INTERESTING FIVE-MINUTE TALK.

Rev. Dr. Townsend Speaks on the Subject of the Cyclone God.

OTHER SERMONS OF LOCAL PREACHERS Rev. W. F. Oldham, paster of the Butler Street M. E. Church, as is his usual custom, gave yesterday morning a very interesting | Him bodily, mocking Him and subjecting five-minute talk to the children. The sub- Him to many in dignities, and at length cruject of this little sermon was "A Good Conscience," and while it was given especially for the children, it was appreciated by the older people. He closed his sermon to the little ones by saying: "The softest pillow under a dying head is a good conscience." The regular sermon of the morning was founded upon the three words: "Grace, Mercy and Peace," from the First Epistle to Timothy. During the discourse Mr. Oldham said: "Grace is a greatly misunderstood word. Does it only mean favor? No, more than that. Let me give an example: flow from a genuine faith in the Lord and You hear of a man who is in great trouble and affliction, sick and suffering, perhaps; the Word. you go to him and are surprised to find in him a man who has misused, insulted and ill-treated you and yours. Nevertheless, you extend a helping hand,

"Do we expect to go to heaven because we have tried to be good—have been regularly in our news, and have kept the commandments? Let me repeat the commandments: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, and with all thy strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." How many of us have kept them? None. No; we are not saved by regular churchgoing, nor by our own goodness, but by grace. God comes to us and gives us sulvaion, and says go on with your praying, and Mercy is grace in operation. From the grace of God a million mercies been extended to us. Ministering angels surround and protect us all through life. In many of your homes I have noticed the picture, 'Mercy at the Wicket Gate.' It would mean more to me if it represented mercy waiting at the gate of a human

This is grace, and this is what God has exercised toward us all our lives. Many of us have misused and ill-treated Him, still He Continuing, Mr. Oldham said: "Mercy tires, but grace never tires. There is a quiet gladness about peace. Unless you receive ating the work of the just. grace and mercy, you cannot have peace. orrow and trouble around me daily, I say surely this is a hard world, and just as I put my car to a seashell and hear the low murmuring of the distant ocean, so I put my ear beart has the peace of God within. REPENTANCE AND HELL. Father Sheedy Takes No Stock in the Secand Probation Theory. Rev. Father Sheedy, paster of St. Mary discussed in the East, and said: death for repentance. This theory of second probation new broached finds neground either in Scripture or in reason. The very word probation is limited in its meaning, and since God has expressly declared that the present li e is the time of salvation, it affords no hope of a probation beyond the grave. The doctrine is therefore unscriptural. Innumerable instances are furnished in the Scripture which tend to show that probation is limited as to time, as in the case of the con-ersation between Lazarus and Dives, the parable of the ten virgins and the guest at the wedding feast without the except from criminals themselves, who always have a poor opinion of the law. The second objection is that neither is this idea. opposed to God's goodness or clemency. We must not forget that God has other attributes besides that of mercy. God is indeed merciful, but forces his mercy on no one. He leaves man free. If man does not accept God's mercy, he can blame not God, but "God's mercy, though infinite in itself, is finite in its application. The measure of its communication depends upon the capacity of the recipient. In the same way the sun is capable of lighting up the rooms in a large building; if we close the windows we can-not blame the sun. Lastly, the best answer is the reprobate would find himself very unhappy in heaven. The sensual man perceiveth not the things which are of the spirit of God. He would therefore find the atmosphere of heaven uncongenial to him, as here on earth the man of deprayed habits finds himself uncomfortable in the society of

Subject of Rev. Dr. Townsend's Topic of the Day for Yesterday. Rev. Dr. J. G. Townsend, of the Unitarian Church, Mellon building, yesterday chose for his "topic of the day" the subject, "The Cyclone God," during the course of his remarks saying: "Was God in the evelone which desolated Louisville? Some say there is malevolence, cruelty, in the ties than can be obtained elsewhere. Any universe, and prefer to believe in no God rather than a bad one. But notice, there are many things undoable. Two and two cannot make five, even by infinite power. An infant's power could make an oak tree in a minute as easily as Almighty power. It is not doable. There is no malevolence in the earthquake. We live on a cooling earth, and cooling, it must crack. If the earth becomes habitable it must cool off. But could not God stop the earthquake? Can God make two and two five? reverently, no; a cooling earth must crack "A cyclone is caused by the meeting of opposing currents of air. Can God prevent the crush? If two trains come together at 50 miles per hour, can God make the collision as harmless as the meeting of two snowflakes? Can God make two and two five? He cannot do the one more than the other. But observe: If it were not for the agitation of the air it would become a putrid ocean, and life be impossible. What incidentally destroys some, gives life to unnumbered millions. God cannot have power without also its companion, danger. But suppose God could interiere. Suppose the water would not drown the child who falls into it, nor fire hurt the baby fingers more than rose leaves. Suppose there were no inviolable order, what then? Why, man never could become an educated being, for the foundation of all education is, that we are in a universe of law.

"Be assured, then, that the cyclone is as ethical as the Sermon on the Mount. God is in the cyclone as much as in the nightingale's song. The universe is ethical, or it could not blossom out into the ethical nature of man. How much is man responsible for a cyclone? Let the weak structures he builds and the destruction of our forests answer.

A MODERN CRUCIFIXION. An External Act Compared With Some of More Recent Times.

Rev. John Whitehead, of the New Church, Isabella and Sandusky streets, Allegheny, preached yesterday morning on the crucifixion. Ele said the crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ was an external act, which represented and showed forth the attitude of those who crucified Him toward the Word, for the Lord was the Word or the Divine Truth. What they had previously done to the Word by perverting it to suit their own purposes, they did at length to cifying Him. Applying these things to the present time, he said: "There is an interior rejection or crucifixion of the Lord with those who are instructed in the divine truth of His word, who therefore know its teachings, but who live a life contrary to them, and who confirm themselves in favor of such evil life by means of false doctrines or ideas. The profession of a be-lief in the Word is not a real belief in it, unless the life be at the same time regulated by its teachings. The profession of a belief in the Lord is not a real belief unless His commandments be obeyed in the life. Mere external worship is of no avail if it does not

"The Lord does not look upon the exter nal gestures of adoration; He does not look upon the profession, but on the heart. He looks to the ends motives and thought which lie behind these gestures, and He sees whether they be genuine or not. External worship which is not sincere and genuine is a mockery, and it is like that of those who put a crown of thorns upon the Lord's head and offered him mock worship. The motives give quality to the deeds of our life. We should see that these are pure; that we act honestly, sincerely and unrightly from principle, then our adoration of the Lord will be genuine."

A CITY ON THE HILL The Church a Light That Cannot be Hidde

A THORN IN THE FLESH. Discourse of Rev. E. P. Cowan, of the Third

Presbyterian Church. Rev. E. P. Cowan, of the Third Presbyterian Church, preached last night from II. Cor. xii., 7, "There was given to me of Mercy Church, preached last night on a thorn in the flesh-the messenger of Satan, "Repentance and Hell." He referred to to buffet me, lest I should be exalted beyond the period of second probation now being measure." He quoted Faul as being physidiscussed in the East, and said:

"Repentance alone can reconcile the power of the Alunighty, which used a weak inner to God, but there is no time after vessel to illustrate the power and glory of workingman would be a capitalist if he the Great Jehovah.

This rule, the preacher said, held good to-day, and none, however weak, could despair good. Afflicted as Paul was he showed the glory of his Maker by his work, and such an exercise of the power of Christianity was within the reach of all of us who took the right way by coming to Christ for the neces-

WATCHING FOR QUAY.

A Visit From the Senator Expected To-Day by Pittsburg Friends. There will be a great flurry in Western Pennsylvania politics to-day, for it is expected that United States Senator M. S. Quay will arrive on the early train this morning from Washington, accompanied by District Attorney Walter Lyon, Arthur Kennedy and one or two others. Senator

Delamater and Chairman Andrews will arrive later in the day, and there will be a gard to future matters. The "Quay Quartet," McKean, Dravo, Lyon and Warmcastle, are to manage mat-ters political in this end of the State, under instructions from Colonel Quay. A few surprises are said to be in store for some who have been hugging the delusion that the Beaver statesman was idle in mind while wooing the tarpon and repulsing the famous

THE CRY OF ANARCH Herr Most Delivers Two More Speeches on His Favorite Hobby.

HE IS AS READY TO DIE AS USUAL

And is Anxious to Tear the Walls of Society Down Noiselessly.

A FREE-AND-EASY DEBATE LAST NIGHT

Herr Johann Most, the anarchist, communist, socialist, revolutionist and any other "ist"-with a probably exception of linguist-delivered two lectures in this city vesterday. One of them was in Imperial Hall, and German, and the other at No. 102 Fourth avenue in English, and an Ajax

Jones style of oratory, The lectures were delivered under the auspices of the Workingmen's Debating Association, of this city. The one in the afternoon drew the largest crowd, and from the expressions of applause rendered in German by the assembled multitude, it was a highly entertaining discourse on the wrongs of everybody and everything. At the evening lecture there were present a better class of citizens. After the lecture there was a free and general discussion on capitalists had money and why shouldn't the workingman hustle to get some of it. In his discourse Mr. Most said:
"We believe in Communism, Socialism, Anarchism and revolutionism. The State can't help us so we must help ourselves. We Communists hate the State. We despise it. We want Communism but no

OWNERS OF EVERYTHING. "Everything in this world belongs to everybody. Abolish capitalism and we abolish misery. Private property is the father of the State and Communism cannot stand without Anarchism. Everybody is under a moral colligation to work, and they are also entitled to reap the fruits of their own labor. We Communists and Acarchists must work together. In so doing we make the work shorter and easier for everyone. Everything would then be in a superfluity. "I am not blood thirsty. I do not want to see the walls of society torn down in a rude manner. I want to see it done nicely and without trouble. I have read history. I know that there is not, nor ever has been, any existing class of persons who would give up the privileges without having been forced to do so. The people who are now oppressing us will never give in until they are forced to do so. If we tried persuasive argument now they would say it's not necessary to discuss the question with you people. Here is the police, the militia, the rifle, the club. When we say revolution, we regard it as a thing inevitable. We are sure the revolution will come and has come. The working people won't stand this pressure torever. When the people get their rights of liberty, equality, etc., they must fight for it. That's revolution. Many years ago the people of this country broke down the idea of black slavery, then they created white slavery. This white slavery must be downed. I fo

NONE TOO LONG. Mr. Most's speech was about as short as some of his ideas. He explained this by saying that he had delivered so many lectures that he was almost prostrated. After he had taken a seat, which, on account the Sunday law, was about the only thing he could take, the audience had a free-and easy flow of soul. One of the staid citizens in the rear of the hall suggested that a flow of beer would be more appropriate, as he sighed of what might have been under the aparchists' rule. One conservative citizen advised those present to save up their money and save up their rocks and they'd saved more money and wasted less. This brought a retort from an old girl in the rear that it would be better to get some money and then talk about what to do with it. This remark evoked hearty applause. Every-body had a crack at the sublect, but before the crowd dispersed a collection was taken up to defray necessary expenses.
