MORE CARE NEEDED.

The Coroner's Jury Makes a Mild Recommendation to Mr. Malone,

TO PROTECT LIVES OF CITIZENS.

No Blame Attached to Anyone for the Death of Thomas Carey.

MANSLAUGHTER IN THE CORKEN CASE

The verdict of the Coroner's jury in the case of Thomas Carey, who was killed by the breaking of a defective derrick must at the Government building Saturday afternoon last, was rendered yesterday afternoon. It was to the effect that the mast was rotten, and the accident was unavoidable. The accident was not blamed upon Superintendent Malone, but that gentleman came in for considerable censure at the hands of Coroner McDowell. The following is a copy of the verdiet:

verdict: "We, the jury, find that Thomas A. Carey, aged 37 years, came to his death on Saturday atternoon, May 3, about 2.30 o'clock, by being thrown from a platform of a derrick on the new Government building. The accident was due to the breaking of the musthead in said derrick, and was unforeseen. We recommend that more care and caution be taken by the persons in charge, so as to not only protect the workmen em-ployed on the building, but the public gen-should be "the witness of the ages, the ployed on the building, but the public gen-erally." A LONG-USED MAST. In the testimony it was developed that the mast had been used in the construction of the Harrisburg postoffice and was brought to this city in 1883, when Mr. Malone was Environmended to the section of the secti Superintendent, under President Arthur. It had been tested by boring auger hol es through the wood to ascertain if it was sound. Each test showed the wood to be in good condition, and it was thought the mast was perfectly safe for all heavy work. The mast broke at a point 14 inches from where the auger holes had been made.

Patrick Flannigan, an employe on the building, testified to the strength of the der-rick. He said it had lited two statues early in the day, as heavy as that which caused it to break down. He said the system of derricks on the building was as good as any in the city. Joseph Kuhn also testified that he thought the derrick was sale. He never heard of any one re using to go to work on account of the derrick being an old one. It was considered periectly safe by everyone employed about the building.

Henry Maloy testified to seeing the derrick all and Carey jump to the chimney from the platform. He was sure the man had jumped and tried to hold on to one of the guy wires for safety.

THE WEIGHT ON THE BOOM.

boom was detective from the top. A good derrick should last 12 to 15 years. The one in question had lifted stones 17 to 19 tons in weight. He thought the timber rotted by

Pittsburg was as good as any in the country. J. C. Wilson, the well-known builder, who has erected some of the highest buildings in the city, testified to the quality of the wood in the derrick. He put a dampener on the testimony of the previous wit-ness by saying that he saw no signs of paint on the must which broke, nor did he see signs of any putty having been used. The signs of any putty having been used. The rot, he said, could not have occurred in one day or two. He thought if the derrick had been examined six months before the acci-opp, the Court House.
