THE GRAYLING A GAME FIGHTER.

How and Where to Secure the Best Bait to Catch the Black Bass.

WATERS TO BE STOCKED WITH FRY

It is a misfortune to anglers that all offorts to rear the grayling in hatcheries have proved abortive. The late Seth Green made the attempt, so have Mr. Mather and other noted and patient fish culturists. The habitat of this fish is principally in the northern part of the southern peninsular of Michigan. Before its true character was understood, and its identification with the European grayling established, it was locally known as the Au Sable, Muskegon, Michigan trout, big-scaled trout, big trout, etc.

It is one of the most beautiful of fishes, finely proportioned, of large size, and clad in a coat of silver scales. As tew fish can compare with it in beauty, so when in fine fettle few can equal it in fighting qualities. Grayling, in Crawford county, Mich., is probably the best point to select from which o diverge to fish the Au Sable river and its tributaries, although numerous other streams in the counties to the north and west are more or less capable of vielding a moderate degree of sport. The Au Sable and its branches, however, may, on the whole, be considered the best territory. The grayling is usually a bottom feeder, and haunts clean sandy pools and slow-running streams, although it is often found in the most rapid When taken in the last it fights more fiercely, and is of a finer delicacy of flavor for the table. It will rise to the fly, but usually it is caught with the magget or minnow. It travels in schools, so that where one is taken the angler is sure of killing several.

Salt Water Fishing.

As the season for salt water fishing promises to be one exceptionally advanced, fish-ermen may look for the early appearance of weakfish. It will not be a matter of surprise if in May some fine catches are reorded. Reports have been received fro Chincotengue of the appearance of the fish at this early date in the bays of the eastern shore of Virginia. From Town-send's Inlet, New Jersey, information is given that, in addition to the flounders, rock ass and sturgeon have arrived, while one drumfish has already been reported caught. In view of the possibilities for the early coming of weakfish, which seem to successfully withstand the polluted waters of the bay, a list of localities within easy reach

The Gamey Kingfish.

Salt-water fishermen, who will begin operations early in May, are advised to be on the alert for kinglish. Last year this sort was uncommonly plentiful, and it is a permissible inference that the present sea-son will prove equally good. None, not even the striped bass, is for its size a keener and more hardy fighter. Taken with a bass rod eight or ten feet long, with a multiplying reel of sufficient size to carry from 400 to 600 feet of line, to sustain its long, deep run of 200 feet or more before it breaks, the amateur who has not had experience of its powers will at the end of the contest confess that its name has been well chosen. In these days the kingfish is rarely taken of a weight to exceed three pounds, and that is a rare maximum, but at that limit or even less it exhibits as much wigor and vitality as a striped bass of twice

Best Bait for Bass.

Probably the best bait for black bass is the dosson, the larve of dragon fly. Mr.

A. C. Collins, whose experience is very extended, finds the best way to secure this bait the close of summer.

Last year, however, there was a striking is to take an iron barrrel hoop, to which a exception. Up to the 23d of November the net of mosquito netting is attached. He weights were similar to those of previous selects some place in a brook where the shores are fringed with alders, and, wading takes this ashore, dumps the accumula-tion, and scatters it about. The bugs will immediately begin to crawl out, when they are placed in a jar or box, in which are some of the decayed leaves from the stream. Thus provided they will live sev-eval days without water, Mr. Collins considers the dobson a most taking lure for black bass, it being within his experience while fishing with an expert fisherman who was using minnows and he the bug to kill three fish to the other's one.

Treat Streams in Lycoming.

Williamsport makes a good starting place for the trout streams of Lycoming county. It is there where Lycoming creek enters the Busquehanna, and along the tortuous course of this creek winds the Northern Central Railroad. Entering this creek are a dozen excellent trout streams, and nearly every station you may feel disposed to get off at is right at or near the mouth of one of these streams. Cogan Valley is the first station the other side of Williamsport, and then come Trout Run, Ralston and Roaring performance commenced, and between the Branch, all of which stations offer great inducements to the tront angler to tarry Among the streams which will give a good day's sport are Pleasant Stream, Trout Run, Bearing Brook and Rock Run.

Fishing Notes From Various Sections. FISHING clubs all over the State are commencing operations.

A NUMBER of Philadelphians have made high records in Florida as tarpon catchers. AT Bristol, Conn., there are 100 fishermen to every trout, while at Terryville the fishing is

State. No record is given that equals it for the rapid growth of trout, which reach three and one-half pounds at the age of 2 years. THE shad season has opened briskly at Lyme. Conn., the season being earlier than usual, and

FISHING is very poor at Green Spring, Par; trout is small and scarce at Landesburg, while at Newburg the streams have been fished and OCEAN POND, on the Georgia Southern and lorida, in Echols county, is becoming noted as a fishing resort. It is said that almost any kind of an angler can take m ore fish there in a day than be can carry. Parties from Macon, Atlanta, Americans are frequent visitors.

THE beautiful ponds of Aroostook county, Me., are to be stocked with fish fry. An organization known as the Squaw Pan Fish and Game Association has been formed to look after the fry. If the venture proves successful all the other lakes in the State will be simi-larly granted. arly treated.

W. D. MARKS, superintendent, has prepared a list of the streams that have been stocked with brook trout by the Mighigan Fish Commission and will be open to anglers May I. It shows that the clear water streams of nearly every county in the State have been stocked with this most delicious and gamey fish, in all several hundred streams.

LIFE IN THE AIR.

Results of Investigation Regarding Aerial Micro-Organisms.

Newcastle, Eng., Chronicle.] Micro-organisms are dust-like particles capable of cultivation or reproduction in certain media, and at certain temperatures, and these are scattered everywhere in the air. Dr. Miguel, at the Montsouris Observatory, at Paris, has made an extensive inquiry into their distribution in air and water, while in this country Dr. Percy Franklin has also investigated the subject with commendable persistence. The result of these inquiries is that in cold weather, especially when the ground is covered with snow, the number of organisms in the air is very much reduced, and presents a striking contrast with that found in warm weather. Experiments made on March 9 show that during dry, cold weather, with a strong east wind blowing over London, a large number of micro-organisms may still be present in the air. It is particularly noticeable that after a heavy shower, and within a few hours afterward, the number of micro organisms in the air should be as abundant as usual. Taking an average of the experiments made on the roof of the Science Schools of the South Kensington Museum, the mean number of organisms found in a litre of air amounted to 35, while an average or 279 fell on one square foot in one minute.

Other experiments made near Reigate, and in the vicinity of Norwich, present a marked contrast with those made at South Kensington. There was a remarkable free-dom from micro-organisms of the air collected on the heath near Norwich during comparatively warm weather in April, while the air in gardens in Norwich and Reigate was richer in organisms than that of the open air. Experiments made in enclosed places where there is little or no aerial motion, shows the number of suspended organisms to be very moderate, but as soon as any disturbance in the air occurs, from draughts is offered for the consideration of the ama-teur. or people moving about, the number rapidly increases and may become very great, Experiments made in a railway carriage affords a striking example of th enormous number of micro-organisms which become suspended in the air when many persons are brought together.

ONE EFFECT OF THE GRIP.

It Stopped the Growth of Children Who Did Not Have the Disease.

La Nature, in a recent issue, furnishes curious observation bearing on the depressing influence of the influenza epidemic, even in cases where it was apparently without effect. At the Copenhagen Royal Institutution for the education of deaf mutes, it has been the practice for the past seven years to regularly weigh the children every day in groups. Some interesting results have been obtained from this exper ment, and among other things it has been found children's growth in weight occurs chiefly in autumn and the early part of De-cember, there being bardly any in the rest years; but in the four weeks following the date named each child, which usually in, with the aid of a hoe scoops up a peck of gained on an average over 500 grammes, the leaves and mud from the bottom. He gained nothing in the case of the girls, and only 200 grammes in the case of the boys. There was no modification of food or other material conditions, and the only ex-planation for the remarkable difference is found in the fact that toward the end of November the influenza appeared in Copenhagan. While six of the professors were attacked, there were no pronounced cases among the pupils; but it is supposed that germs of the disease having entered the place, the strug-gle with these on the part of children ab-sorbed so much vital force that the organs of nutrition failed to give the normal increase of weight.

THE OLDEN TIME DRAMA. Customs in the Theaters of Old England in Shakespeare's Day. The custom of "damning" a play on its first performance is at least as ancient as acts, the audience amused themselves in various ways, reading, playing at cards, drinking ale, and smoking tobacco. Refreshments were supplied by attendants, who cried their commodities with as much noise as our modern street tradesfolk.

In 1633 women smoked tobacco in the theater as well as men. Rich spectators were allowed to sit on the stage. Here the fastidious critic was usually to be met with; the wit, ambitious of distinction; and the gallant, studious to display his person and fine clothes. Seated, or reclining, on the rushes of the floor, they regaled themselves with pipes and tobacco provided by their class in the pit, who frequently hooted, hissed and threw dirt on the stage coxcombs; but the gallants displayed their "high breeding" by an utter disregard of this behavior. The audience, too, often vented their ill-nature on the players.
