IMPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. CAMBRIDGE, PA., May 1.-Rev. P. H. Garret, pastor of the United Brethren Church of this place, is in jail, he having been arrested on a charge of forgery. The warrant for the preacher's arrest, was issued by Justice Sentman, of Gap, on the complaint of A. E. Good.

It is alleged that the Rev. Mr. Garret attended the sale of D. M. Groff in the middle of March, and purchased a buggy for $95 In payment of the same he gave a note with A. E. Good as surety. Mr. Groff had the note discounted at the New Holland National Bank. Mr. Good heard in some way of his name being on the note, and he called at the bank, examined the note, pronounced it a forgery and made complaint against the Rev. Mr. Garret.

POLITICS AND SCHOOLS.

They Get an Introduction to Each Other It Westmereland This Trip.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. GREENSBURG, May 1. - The approaching election of County Superintendent of Schools here is creating a great deal of interest. The election occurs on Tuesday next. Politics are being brought into the fight, and as a consequence, the candidates for the place, unschooled in the tricks of the ward politician, are not confident, but are making a vigorous fight. For many years past the County Superintendent has been a Democrat, for the reason, perhaps, that the Republicans were in the minority. This year, however, the Republicans have a ma-jority of 17. Prot. Hugus, of Greensburg, who has held the office for six years, is a candidate, and is a Democrat. He is opposed by Prof. Ulrich, of Latrobe, a Republican. Some very interesting times are expected on the day of the convention.

THOROUGH VACCINATION

If You Do Not Get the Constitutional Effects You Should Try Again. Herald. 1

Here is the history of a typical case of vaccination. In two or three days after the implantation of the virus there is a slight A SET OF RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED, itching near the point of vaccination, and, on examining this with a magnitying glass, small vesicles can be detected. About the fourth day some constitutional symptoms may be expected-a slight fever, some headsche, a little diarrhes, and, if the nervous system is in an irritated condition, convulsions not uncommonly make their appearance. The vesicle now increases in size, and if it is punctured, there will exude a and if it is punctured, there will exude a thin, serous-like fluid.

The constitutional symptoms now begin to diminish, but the local disturbances increase. The arm becomes hot and painful, and the glands in the axilla (armpit) are sore. The day week following the vaccination the vesicles have attained to their full size, and the areolæ (red circles) begin to appear. If now the vesicle be opened, a thick, clear fluid, slightly tenacious, will cook out. This is the vaccination, the vesicles the eighth day after vaccination, the vesicles begin to retrograde toward the pustular stage. The pustules now begin to dry up, and the inflammation and swelling of the arm gradually diminish. In some instances, at about the tenth day, there is a slight ever, which corresponds to the secondary fever of smallpox.

At about the twenty-first day the crust may be expected to fall off, leaving a reddish spot, which, after some little time, will have the characteristic appearance of the vaccine scars. It sometimes happens that though there may have been a good vesicle, still there is no scar. Scarification gives a much better scar than any other method of vaccination. The constitutional disturbance is the most important part of the disease, and no vaccination can be considered perfect where it is wanting. In one instance, at least, it has been known to produce

A lady came gliding down the aisles in all the freshness and daintiness of a fault-less toilet, and at once the man folded his paper and relinquished his place, with up-liften hat and courteous salutation. The lady thanked him, and then, turning to the tired woman whose gray hair had promptly appealed to her consideration, said, with sweet graciousness: "Please take the seat;

"I don't want it," said the other, sullenly. "But please take it," urged the lady with still more gracious smile. "Really, I lon't mind standing at all." "No," said the woman, a little mollified by the smile. "I won't take it just to spite him. He meant that seat for a lady, and he didn't offer it to me, and I won't sit in t," and so she rode one stolidly clinging to the strap. SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW YORK, May 1 .- Samuel Davis, a young clerk for a Westside wholesale drygoods house, will appear in the Brooklyn City Court next Monday to hear Chief Justice Clement decide whether or not he is a married man. Five years ago last February Davis, while out of a job, amused himself by going to public dances in Williamsburg, where he was then living. He became acquainted with Anna C. Plunkett, of 33 Marcy avenue, Brooklyn, at one of these dances, took her to a Rockaway pionic, and with a friend escorted her and her sister to

DARED TO MARRY. During a pause in the dancing someo in the party dared everyone else to go and get married. Anna Plunkett and Davis ac-cepted the "dare." They went to the par-sonage of the Methodist Protestant Church and were married by the Rev. J. J. White.

All four thought the ceremony a big joke. They went back and danced out the ball, and the young men left the young women at the door of their home. Davis took Miss Plunkett to several other dances, and at the end of the Williamsburg season came to New York to live. Miss Plunkett remained as Miss Plunkett in Brooklyn. Davis never lived with her. About a year ago Davis' friends who knew of his escapade, seared he was about to marry a New York lady, to whom he had become very attentive, and that his marriage in fun might cause him some trouble. They explained of 180 Grand street, Brooklyn," said Mr. H. B. Kinghorn, of 234 Boadway, Samuel Davis' present counsel, to-day. "He made Davis' present counsel, to-day. "He made a proposition to Davis to settle for $250. Samuel Davis said he had no money, and H. B. Davis had him arrested for abandoning his alleged wife, Miss Plunkett. The case was brought before Justice Walsh, in Brooklyn, who, in view of the fact that Miss Plunkett was earning some $10 a week and not liable therefore to become a charge on the county, released him.

"Last April Davis came to me with his troubles. I brought an action in equity to have the marriage ceremony declared null and void. The action is on a special term calendar for next Monday."

We chipped. Quay saw our whole pile and raised it by $5, saying that he should be proud of the honor, and the man passed into the next car. An hour later we learned that he child had been born and that the that no child had been born and that the fellow had raised $75 and dropped off at PRECIAL TRLEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. WHEELING, May 1,-An interesting ghost story comes from the town of Sharpsburg, Md. out ten days ago Samuel Swain, an aged citizen of the place, died at his residence and was buried. Last Saturday evening about dusk Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cramer and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bowers were sitting in a room on the ground floor when all four were startled at seeing the form and face of the deceased Mr. Swain standing at the window looking 11. One of the ladies fell in a dead faint, while the others in the apartment ran from the room into the open air. The attention of several men in the street was attracted to the house by the commotion, and they, too, saw the figure of Mr. Swain standing at the window. As they looked the figure vanished away into air.

The matter created a good deal of excitement, and Sunday the grave was examined to see if it was intact, but no evidences of disturbance were visible. The people residing in the house moved out Monday morning, and cannot be induced to return. ground floor when all four were startled at

It is likely that the contest will be one of ten rounds.
