Artists of the Capital Who Have Already Wen Themselves Fame.

PROGRESS IN THE CORCORAN SCHOOL

ICORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, May 1 .- Though Washington is not an "art center" as yet, it has a very interesting group of artists, and in those days soon to come, when æsthetics will hold as sturdy sway at the National capital as politics and display of wealth, more than one of this group will find his name inscribed high upon the rolls of artists nationally famous.

Yet a little while and we shall have our national gallery of art. When it comes it will speedily take rank with the great collections of the world, so far as it is possible in this day when the great pictures of other periods are so rarely to be acquired at any price. America does not do things by halves, and when once a repository for such treasures is provided, money will be poured out lavishly to hasten the accumulation of one of the great collections of the world. Already we have in the Corcoran gallery the collection second in interest and importance in America; the New York gallery only excelling it. More interesting than either are some of the private collections of wealthy men, but as these are for the most part hid from the eyes of the world they do not count.

THE CORCORAN ART SCHOOL. In connection with the Corcoran gallery

The connection with the Coreoran gallery there is a new art school, the building erected and the school endowed by the late W. W. Corcoran. Every available place is filled, the students numbering nearly 100. The master is Mr. E. F. Andrews, who has painted many portraits of well-known Pitts-burgers and where other portraits are in the burgers, and whose other portraits are in the White House, in nearly every other public building and in many of the noted residences of the city. Mr. Andrews is a native of Steubenville, O., has studied much abroad, is an enthusiast, a fine critic to whose judgment the purchase of the best pictures in the gallery collection are due. He has a beautiful residence on Sixteenth street, close to Scott circle, and adjoining his residence the prettiest studio in the, city. Under his tuition the students of the Corcoran school who have talent are making wonderful progress, and among them are several of great promise.

By the way, the trustees of the Corcoran gallery have at last arranged to open the gallery one evening in the week, tree to everybody. At great expense incandescent lights have been introduced, and the pic-tures are seen to good advantage. I sincerely hope it will soon be concluded to open the gallery on Sundays as well, when it may be seen by the hardworked people who are too tired to go on a work-day even-

WATER COLOR CELEBRITIES.

Two water colorists of Washington have already gained a national reputation. W H. Holmes is always a welcome exhibite at the salons of the Water Color Society, THE BISHOP'S EUROPEAN PROGRAMME. and his pictures sell readily at good figures. He has an elegant residence and studio on | He Will Witness the Passion Play at Ober-Meridian Hill, overlooking the city, where he has a fascinating collection of his own work and that of other noted artists. J. H. Moser, who has been devoting himself solely to water colors during the last two years, to water colors during the last two years, has had almost unprecedented success. His pictu.es are much in demand among dealers of New York and Boston, and sell at good prices at all the exhibitions. He paints delicious little "impressions" with great facility, and some of his sketches are marvels of color and atmosphere in water color. Just now he is engaged in the venture of an exhibi-tion and sale on his own account at Fischer's art rooms. Such sales have usually been failures here, but Moser's star is in the asceudant, for during the first few days of the exhibit the sales amounted to more than $1,000, and among the purchasers were pubnotabilities, who know a good thing when they see it, and buy only what is good. I fancy everyone interested in art in Pitts-burg has seen and loved the landscapes of Max Weyl. I do not hesitate to say that in faithful portrayal of nature, alike delightial in color, tone and composition, Weyl's landscapes have no superior among American artists. Weyl was an artistic journeyman jeweler by trade. During the Rebellion a German of noble family, who joined the Union army, stopped at the little hotel where Weyl lived. The German was a fine amuteur artist, and in return for Weyl's services as English teacher and in-terpreter, gave him a few lessons in painting. Weyl became infatuated with art, neglected his trade, abandoned all

TIEWERS' REPORTend of the space which I know is all I can have, after having scarcely made a beginning, having not mentioned at all such charming studios as those of the wealthy artists, Hinckley and Mann; McGrath, whose magnificent architectural water colors whose magnificent architectural water colors are known on both sides of the Atlantic; LeGrand Johnson, who prints landscapes with sheep almost equal to the great Chial-iva; George Matthews, whose portraits are widely known; Forsberg, perhaps the most original of all, but too broad and original to be popular; De Lancy Gill, whose charming troit river, met this morning. The advocates of several different styles of tunnels were on hand with tracings, models, etc. Dr. Sherman was the first witness and produced models of a tubular tunnel to be built above water and sunk section by section into a trench of the river, so that not more than one quarter would be above ground, the tunnel to be 18 fect in diameter. Dr. Sherman put the cost of tunnel, without estimating the approaches, at $1,040,000. mating the approaches, at $1,040,000. General L. S. Trowbridge, in behalf of the Detroit Railroad and Tunnel Company, offered to build a tunnel 3,000 seet long, with approaches 6,000 feet long, 20 feet in diameter in the clear, at least 30 feet below low water mark and with an 80-foot grade for $3,500,000; two tunnels for $6,500,000. The tunnel, for 3,200 feet, would be composed of a solid combined cast iron tube, and for the rest of the distance of the timber # masonry and cement, the whole to be ready within two years. Both suggestions were W. taken under consideration by the board.

The body of the book, from A to Z, is a cheap reprint, page for page, of the edition of 1847, which was in its day, a valuable book, but in the pro-gress of language for over FORTY TEARS, has been completely superseded. It is now reproduced, broken type, errors and all, by photo. If the process, is printed all, by photo-lithograph process, is printed on cheap paper and filmsily bound. A brief comparison, page by page, between the reprint and the latest and enlarged edition, will show the great superiority of the latter. These reprints are as out of date as a last year's almanac. No hon-orable dealer will allow the buyer of such to suppose that he is getting the Webster which to-day is accepted as the Standard and THE BEST, -every copy of which bears our imprint as given below.

struggled with poverty and debt, but with a stout heart kept on, and even managed to take a sketching tour abroad. Now his worth is recognized. Artists and connoisseurs look upon him as already great and (amous to be. In the Vernon building on "the avenue," he has the quaintest studio in Washington. He works almost entirely out of doors, however, and to this is probably due his remarkably realistic impressions of nature. At the exhibitions of the National Academy and the Society of American Artists, his landscapes are found almost invari-ably "on the line," and rank with the best. Though their wealth and reedom of treat-ment still carry them beyond the slow development of the popular taste, which to a deplorable extent clings to the old, or chromo, school. Senor da Costa, ex-Minister of Brazil, a noted connoisseur, and the possessor of a remarkable collection, is an enthusiastic admirer of Weyl, aud has purchased liberally of his pictures. He has predicted to me that within a few years Weyl will be acknowledged as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of American andscape painters.

Senor Don Jose Benedicte Correa, a handsome Spanish-South American, is one of the most successful of Washington artists. He came to America and fell into a period of "hard luck" by a most romantic chain of circumstances, and by stern necessity was forced to put to use what he had learned from an eminent artist of Ecuador merely as an accomplishment of a gentleman's son. Almost at the point of starvation at a time when he could speak scarcely a word of English, too proud to let his friends or countrymen into the secret of his mistortunes, he fought down all the opposing fates and is now a really rich artist, with money in bank and extensive investments in real estate. He gets high prices for his portraits and figure pieces, and has painted many large and expensive religious canvases for the walls of Catholic institutions of the city. A great business head has my friend Don Jose, as well as a incile brush, and he well deserves his brilliant success.

A MASTER IN PORTRAITS.

S. Jerome Uhl, one of the strongest of America's portrait painters, the painter from life of the portraits of President Cleveland, Judge Shellabarger and many others, with sublime (aith in the future of Washington as a home of art, has decided to plant himself here, after many seasons abroad and is various cities of America. No artist in America produces more striking and life-like portraits. Near Uhl's studio in Vernon building is that other attractive one of the rising young painters McDonald, fresh from Paris, full of grand imaginations and already at work on a series of remarkable studies. Adjacent also is the studio of Dunbar, the sculptor, frequently mentioned in these columns as the producer of busts of noted public men.

My purpose in this article was, by brief reference to artists who have won their spurs or who are being watched with deep interest by artists and critics, to suggest the week at Pfeifer's, 443 Smithfield, 100 Federal extent and importance of the art circle and st., Allegheny.

About Paneled Iron Cellings. If you are building, send stamp for this

If you have any rooms with old broken If you have any rooms with old proken plastered ceilings, or old, decayed and open-jointed wood ceilings, send for it. Our patent paneled iron ceilings have been before the public for the last eight or ten years, and now there are thousands in use, scattered all over the Union, in stores, banking offices and hotels, while its superior acoustic properties has brought it into extensive demand or churches, halls and opera houses. Its low cost and cleanliness introduces it into schools and asylums. And now the increasing demand for something to take the place of plaster for residence ceilings, something that would gratity the artistic taste of our most cultivated house-

ing, and thus save them the constant annoyance and expense of re-plastering and repapering; something that could be applied over the old broken plastered ceilings without being compelled to take down and re-move the dirt and dust-covering stuff, has prompted us to bring out these beautiful designs of embossed metal plates. These embossed plates are adapted to side walls as well as ceilings, working up beautifully into wainscoting, frieze and field. As all figures and designs are in relief, really very little brush decoration is needed. They are, however, susceptible of any desired degree of ornamental decoration from simple, quiet tinting to the most elaborate and ornate display of coloring, gilding and bronzing, giving abundant scope for display of taste and talent to our most gifted decorative artists.
