilton, daughter of William Hamilton, Superintendent of the parks. The little sprite was arrayed in a royal Stuart tartan, and a Scottish topaz gleamed upon her headdress, while an eagle's pinion, stuck aslant, gave a jaunty aspect to her costume. The piper marched out and commenced a drone, but the wee maid was puz-zled to catch the time. Finally the piper's fingers commenced to fly, and the historic fling was heard. The little tect commenced to fly, and the intricate figures were reeled off with wonderful agility. The roar of applause that greeted Ethel showed that the dancing was heartily appreciated.

The Alpine Quartet then sang "Annie Laurie," and the stillness of the andience showed that each was thinking of an "Annie Laurie," perchance in Caledonia. Miss Rutledge sang "We'd Better Bide a Wee," and Mr. William Holmes sang that fingers.

lent effect. Prof. Byron King recited twice, and the Alpine Quartet closed the performance. Mr. D. S. Thompson was to have sung the "Battle of Stirling," but was ill and not present. The floor was then cleared and dancing began with a grand march, in which very intricate figures blended the costumes of those present in an effective manner. Then there was a Strathspey and reel; then came that riotous national dance Paddy O'Rafferty. Further on came "Flowers o' Edinboro," stately old Sir Roger De Coverley, borrowed from the seventeenth cen Britons, "Home, Sweet Home" waltz, and "Auld Lang Syne" closing an evening of unalloyed pleasure.

SHE DIDN'T LEAVE MUCH.

Androw Jonas, who lives out the Brownsville road, near the Methodist cemetery, told a funny story to Sergeant McQuaide, at the Twenty-eighth ward station house, last night. Mr. Jonas spoke broken English. He was in a predicament, and wanted the Sergeant to give him some advice. He said when he went home from work at 6 o'clock he found his house locked up, the furniture all gone, his wife and three children were missing, a cow, half a ton of hay and a lot of chickens removed.

As moving day is here, the thought struck the Sergeant that probably the man's wife had moved, and he ventured the suggestion to the distressed contleman. "There's no doubt about that," replied the latter. Mr. Jonas seemed very well satisfied with the departure of his wife it she had only left him something beside his clothes, and he could only look at them with a wishful eye through securely fastened windows, as he did not even possess a key with which to open the doors.

Mr. Jonas must have regarded the matter as rather humorous, as a complacent smile rested upon his face during the whole time he told his story, and when he left he dehe told his story, and when he left he de-clared he did not care to see his wife, but he would like to have a key for the house. ordinance already passed by Councils.

A general discussion followed, and the ordinance now hanging fire in Select Councils was cut up. Chairman Ammon charged certain people on the committee with being under one man's thumb. This was warmly resented and a war of words followed.

Giassblower Gets Incarcerated in Fight With a Chinaman.

John Smith, a glassblower who lives at Sawmill Run, and Yee Wall, a Chinaman who has a laundry at No. 207 Grant street, were arrested by Lieutenant Lewis last evening at the corner of Washington and Fountain streets, and lodged in the Central Station on a charge of disorderly conduct. It is alleged by the officer that the Chinaman was passing the corner when Smith, who was in a drunken condition, undertook to pull the Chinaman's pigtail off. This angered Yee Wall, and he knocked Smith down, and while they were wrestling on the ground the Chinaman bit a piece out of Smith's ear, and also chewed one of his fingers. At the Central Station Yee Wall gave bail for a hearing this morning. . INSPECTING THE COKE ROADS.

Freight Agent J. T. R. MCRAY. Under the care of General Superintendent Holbrook, of the Lake Erie, they had a pleasant day and dined at McKeesport in the evening. With the party was General Agent George E. McCague, of the Lake Shore in this city, and Train Master Yohe, of the Lake Frie of the Lake Eric.

and she wanted him to take back the gold watch. He refused, but she insisted, and the watch passed into the hands of an accommodating "uncle." Dr. Winternitz soon saw how the wind was blowing, and sent his daughter to his friend, Dr. Monk, at 78 Cedar avenue, Allegheny. Bieber was then left in New York by his "lonely." He was despondent. He had no money, and his love was 500 miles away. At last he met Mrs. Bartell, whose home was in Prussia, near the birthplace of Bieber. She was going home, and wanted the young man to go with her. He finally agreed, and she bought him some ## clothes and gave him $25. That was what he had tooked for. Instead of returning to the Fatherland, he bought a ticket for Pittsburg, and arrived here three weeks ago. He hunted for his promised bride, and finally met her at Twelfth street and Penn avenue. She was with Mrs. Dr. Monk, and nothing further than a call could be exchanged. Bieber followed the ladies to their home, and was rewarded with a kiss from his sweetheart-but alas! it was only one thrown while the doctor's wife was not watching. He then secured work at Edmundson & Perrine's furniture store, on Smithfield street. He got a boarding house at Darragh's, 60 James street, Allegheny, near ragh's, 60 James street, Allegheny, hear where his fiancee was living. Every even-ing, as he went home, Leopoldine watched for him from an upper window, and wafted a kiss to him. He could see the people in the lower part of the house, and was afraid to return it. At last, though, he did so, and the doctor saw it.

THE TELLTALE TELEGRAPH.

That evening a telegram clicked over the wires to Dr. Winternitz, that Bieber was in town. That was Saturday evening. On Monday the Pittsburg police authorities were asked by Detective Richard Brady, of the Thirty-fourth New York precinct, to arrest Julius Bieber on a charge of larceny. Detective Fitzgerald called at Darragh's house that evening and asked for Bieber, knowing that he was in the house at the time. Darragh recognized the detective and at once warned Bieber, who made him-self scarce. The detective started on a hunt, and, after chasing for almost a week, found the man. In the meantime a large number of photographs of Bieber had been sent on from New York, and through them he was recognized yesterday while eating lunch in Carr's restaurant. He was taken to Central station and locked up. The New York officers were notified, and said they would be here to-day to take him to New York. Bieber denies that he stole anything, and says it is but a scheme to get him away from Miss Winternitz. He says he has no fears about going back to New York, and can answer all charges. Inspector McAleese said last night that he was satisfied the young man was not guilty. He believes it is a job put up by Dr. Winternitz to have the young Prussian put out of the way.

STABBED AN OFFICER.

Policeman McDonough, of Allegheny, Receives Two Ugly Cuts in the Back.

James Goudy lives with his parents, who keep a dairy out the New Brighton road. The young man loaded up last evening with bad whisky and, going home, made life very disagreeable for his parents. Officers Mc-

Donough and Connelly, of the Allegheny force, were sent for to arrest him, The young man heard of it, and arming himself with an old saber, he awaited their coming. McDonough arrived first and the boy attacked him. McDonough was stabbed twice in the back, but the cuts, though painful, are not considered serious. Officer Connelly soon appeared on the scene, and with his mace clubbed Goudy into submission. The young fellow was taken to the Central station, where the bruises about his head were dressed. The Acc of Clubs.

ONE DANGER OF AMBITION.

Reports of the doings of the cyclone in Louisville and other Western cities have stirred up a feeling in this city against the erection of very high buildings. It is said that the law prevents builders from building so high that a structure in falling would reach the opposite side of a street, and Pittsburg objectors point to the destruction of the Willey building last winter, which, in its fall, crushed all the structures adjacent. It is supposed that very tall buildings would be more likely to tumble during a cyclone than those of uniform height, as the lofty structures not only catch more wind but lack the bracing that their shorter neighbors have. WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING.

Some Who Travel, Some Who Do Not, and Others Who Talk.

-Captain Joseph Steele, of Cramp & Sons, the ship builders, returned to Philadelphia last evening. The Captain slyly remarked that possibly the dynamics shells from the new boat, Vesuvius, turned back the Gulf stream from the Delaware, this dammed up the Gulf of Mexico and the Mississippi, causing the recent floods in the Ohio Valley.

Under the rules of the association they cannot make any overtures to the firm, and must wait until they are sent for. There were no changes in the situation yesterday. Everything was quiet around the mill. The strikers are keeping away from the plant. The two crews in the yards have been compelled to divide the time, so that each crew makes but half time.
