Mr. Wells was drowned and the other three were unconscious when rescued and were in the last stages of exhaustion, McLaughlin and Euglish being revived with great difficulty. So much excitement prevailed at the mo-ment of the accident and for an hour afterward that it was impossible to get at the facts, and the whar was soon crowded about the locality of the accident with people, among whom the most sensational rumors as to the loss of life were rife. By many it was asserted that Mr. Wells had been saved, but careful inquiry confirmed the report of his death. WHAT THE ARTISTS SAY. HOW THE CARNEGIE GALLERY WILL BENEFIT PITTSBURG MEN.

Struggling Painters May Find Recognition Through It-American Pictures Would Sell More Readily-Views From a Business and Art Standpoint.

Mr. Carnegie's proposition to establish an art gallery in Pittsburg, and to give $50,000 a year for the purchase of American pictures exclusively, meets with the general approval of the local artists. Their opinion is unanimous that such a museum is needed, but they differ as to the effect such an institution will have on Yankee art. John

W. Beatty, the well-known artist, when asked for his opinion, said:
"Mr. Carnegie's offer to found a national art gallery in Pittsburg, which shall reprent American art, is so large in conception and magnificent in the result to be obtained that it is difficult even to comprehend the full measure of his liberal plan. It transcends all local interest and thought and becomes national in importance. In fact the good people of Pittsburg are repeatedly enjoying the delightful sensation of having their wildest hopes in regard to a library and art gallery utterly eclipsed by the actual plans formulated by Mr. Carnegie. This proposition is an eclipse. It means that American art shall be estimated at its exact value, as represented in a comprehensive collection of representative works in America.

TO BE A NATIONAL COLLECTION. "It means that a force which has been scattered and largely lost shall be centered and therefore felt. The conception is a grand one. It will give the Pittsburg Art Gallery a prominence which it could never otherwise attain, because the collection will be distinct in its character, as representing the national art movement, and the only one of its kind in the United States. It will, in fact, be a national collection, and will be so considered throughout the art world. The effect of the establishment of est in American paintings and otherwise encourage American art.
We cannot have too many good paintings, and it must be placed to the credit of American artists that they are almost unanimously in favor of the repeal of all duty on foreign paintings, and have petitioned Con-

MANY INFERIOR PRODUCTIONS. "It is equally well known that with the good works there comes an overwhelming flood of very inferior paintings and that many dealers find it to their pecuniary adby some one who is not a picture dealer and who is not interested in handling for-eign paintings. That such a collection H. C. Frick, will do much to establish the importance of our national art cannot be doubted. The educational influence of such a collection upon our own community will be very H. K. Porter, great. The pleasure derived by all classes Geo. A. Mache is beyond computation and I know that the art loving people of Pittsburg will so highly appreciate such a gift to our city that they will forever hold Mr. Carnegie in the kind-

A CROWN TO CARNEGIE'S GIFTS. Mr. Joseph Woodwell, who has become : hardware man, but has not entifely deserted his studio, was one of the first men ap-proached. He has very keen artistic tastes. as well as good business ideas, and he can-vasses the subject from a number of standpoints. He thinks, to begin with the time had come long ago when the tariff idea should be applied to works of art. In detail he said: "This last proposition of Mr. Carnegie's to build an art gailery is the crown-ing one of his munificent gifts, and his plan to limit the collection of works of American painters is excellent. While I do not detract from the merits of foreign pictures, for Europe has many great artists, Americans should proteet their own and patronize home talent. At least foster and encourage art studies by displaying a willingness to help them. Art ists, like other people, must eat, and they need money to buy bread and butter. This Pittsburg gallery will create a market Every American artist will know, if a com petent art committee is selected, that if he makes a strictly first-class picture there is a place where he can sell it, and where its ex-hibition will add to his credit.

LIKE THE PARIS SALON.

"It will be an honor to him, and in time the Pittsburg gallery is bound to become famous like the Paris salon. This city has the wealth and the intelligent people, and it should have a reputation for something else beside pig metal. It such a gallery were located here, with the annual expenditure of $50,000 per year, it would soon become a strong exponent of American art, and painters would realize that a picture in the Pittsburg gallery would make it easier for him to sell his works to the Chicago and Milwaukee interests.

"But the people of Pittsburg are awakening on the subject of art. Within the past 18 months many people have called on me to get my opinion about pictures, and many of them have purchased. I think I have been responsible for the picture sales in this city in that time amounting to $100,000 and the fact is that this is as much as had been done here for 20 years previous. This shows that the people are interested and their judgment has improved. The American artist who expects to sell pictures in Pittsburg in the future must be high up in his profession. The exhibition in the Alle gheny library was of great value in culti-vating taste. The gentlemen who had tur-nished the pictures took pride in doing so,

and the public was delighted. A REVELATION TO THEM.

More than 30,000 people inspected the col-lection, and many of them went back a second and third time. It was a revelation to those who hadn't seen works of art before. One can buy books, but pictures cost too much, and no city is complete without a good art gallery. I am glad to see that Mr. Carnegie is so much interested. If I were a wealthy man, I don't know of a better way in which to spend money where it would do the most good than by establishtwo years shows that art culture is gaining ground. The greatest artists up to date are in Europe, but I haven't any doubt that we could leave them if American artists were encouraged. This plan of Mr. Carnegie to create a gallery for American pictures is along the right line. AMERICAN ARTISTS HAVE SUFFERED. The craze for things foreign has been carried too far, and the home artists in par-ticular hava suffered. There is a good deal in a name. It is not the merits of a picture but the name in the corner that fixes the name these days. I think that many of the foreigners have succeeded in having themselves boosted when they don't have as much ability as some American artists. The picture dealers in New York won't handle one's pictures unless they know him. My opinion is that the foreign pictures brought to Pittsburg are the ones that couldn't be sold in Europe and the East, though I must say that some meritorious foreign paintings have been purchased here. But Pittsburgers can't be deceived any longer. Their tastes have been cultivated and they demand the best. The New York dealers

CENTERS OF POPULATION. WHY THE MAIN BUILDING IS TO BE EAST OF THE OLD CITY.

What a Meridian Line Drawn Across Herron Hill Shows-How Pittsburg Resembles New York-A Trustee Who is

Up on Population Questions. It was ascertained at the Tuesday's conerence between Mr. Carnegie and the gentlemen from Councils, a strong showing of the reasons why Pittsburg's inhabitants need a library in their midst instead of in midst of their warehouses and daylight avocations, was made by a gentleman pres-ent. The substance of his interesting remarks is given as follows: "Draw a meridian line on the top of Her-ron Hill, and you will be surprised at the preponderance of population upon the east, really massed more beyond East Liberty's center than at any part of the city. I will take you gentlemen five miles from here, and prove to you that Frankstown contains more prove to you that Frankstown contains more population to the square foot than any other portion of Pittsburg. The car lines which radiate from Pittsburg's center in every direction are now being operated to bring the citizens to business, and their families to the business stores, and to take them to their homes again. I predict that in ten years hence Pittsburg's fashionable and best attended opera house will be in East Liberty. Allegheny will also have an opera house, and the after-night populopera house, and the after-night population of Pittsburg will consist of the watchman who guards your warehouse and such unfortunates who are compelled to work at night. "New York is a parallel case. All the surface and elevated roads center either at the Battery or City Hall, but no one unless desirous of being esteemed crazy would build an opera house below Union square. The magnificent Metropolitan Museum and the new Conservatory of Music are located in the midst of the population, not in the midst of the business world. Chief Bigelow's Opinion of the Bedford Avenue Reservoir Site.

It would be a good place to erect a monument, as the location is a conspicuous one.
